THE TEXANS' TERROR.

An Incident Showing the True Character of the Rio Grande Robber.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

As considerable agitation is now going on about General Cortina, the pirate of the Rio Bravo del Norte, I would mention a little circumstance coming under the immediate notice of myself, characteristic of this scoundrel and his bravado manner. A party of gentlemen in 1860 went from Texas to Mexico to purchase a "ganado" of horses. Having accomplished their purpose they returned home in company with the herd, and on the third day of their journey came to a rancho and asked the proprietor the privilege of corralling their horses in his corral for that night. He granted the request. After a hearty supper the owners of the herd and the proprietor of the rancho smoked their cigarettes and indulged in a conversation relative to affairs of the country, &c. The head herdsman made some very stringent remarks about Cortina, and denounced him as a cut-throat, coward, &c. The proprietor of the rancho laughingly said, "It would not be well for you if Cortina should overhear your remarks." The herdsman replied, "I would give my horses if I could meet him face to face. I would kill him like a dog." This manner and tone of conversation was kept up until it became time to retire.

In the morning, after getting breakfast and everything in readiness to drive the horses to the next stopping place, the owner of the horses asked the proprietor of the rancho how much he was indebted to him for his trouble and kindness. "Oh, nothing, Señor," said the ranchero; "but you can do me a favor when you get in Texas." "Name it," said the owner of the horses; "I will do any favor you ask of me." "Well, then," said the ranchero, "just tell your friends along the road that you stayed all night with Cortina, the cut-throat and coward, and that he sends his regards to the Texans and will call upon them in the course of a few weeks for some cattle!" The horsemen looked somewhat sheepish, and though very brave when talking, as they presumed, behind Cortina's back, were very quick to say "Buenos dias," and put spurs to their horses when they found themselves in his presence.

NEW YORK, August 20, 1872. TEXAN.

SARATOGA.

The Fashionable Furor Unabated.

THIRD DAY OF THE RACES.

THREE CAPITAL CONTESTS.

Count d'Orsay the Winner of the Two-Year-Old Sweepstakes, Experience Oaks of the Three-Year-Old Purse, and Mary Louise the Free Handicap.

SARATOGA, August 20, 1872.

Fashion, usually cold and calculating, seems to have gone mad over the races now held in her Summer capital. Not only does the fickle dame pay court attended by queens of beauty, maids of honor and dancing nymphs, but even those from whom graver things might be expected seem driven to join in the dissipation of the gay carnival. Men whose reverend and austere air gave them influence in the Senate, men who wore white locks as a crown of glory, and judges whom nature had tonsured that she might mark them as priests of the law, are, like bad boys, "gambolling on the green." Even ministers of the Gospel, with no fear of unholy communion with the wicked world before their eyes, go blindly to destruction, betting on the losing colt. The excitement has proven so contagious that it defies all efforts to keep it within bounds, and all the little villages within a circuit of a score of miles have been inoculated with the "pizen." Everybody button-holes every other body to talk "horse" from a personal point of view, and as there are a dozen who lose their money to one who wins the chances are that the button-holed one falls into the hands of disaffected mercenaries eleven times in twelve. There are said to be twenty-five thousand visitors in Saratoga this week, who expend on an average seven and one-half dollars per day—a total of over one hundred and eighty-seven thousand dollars daily; while the betting each day is in round numbers about one hundred thousand dollars, of which one-half is in the pools.

THE POOL SELLING.

Last night was the best of the meeting. There was a much larger attendance than on any previous occasion, and the bidding was more spirited. The pools were sold, as usual, at the Honorable John's. The club house was two-thirds filled by the sporting fraternity, including a few of the Kentuckians and other South State men. There was also a slight sprinkling of gentlemen with white neckerchiefs, who might have been clergymen and might have been bridegrooms. A few Senators who were on the point of leaving the Springs, the impeachment trial being over, dropped in and mixed gayly with the crowd. There were also said to be judicial celebrities hovering about. No ladies were present. A string of $700 pools was sold, and the aggregate sales of the evening were a little over $20,000.

THE START FROM THE SPRINGS

was a very humorous one in many of its features. Belles stood, fan in hand, with babyish, pouting mouths, on the steps of Congress Hall, waiting for "Joe," or "Tom," or "Charlie," in a perfect tempest of anxiety and indignation. Uncharitable listeners suggested that the gentlemen called for had gone to "take a drink"—of Congress water. Widows in weeds, "fat and fair," sighed softly, like cooing doves, and waited patiently for their "dear naughty fellows." Buxom aged ladies, with crisp and crimp gray curls, and white or lavender kids—those ladies usually denominated "dowagers"—sat with a feverish aspect and an irascible smile, flipping their fans with more energy than grace, and alternately compressing their lips and lifting their eyebrows in a way that expressed much plainer than words, "I told you so—always late!" Lean, lank men, with leathery faces and great hooked noses, stalked off, umbrella in hand, and with spectacles abeak. Oily-faced men, with iron-gray hair and spotless white vests shielding enormou abdomen, scrambled down with turtle-like velocity to the long-waiting carriage, which small boys crowed behind.

EN ROUTE TO THE RACES.

Landaus, coupes, Clarendons, drags, dog carts and phaetons led off in the start, followed by the "Red Bird" and Gumptown coaches and the Geyser spring carryall. First comes Vanderbilt—the old gentleman and his pretty wife on the box, coachman and footman sitting behind, so that all the country people believe he is taking them out for a drive. Then comes Senator Jarvis Lord, of Rochester, owner of three banking houses and the heaviest contractor in the United States; also a political partner of Sanford E. Church, the present Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Then follow his two sons—George D. Lord, of the Assembly, and Frank N. Lord, of Governor Hoffman's staff. Colonel May, with his wife and his pretty daughter, come later in a Clarence, and General Carver in an open barouche. The latter has not missed the season at Saratoga for fifty years, and is celebrated as the first agitator of a railroad to the Pacific. He published a pamphlet in '38 prophecying hotel and palace sleeping cars from New York to San Francisco—anticipating the man Train and the facts by a quarter of a century. Wm. E. Marshall, the artist who became famous from his portrait of Lincoln, and who skated with the Empress Eugénie on the imperial pond, where the Duke de Morny presided in the days before Sedan, comes later, and leads Mr. Maurice J. Power, of New York, and his beautiful wife, who bowl along in a carriage ahead of O'Donovan, the Southern sculptor—critic of "Fine Arts"—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Chapin, of Peekskill-on-the-Hudson, are in a landau, and James Parkinson, of Philadelphia, last but not least, follows.

THE GRAND STAND

was well filled at half-past eleven o'clock, there being about three thousand persons present, of whom some twelve hundred were ladies. The display of fashion was not so great as on the day previous, and the tout ensemble less brilliant in color. Still there was a large sprinkling of the élite of the Springs, and many distinguished personages present. Prominent among the owners and backers of horses were O. M. Bassett; W. L. Brown, of Cleveland, Ohio; Thomas McGuire and McDaniels. Philip Pharleigh, dressed as an English swell, with mutton chop whiskers, was fanning himself and winking at Dusenberry, who regarded his immense blonde mustache with the most exquisite amour propre. Altogether the Grand Stand had its fascination for the guileless.

ON THE GREEN

and under an awning Dr. Underwood, S. O. P., was selling pools on the American plan, "the more you put down the less you pick up," at a rapid rate. A little distance off stood John Morrissey "coaching" his jockey, who rides Defender, and explaining the advantage of an even start over the "pruts" of an unequal race. The Doctor's pure Dublin brogue—Underwood is a Frenchman, born through stress of weather in the cove of Cork—drowned poor Morrissey's English, so that the jockey left in such a bewildered state that he lost

THE RACE.

Judge Connolly was early reported as suffering from a coup de soleil, which later turned out to be a false alarm. Subsequent reports assigned his illness to friction excited by the clouded jockey who ran around his orbit yesterday, and whose action upon extended surfaces even Plantamour failed to compute with the nicety that would obviate gastronomic results. The very latest bulletins report the Big Judge as well as could be expected while laboring under the shock. A gentleman who very closely resembled Mayor Hall, of New York, excited considerable attention—even approaching to enthusiasm—standing on the green. It was not His Honor, however.

The next sensation was a gentleman who carried a pair of Lord Ross' field lenses attached to his shoulders, and who seemed in a quandary whether he should weigh anchor like a ship, or fly like a bird. He having passed out of the horizon of the Grand Stand, there was a lull in the conversation.

THE STABLE BOYS

as usual congregated about the judges' stand and manifested their especial preferences. The negroes when the horses approached on the homestretch ran forward in a long broken column, waving their hats, throwing up their caps and yelling themselves hoarse, only to see their favorites lose. The colored jockeys were, in fact, particularly unfortunate in the day's racing, and the stable boys, instead of running forward kissing (bah!) and hugging each other, could only roll on the grass and smother their discontent.

RUMINATING ON THE RESULT.

It is impossible to stop here, although the first race has been run and the second one is at the finish. The sour visages, the long-drawn faces about are too comical not to be portrayed. Everybody has made his bet on Gray Planet, and Experience Oaks has won. There are some tears, doubtless, on Angelina's cheeks—the belle of yesterday—whose gallant has after all won the wager, and there are certainly curses upon the lips of all the professionals. The New Yorkers have all made their little deposits on the comet, and the comet at the last moment has for the second time failed to keep its appointment. There is a financial crash in the tribe of Gotham. There is dismay at the thought of hotel bills unpaid (and politics unsettled), and yet the busy world wages on its winding way.

THE RACING.

The track to-day was the best we have had at this meeting, and the weather was delicious. Good racing and fast time were looked for, and no one was disappointed, as every race was "done quickly." Three races were run, the first being a dash of three-quarters of a mile by two-year-olds; the second, a mile and an eighth by three-year-olds, and the third, a dash of a mile and three-quarters for all ages. All the races were satisfactory events, particularly to the winners. There were "wry faces" when Experience Oaks won the second race, she being considered of so little account in the race that one hundred to three was about the odds in the pools, and in the Paris Mutuel machine they ground out $243 75 for every $5 invested. The last race was won by Mary Louise, who won the selling race yesterday afternoon, and was sold to Mr. Hale, of Boston, for $1,000, $200 going to the association and $200 to the second horse. The gentleman won more than he paid for the mare.

In the first race there were twenty-nine entries, but only four starters. These were Hunter & Travers' imported black colt Strachino, by Parmesan, dam May Bell; A. Belmont's chestnut colt Count d'Orsay, by Kentucky, dam Lady Blessington; W. W. Glenn's chestnut colt Merodoc, by Australian, dam Ada Cheatham, and D. D. Wither's imported bay colt by Marsyas, dam Marchioness, by The Marquis. The stake amounted to $2,250. The colts were all of the finest types of the thoroughbred racer, and seldom if ever have we seen four so beautiful in a race. Mr. Belmont's and Hunter & Travers' colts sold for even money just before the start, and they came in first and second, Belmont's winning. The time of the race was not as good as was anticipated. The winner is a fine chestnut, about fifteen three, with a star in his forehead and a white rear fore foot. He started in the Saratoga stakes at the last meeting, but was kicked by Cora Linn and did not get a place.

The three-year-old race had five starters, comprising Hunter & Travers' bay colt Buckden, by Lord Clifden, dam Consequence; T. B. & W. R. Davis' brown colt Piedmont, by Asteroid, dam Fairy; Glen Flora Breeding Association's brown filly Experience Oaks, by Bonnie Scotland, dam by Lexington; D. D. Withers' brown filly by Eclipse, dam Hennie Farrow, and A. Belmont's g. c. Gray Planet, by Planet, dam Eagless. The latter was a great favorite over the field previous to the start. This race knocked all the betters "into a cocked hat." Experience Oaks won it easily, and she sold in the pools "for nothing." In the Paris Mutuels, where $5 were given for her, the betters received $243 75; and one gentleman showed a pool ticket that he paid $26 for which brought him back, discount off, $1,168. The result of this race upset the speculators, and they began to "plunge for hunk."

The free handicap had six starters. These were Bacon & Holland's brown horse Frank Hampton, by imported Aysgarth, dam by Charley Ball; A. C. Franklin's bay mare Arizona, by Lexington, dam imported Zone; Isaac W. Pennock's bay colt, by Vandal, dam Margravine; D. R. Harness' chestnut colt Meteor, by Asteroid, dam Maria Innis; John Morrissey's chestnut horse Defender, by John Morgan, dam Cynconia, and J. W. Weldon's gray filly Mary Louise, by Lightning, dam by Sovereign. Frank Hampton became the favorite in the last of the sales, and they grew very large just before the horses were saddled. Mary Louise won one of the closest races ever run on this track, the first, second and third horses not having four feet between the first and last. The favorite came in second and Arizona third.

The following are the details of the running as it came off:—

The First Race.

SWEEPSTAKES for two year olds; $100 entrance, half forfeit, with $700 added; winner of $1,000, 5 lbs. extra; of $1,500, 7 lbs.; of over $1,500, 10 lbs. extra; three-quarters of a mile.

Hunter and Travers' imp. blk. c. Strachino, by Parmesan, dam May Bell (Gray) 2
W. W. Glenn's ch. c. Merodoc (late O. P. B.) by Australian, dam Ada Cheatham (Canada) 3
D. D. Withers imported b. c., by Marsgas, dam Marquis, by The Marchioness (Lakeland) 4

Time, 1:19¾.

Hunter & Travers	170	355	200	300	365	250
Withers	100	110	65	90	70	65

THE RACE.

The colts had an excellent start at the first attempt, which is an unusual thing for two-year-olds. As they passed up the fractional track to the half mile pole, Strachino and Withers' colt were head and head, Count d'Orsay third, Merodoc fourth. As they ran out of the shook into the regular track Withers' and Hunter & Travers' colts were parallel, two lengths ahead of Count d'Orsay, who led Merodoc four lengths. The latter closed up well around the lower turn, and they were all close together as they entered the homestretch, Withers' colt leading half a length, Strachino second, Count d'Orsay third, Merodoc close up. As the colts got into the homestretch, after 200 yards running up, Withers' colt began to fall off and Strachino shortened his stride. Merodoc then took third place. Count d'Orsay came away from the others at the drawgate and galloped home a winner by two lengths, Strachino second, one length ahead of Merodoc, the latter being six lengths in front of Withers' colt. Time, 1:19¾. The race was not so fast as it should have been for such beautiful and well bred colts.

The Second Race.

PURSE $500, for three-year-olds; one mile and an eighth; winners this year of any single race amounting to $1,000 10 lbs. extra.

Piedmont	225	205	200
Experience Oaks	115	115	125

THE RACE.

Piedmont was the first away, Mimi second, Gray Planet third, Experience Oaks fourth, Buckden fifth. As they passed up in front of the stand Piedmont was leading, Buckden second, Gray Planet third, Experience Oaks fourth, Mimi fifth. Going around the upper turn Piedmont led half a length, Buckden second, a neck ahead of Gray Planet, Experience Oaks close up, with Mimi lapped on her. At the quarter pole Buckden and Piedmont were locked together, half a length in front of Gray Planet, who was two lengths ahead of Experience Oaks, the latter being two lengths ahead of Mimi. Going down the backstretch Buckden showed his head in front for a short time, but was passed by Piedmont, who led him half a length to the half-mile pole, Gray Planet close up, Experience Oaks fourth, Mimi fifth. Going into the lower turn Experience Oaks made strong running, and she soon was in front of the crowd, showing the way into the homestretch by two lengths. The filly had all the others beaten at this point, and she galloped home under a pull six lengths ahead of Buckden, who was second, the latter being one length ahead of Gray Planet, who was one length in advance of Mimi, Piedmont fifth. The time of the mile and an eighth was 1:57¼. Experience Oaks ran on to the starting place, running fast to the end. We did not learn the time of the two miles, but it must have been good.

The Third Race.

FREE HANDICAP—Purse $600; one mile and three quarters.

J. W. Weldon's g. f. Mary Louise, by Lightning, dam by Sovereign (Hannon) 1
Bacon & Holland's br. h. Frank Hampton, by imported Aysgarth, dam by Charley Ball (N. Richardson) 2

Mary Louise	110	380	550	900
Defender	60	210	340	600
Arizona	25	100	190	300
Pennock	10	41	45	170

THE RACE.

Mary Louise was away first, Frank Hampton second, Defender third, Pennock's colt fourth, Arizona fifth. Going up the fractional track Pennock's colt ran to the front, followed by Defender, the jockeys of both having instructions to make the running strong from the start. As the horses turned out of the shute into the regular track Pennock's colt was leading, Defender second, Frank Hampton third, Mary Louise fourth, Arizona fifth. Pennock's colt led around the lower turn two lengths, Defender second, two lengths ahead of Frank Hampton, who was four lengths ahead of Mary Louise and Arizona. There was no change as the horses came into the homestretch; but as they passed under the string at the stand Pennock's colt was three lengths in front, Defender second, one length ahead of Frank Hampton and Arizona, who were one length ahead of Mary Louise. Going around the upper turn good, strong running commenced and the horses closed up, and they passed around the upper turn one length apart in the order given above. There was no change to the quarter pole. On the backstretch Pennock's colt led half a length, Defender second, half a length ahead of Frank Hampton, Arizona close up, Mary Louise fifth. As they passed the half-mile pole Pennock's colt was one length in front of Defender, the latter led one length ahead of Frank Hampton, who was three lengths in advance of Arizona, the latter one length clear of Mary Louise. Pennock held the lead with great tenacity around the lower turn, Frank Hampton taking second place, Arizona being third, Mary Louise fourth, while Defender, having shot his bolt, retired to the rear. As the horses came into the homestretch a gallant struggle set in. Frank Hampton and Arizona soon beat Pennock's colt and seemed to have the race to themselves, when little Mary Louise, before the others appeared to realize the fact, was up with them, and as they passed under the wire a closer finish has not been seen. Mary Louise won the race by a head, Frank Hampton second, a neck in front of Arizona. Pennock's colt was fourth and Defender fifth. Time, 3:09.

The Races at Saratoga To-Day.

SARATOGA, August 20, 1872.

The races to-morrow will not be of a brilliant character. Three are on the programme, but Harry Bassett and Mary Louise run in one, and that is considered next to a walk over for the champion. The other two races are a hurdle race and a dash of three-quarters of a mile. The hurdle race will have four starters, and their relative value may be got at by the following pool sales:—Blind Tom, $65; Vesuvius, $68; Gayo, $41; O'Donnell, $32.

In the three-quarters of a mile Cape Race was the favorite, selling in the first pool for $280; Piedmont, $270; Ortolan, $205; Fanchon, $155; Eastern Star, $240; Lobelia, $35; Mollie McIntire, $45; Nema, $100; King Henry, $45.

There is no betting on Harry Bassett's race.

HAMPDEN PARK RACES.

Opening of the Fall Meeting of the Trotting Association—Fine Collection of Horses—Large Attendance—Comers Wins the 2:30, $1,200, Race—Splendid Trotting in the 2:26 Trial—Sleepy John Victorious.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., August 20, 1872.

The fall meeting of the Hampden Park Association commenced in this city to-day, at which there was a large attendance of spectators and professional turfmen, New York being well represented. The grounds have been put in fine order, and the stables are full of some of the best horses in the country, which have just closed their engagements at Buffalo and Utica. Previous to and between the heats of the races Gilmore's band, of Boston, performed a fine programme of music.

THE FIRST RACE.

The first race was for horses that never beat 2:30, for a purse of $1,250, for which the entries were as follows:—W. C. Morrison's gray stallion Rival, Northrup S. Martin's cream gelding Mystic, E. G. Stratton's bay mare Kitty Bucke, N. Kelsey's brown mare Swits, J. K. Leavitt's sorrel gelding Starr, G. P. Carpenter's black mare Bram Keeney, D. Mace's gray gelding Marshall, J. J. Bowen's black gelding Comers, W. H. Jarvis' gray gelding Doubtful, M. Carroll's brown gelding Jubilee Lambert, D. M. Fiske's bay mare Charmer, G. M. Camp's black stallion Columbia Chief, S. F. Twichell's gray gelding Steyverson, J. L. Doty's cream gelding Sensation, Tom Foster's gray gelding Billy Platter. In the betting Comers was a favorite at $100 to $40 for Doubtful and $34 for the field.

First Heat.—There were ten starters, and they were given places in the following order:—Kitty Bucke, Swits, Mystic, Charmer, Columbia Chief, Jubilee Lambert, Comars, Stuyverson, Doubtful and Bram Keeney. The send-off on the second trial was a good one, and as they straightened themselves out at the first turn Comers went to the front, followed by Swits, Charmer, Lady Ross and Keeny. Soon after Swits fell back and Charmer broke, losing the second place, which she had taken while making the turn. Keeney went to the second place, Comers leading two lengths to the half; the others were strung out one after the other as they went to the head of the stretch, and Keeney got close to Comers; but Bowen would not let him come nearer, the latter winning under a steady pull in 2:34¾.

Second Heat.—On getting the word Steyverson was a little ahead and so he took a slight lead, but Comers very soon asserted his right to the first place by taking it. Doubtful was in the third place when the favorite led two open lengths to the quarter. Swits, Lambert and Chief were together, with Keeney well up to them. On the back side Mystic broke, and after taking a few jumps proceeded to indulge in a run, which only ended when the mile was completed, it appearing that Mr. Doty could not hold her or did not want to. He ran alongside of Camers for some distance, but the latter did not appear to mind it, only to trot faster. Doubtful went to the second place at the head of the stretch, but Camers won the heat easily in 2:32¾, Mystic being shut out for running.

Third Heat.—On getting the word Steyverson and Doubtful went off together, but Camers went to the front before the first turn was reached; on the back side Doubtful made a break and Swits took the second place, and having got so much he gave Camers a good race for the lead, but the latter had speed to spare and won by an open length in 2:30¼. The following is a SECOND RACE.

The second race was for a purse of $2,500, for horses that never beat 2:26; mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and for which the following entries were made:—J. Cambpell's bay stallion H. W. Genet; J. W. Page's chestnut gelding Clarence; G. N. Ferguson's black gelding James H. Burke; M. Roden's bay gelding George; G. Ellis' gray gelding Gray Eddy; William Briggs' bay mare Lady Ross; J. J. Bowens' gray mare Sea Foam, S. H. Dore's bay mare Grand Duchess, D. Mace's bay gelding Sleepy John, J. Murphy's bay gelding Charley Green, T. Foster's bay stallion Dauntless, T. S. Carpenter's bay mare Lydia Thompson. Sleepy John was a favorite, selling for $50 to $35 for Genet, and $46 for the field.

First Heat.—Burke, Lady Ross and George did not appear, the first named having dropped dead while at the Buffalo meeting. The favorite was lucky enough to draw the pole, Grand Duchess outside, the others sandwiched in between, while Scanning Clarence had his sulky broken down, and when a new one had been procured he appeared unsteady, and, with Gray Eddy, received a poor start. As the horses went towards the first turn Sea Foam took the lead, followed by Duchess, Dauntless, Genet, John and the others in the rear. On the back side Duchess and Dauntless changed places, and quit before getting to the half. John shook Genet and soon after did the same by the two D.'s. Mace then sent his horse around the upper turn at a tremendous rate, and although the mare stood in for a while she left her feet half way down the stretch, and John won the heat by a length. Sea Foam did not get to her gait until she crosed the score and was placed third; Genet second. Time, 2:25¾.

Second Heat.—Just after getting the word Green and Ganet came together, causing some little excitement, which made Dan Mace pull back very suddenly so that he did not get to his speed until Grand Duchess went to the front by two or three lengths. Genet was also pulled, while Dauntless, who was on the outside, took the second place, Thompson third, and Genet fourth. At the half Duchess had two lengths' advantage, and Mace was in a pocket from which he could not get out until he began to make the last turn, and then it did not avail him anything, for Duchess kept the lead, winning by an open length in 2:26¼; Dauntless second, Genet third.

Third Heat.—As soon as the word was given Duchess and Dauntless had a brush for the lead, ending in a victory for the first-named. Early in the heat it looked as though the favorite had had enough of it, and do the best he could Dan could not persuade John up to the front. It seemed to be Genet's turn, for at the quarter he began to speed and trotted the second quarter very fast, first getting to Duchess' wheel, and afterwards out-trotting her, taking a lead which he never lost during the remainder of the heat, although both Duchess and Dauntless gave him a lively race nome. Sea Foam acted as though she wanted to see the stable, and she had her wish gratified, for when Genet ran by an open length she was outside the flag. Time, 2:26¼.

Fourth Heat.—Mace got a good send-off in this heat, and, although he was on the outside of the track, he took the lead before the turn was made, followed by Duchess and Dauntless. At the quarter Genet was the fifth horse, and he could not better his place, while Lydia Thompson took her turn, and at the half-mile pole was second and well up to John. Dauntless was a good third, and at the upper turn got to Thompson's wheel, but the latter shook him off; Gray Eddy and Clarence were in the rear and kept there, John keeping on and winning by a length, Thompson second, and breaking on the stretch. Time, 2:24¼.

Fifth Heat.—The betting took another change, John being favorite at $50 to $12 for the field. When they were given the word Thompson showed in front, but it was only for an instant, as John obtained a good send-off, and before the turn was reached took the lead. At the half he broke for the first time in the race, and Thompson again took the pole, followed by Dauntless. John trotted the third quarter fast, but at the head of the stretch he got into a pocket, and when he pulled out Thompson was far enough ahead to win the heat in 2:26¼ by a short length, Dauntless second, John third.

Sixth Heat.—Genet showed signs of illness in the last heat, and permission was given to draw him, and the same privilege was granted to Dauntless and Green. The New Yorkers stuck to John, and he was a favorite at five to one. He showed the others the way around the course its entire length, although on the homestretch Lydia pressed him so closely that any mistake would have been fatal. He did not make any, however, and won by a length in 2:28; Thompson second, Duchesse third. The following is a

THE JERSEY BIRMINGHAM.

Opening of the Newark Industrial Exhibition.

A Successful Show—The Rink in Its "Best Bib and Tucker"—Music and Speeches—A Choice Collection of Hardware, Software, Stoneware and All Sorts of Wares.

The much-talked of and long looked for Industrial Exhibition, composed exclusively of local manufactures, was formally opened in Newark last night, under auspices most favorable. The Rink, a large, commodious wooden building originally built for skating purposes by one Bechtel, of Milwaukee, and a pair of newly built adjoining buildings were gaily decked off with flags, and were brilliant with gas jets. As a matter to be expected the arrangements in the interior are not complete yet, nor will they probably be for a couple of days, but still there are enough specimens of fine workmanship on hand now to warrant the statement that the exhibition is sure to prove a success as far as the show goes. In the matter of drawing a crowd last night it was also a success. There were present from two thousand to twenty-five hundred persons. An officer of the exhibition in his enthusiasm set the number down at 4,000. The display consists of harness, cutlery, machinery, woodwork and a hundred other articles of general and domestic use. The handsomest thing in the whole building is a soda water fountain, brought from New York. It is a beauty.

THE OPENING EXERCISES.

About eight o'clock the exercises of the opening proper were commenced. After music by the band, more music by the band, a prayer of great fervency, but inaudible to ninety-nine hundredths of those present, by a venerable clergyman, Rev. Dr. A. M. Brinsmade, a retired Presbyterian divine, and more music by the band, the introductory address was delivered by ex-Governor Marcus L. Ward, President of the Exposition Association. As it was with the prayer so it was with the speech—not one person in a hundred present could distinguish a word uttered, owing to the tramping of the crowds up stairs and down stairs and around the crooks and corners of the building. Happily for the history of the enterprise and for the ex-Governor's admirers he had taken the precaution, not only to reduce his ideas to paper, but to have them printed in advance in slips for the use of the press representatives. In the course of his remarks the ex-Governor dwelt at some length on the character of Newark as a manufacturing centre. He said those familiar even with its industries would be astonished at the variety and beauty of the exhibition, and that it was stated that over three hundred different branches of manufactures were carried on in the city, and it was not too much to say that each of the varied list stood in the front rank as to quality. Not only were the wares of Newark sought for largely in our own country, but in some instances they were abroad as well. Nor was Newark wanting in a love for the fine as well as the useful arts. The streets trodden by the mechanic were not unfavorable to the artist. It was not thought enough to produce an article that would sell, but an article also that would reflect credit on the city and the manufacturer, and so command increased business. He closed by urging wise laws, which would foster and protect the home industries of Newark. Then, after a few airs by the band, came General Runyon with his prepared address. As the people still kept circulating and doing everything but what they ought to do—listen to the eloquence of a favorite local orator—and as the General did not copy the example of Mr. Ward and have his speech set in type in advance, the reporters were compelled to strain their auricular powers or wait till the address was concluded and then "boil down" the manuscript. As near as the HERALD representative could catch his words, the General went into an elaborate review of the industrial history of Newark, giving statistical information of interest on the various branches in which its artisans are engaged. In conclusion, through every year of its existence, Newark has added to its importance and reputation as a manufacturing city, until it has attained to its present rank. It will continue to prosper. The bent given to it by the industrious and God-fearing people who laid its foundations it is destined to maintain. The enterprise which we inaugurate to-day marks an era in its progress and is in itself an achievement. It points us to the source of our strength, our self-reliance and appreciation of the value and dignity of labor."

SUPPOSED WIFE MURDER.

A Woman Supposed To Have Been Kicked to Death by Her Husband—The Latter Arrested.

On Thursday last Dr. Wade, of West Nineteenth street, reported at the Twentieth street police station that a woman named Margaret Cosgrove, aged thirty-five years, was lying in an insensible condition at No. 220 Ninth avenue. He reported the woman to be covered with bruises and contusions all over her person, and was of the opinion, from information obtained of the other inmates of the house and several neighbors, that her husband Philip had assaulted her and left her in her present condition.

Dr. Kemp, Deputy Police Surgeon, was notified of the above facts, and upon visiting the house also became convinced that the husband was the party who had thus brutally assaulted the unfortunate woman. Upon reporting his suspicions at the station house Detective Perkins was detailed to investigate the matter and arrest Cosgrove. He succeeded in capturing him Monday evening, and locked him up until yesterday morning, when he was conveyed before Justice Ledwith, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, on a charge of felonious assault and battery.

The critical condition of Mrs. Cosgrove being explained to the magistrate the prisoner was remanded to the station house to await the result of the injuries. Mrs. Cosgrove remained in an insensible condition until ten minutes after nine o'clock last night, when death put an end to her sufferings. Cosgrove, from the time of his arrest up to the present, stubbornly insists upon being not guilty of having even laid his hands on his wife, although the evidence of the neighbors strongly points to his guilt. The Coroner has been notified of Mrs. Cosgrove's death, and will hold an inquest on her body to-day.

A GROSS OUTRAGE BY NEGROES.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 20, 1872.

The house of Job F. Angell, an old and wealthy citizen of North Providence, was entered by two negroes between twelve and one o'clock this morning. Mr. Angell's daughter, Mrs. Francis M. Brown, of Brooklyn, was first awakened and made the outcry, when one of the negroes beat her in the face shockingly and attempted to choke her to silence. Mrs. Angell, an old lady, heard the alarm and went to her daughter's assistance, when one of the robbers shot her with a pistol, the ball passing through the breast and through the fleshy part of the arm. Mr. Angell, who is partially a cripple, raised a cry to have his gun brought, when the robbers fled without any plunder. Neither of the ladies is fatally injured.

DR. HOUARD, THE AMERICAN CITIZEN IMPRISONED by Spain, arrived in this city from Cadiz yesterday. His story of Spanish brutality will be read in to-day's HERALD with a sensation of disgust and shame—disgust that it could be carried out by a people pretending to civilization, as the haughty bloodthirsty Spaniards do; shame that it was allowed to endure for nineteen months by a powerful government like that of the United States. Dr. Houard intends presenting his claim against Spain for the loss of his property and business in Cuba, and it will be only common justice for America to insist on its payment.

THE SUCCESS OF THE NEW SHIPPING ACT IN BOSTON.—Landsharks in Puritanical Boston are just as voracious as they are in the metropolis, and accordingly were just as indignant at the prospect of being deprived of their prey by the operations of the new law in regard to shipping and paying off seamen. There, as here, they contended that their rights were invaded by the act, and asserted their intention to prevent its enforcement. It is, therefore, specially gratifying to hear that the government shipping agency is there as entirely successful as here, and the operation of the law eminently satisfactory to the friends of poor Jack. In a little more than a week there have been shipped at the Boston office fifty-six crews, and seventeen crews paid off. The harpies who lived by pandering to the vices and taking advantage of the weakness of the sailor find no opportunity to ply their vocation, and the jolly tars make contracts while sober, able to exercise their judgment, and receive their hard-earned wages under circumstances favorable to making a prudent use of them. For the inception of this beneficent law the sailors are indebted to the Ladies' Seaman's Friends Society, of San Francisco. It was drafted by a lady of that city to counteract the effect of a combination of sailors' boarding house keepers for systematically fleecing the credulous tars. Under its operations "shanghaeing" is effectually prevented, and a sailor's money has a chance to be usefully applied instead of being gobbled from men too drunk to appreciate its value.

New York Politics—The Republican State Convention—An Exciting Contest Before Us.

The republicans of New York, in State Convention, assemble at Utica to-day. The importance to the party of the assemblage and its proceedings can hardly be exaggerated, for the business before this Convention embraces a ticket of Presidential electors, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, a Congressman at large, a Canal Commissioner and a State Prison Inspector, and a platform for our November contest on our national, State and municipal affairs. The Convention will, no doubt, be a harmonious body, inasmuch as the Fenton-Greeley republicans have cut loose from the Grant republicans, and have thrown out the reform banner, seconded by the democracy, under the lead of the liberal coalition Presidential ticket of Greeley and Brown, and inasmuch as the necessities of the administration republicans will admit of no more divisions or dissensions in the party camp.

As the probable candidate of this Convention for Governor, George Opdyke, General John C. Robinson, of Broome, W. H. Robertson, of Westchester, and William A. Wheeler, of Franklin, have been mentioned; General Dix and E. D. Morgan having both declined. Last night Robinson's chances appeared best, and his friends believe he will give strength to their State and their Presidential electoral ticket. We presume that in this view of strengthening the cause of the party on local and national affairs these delegates in council at Utica will bring one of their best men to the front for every position for which they are charged with the selection of the party standard bearer. It appears to be understood that Lyman Tremain will be nominated for Congressman at large against the powerful alliance of democrats and liberal or anti-Grant republicans, and their candidate, who will doubtless be one of their very strongest men. Again, it is surmised that General Dix will be put at the head of the administration ticket of Presidential electors, and that the whole list will be carefully selected with reference to their local and general popularity. In short, it may be safely assumed that in all its nominations this Utica Convention will be remarkably careful to present an acceptable front to the people of this great Commonwealth on State and national affairs for this important State and national contest before us, as they have the personal popularity of Mr. Greeley to contend against and the serious breach in their ranks to consider, and hence must leave no point unguarded if they do not intend to suffer New York to go by default.

Next, the Convention in question will have to consider the platform upon which this double battle, or two battles in one, will have to be fought. The national branch of this platform will, of course, embrace a hearty endorsement of General Grant's administration, the usual stereotyped allusions to his retrenchments of the national expenditures, his reductions of the national debt and of the national taxes, and the establishment in practice of the principles of civil and political equality under his administration, notwithstanding the awkward fact of military law and white oppression in the Southern States, and so on. We may also have, in this connection, some "glittering generalities" on the Alabama claims and the redeeming virtues of arbitration as the proper method of settling international disputes; and we may have a word or two for "Buncombe" on civil service reform, though we do not expect much vain boasting of the distinguished achievements of the administration in reference to either Spain, Cuba or Mexico. It will suffice that our national affairs in this Republican State Convention will put its best foot foremost for General Grant, and will leave no stone unturned calculated to weaken Mr. Greeley as the Presidential champion of the anti-administration republicans and their democratic allies.

But on our State and city affairs, and on the paramount local question of city reform, we shall look with the most lively interest for the declarations and the promises of this Utica Convention. It will be curious to observe what can be said about legislative and municipal reform by a party which last fall elected a State Senate whose Clerk was turned out of office for corrupt practices, and one of whose members, after being convicted of having received money favors from the Tammany and Erie Rings amounting to many thousands of dollars while holding a seat in the State Senate, was yet suffered to retain the position of Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. We shall probably learn something from the Convention about the threat made by Senator Tweed that if the republican Senators dared to vote for his expulsion from that body he would prove that he had purchased a majority of them time and again, and shall at last discover whether this was the reason their pledge to expel him was not redeemed. We may also expect to receive some explanation of the defeat of the reform measures brought before the Legislature after the reformers had succeeded in organizing the Assembly as they desired, and while they had more than a four-fifths majority in both branches of the Legislature and were thus in a position to override any Executive veto and to crush out all opposition. It is necessary, too, that the Convention should furnish the people with some information in regard to the suits against the Tammany officials, and as to why they have not been more vigorously prosecuted. It is true a State officer recently sought to explain the singular delay by the statement that it was not desirable to try the criminal indictments against the dishonest officials and their fellow conspirators before Judge Cardoza or Judge Barnard; but as these Judges have not been on the bench for some time, and as certainly one, if not two, terms of the Oyer and Terminer have been presided over by Judge Ingraham, the excuse is scarcely valid. It will be well for the Convention to explain why these cases were not moved at the last term of the Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Ingraham, and to pronounce strongly in favor of their trial the first week of the October term before Judge Brady, in view of the fact that some unpleasant rumors of a compromise and alliance with the old Tammany leaders in this city in the approaching election are afloat on the air. If these rumors are weak inventions of the enemy it will be necessary to prove them to be such, for the people will not forget that for some reason or another many republicans who made such loud professions in favor of reform before the last election proved false to their pledges after election, and they will require something more than words to induce them to put their faith in political reformers hereafter. A denunciation of the Senate and Assembly of last year, a protest against the renomination of any republican Assemblyman who was at Albany last winter, a request to all the republican Senators who hold over another year to resign their seats and suffer a new Senatorial election to take place—this, and little short of it, will satisfy the people that the republican party, as now constituted, is not responsible for the failure of the reform demanded by the people last November, and is not ready to again betray the cause it then advocated. Let the Republican Convention do this, and it may again stand before the people as the champion of honest government. After the experience of last winter it will be idle for the republicans to attempt to set aside this reform issue by the mere reiteration of the cry of "Tammany! Tammany!" against an opposition party headed by such democrats as Belmont, Tilden and Schell.

In its action on this and on all other matters, the Convention must not lose sight of the fact that it is admitted by the republicans that the New York battle of last November will not be the battle of this coming November; that all the conditions and the issues between the belligerent forces are changed, and that there are no precedents and no election returns by which we can measure or anticipate the results of our coming election. The bolt of the liberal or anti-Grant republicans from the administration camps, and the union of the democrats with them on their Cincinnati candidates and resolutions, give us a new opposition departure and a new contest in this State and throughout the Union to which the figures of none of our past elections will apply. The republicans at Utica know that their party in this State is weakened by the loss of Mr. Greeley and his numerous republican followers; but they do not know that General Grant has been strengthened, or will be, by democratic Bourbon reinforcements, though his party leaders and journals profess to believe that their democratic recruits will outnumber their republican deserters.

Mr. Freeman Clarke, the able and clear-headed republican Congressman from our Twenty-eighth district, has expressed the opinion to a HERALD correspondent that the November result in this State will depend almost entirely upon the State ticket; that the republican party is just now in such a condition that it will require the utmost caution and good judgment to prevent a serious break, because all the republicans of the State are by no means of the same mind about certain matters with which the administration has had everything to do. Referring to the split between Senators Conkling and Fenton, Mr. Clarke further expresses the opinion that, from the present outlook, "if General Grant does not carry New York he will have a tight pull of it." This idea will, no doubt, so impress itself upon this Utica Convention as to compel it to do the very best that it can do in candidates and principles, national and local, to secure the State. We know, on the other hand, that, in view of the closeness of the contest in other States, New York may turn the balance one side or the other; and we have thus the impelling motive on both sides for the most exciting and desperate contest we shall have had in New York since the closely contested and doubtful battle of 1844 between James K. Polk and Henry Clay.

In the interval to November we shall have the Maine election and the Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Nebraska State elections, which will go far to determine or to modify the results in New York. In the meantime the organization of our State contest between the opposing parties will draw the lines closely between them. The republicans of Utica open the ball to-day, and the democrats and liberal republicans will meet to give them battle on the 4th of September at Syracuse; and we now await the candidates and the platform of the Utica Convention.

The Question of Bread in the Irish Metropolis.

From Ireland we have news of the sudden presentation of a fresh social difficulty in the shape of an agitation for bread in the metropolis. The journeymen bakers of Dublin have gone out on strike for higher wages. The masters refuse to comply with their demands, and hence the daily production of the supply of the staff of life has ceased. This fact has troubled the stomachs of the people vastly, and the fair ladies of the ancient and renowned municipality have become deeply irritated under the infliction. Good humored and kind by nature, the Dublin women sympathize with the "boys who are in trouble," and demand that the bosses shall pay them just what they ask, or, at least, "trate the poor cratures fairly." In the meantime the children are crying for a "bit of loaf," and the family glee of the tea-kettle sounds sadly through the cellars of the Liberty. Attacks on the bread shops are feared. This is just where the serious aspect of the news comes in. The journeymen bakers of Dublin possess, as a rule, very light hearts with light pockets, but they manage to get along fairly. Combination and riot have ever ended badly for the leaders of such movements in Ireland. The action has rarely originated in Ireland, but its exciting elements have been imported frequently and have often become foreign nuisances in the land. Sydney Smith's advice to the Irish people—"Erin-go-Bragh!" Nonsense; let the cry be, "Erin-go-bread-and cheese! Erin-go-pantaloons without holes in them!" may be completely vindicated in Dublin.

TWO PRINCES AMONG US AT THE PRESENT TIME indicate that the Great Republic, with its marvellous growth and progress, its vastness and other attractions to the traveller will soon be much more visited by the titled and wealthy of other lands. Prince Augustus of Coburg-Gotha, son-in-law of Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, trod the soil of the United States yesterday for the first time. In another part of the HERALD will be found an interesting interview with that royal personage which will gratify many in its announcement of Brazilian friendliness to our nation. His brother, Prince Philip of Coburg-Gotha, arrived from Europe yesterday, and although the latter has travelled previously through the Union, he will accompany his brother in an extended tour over the West.

The Irish Riots in Belfast.

A series of cable telegrams, dated in Dublin and London, enables us to report in the columns of the HERALD to-day the progress of the Irish riots in Belfast during the hours which intervened from the date of the latest despatches on Monday to the moment of five o'clock yesterday evening, and also to present to our readers the efforts which were made by the authorities for the suppression of the lawless movement. The chronicle contains, of course, an account of the scenes which were witnessed during the night from midnight of the 19th to the morning of the 20th instant. The record has a variable aspect, particularly when it is read in the light of morality and with a due sense of respect for social order and its maintenance. We behold in it the savage instinct of the uneducated and abandoned prompting a demoralized fraction of an otherwise respectable and decorous community to the commission of the most outrageous acts of violence against property and even against life itself. We see that the exciting cause of this action was a desire for public plunder; an unreasoning wish to subject the savings and household means of their more industrious neighbors to the seizure and subdivision rules of an extemporized communism which was presented to the hearts and eyes of a half-drunken mob under the attractive garb of religion, stitched up here and there with the warp of extra loyalty to the Crown and constitution. Primed and inspired from these sources, and with such motives, the Belfast rioters proceeded to plunder stores, to sack and gut dwellings, to display and use loaded firearms in the thoroughfares and to indulge in a regular Donnybrook Fair saturnalia, with the difference, however, that all the amusing and playful national traits of the time-honored market festival were wanting and apparently forgotten. There was no "going into a tent to spend half a crown," and then meeting a friend and "for love knock him down," in this Belfast fray. It was dark in its inception and entirely foreign to the Irish character in its mode of execution. The municipal authorities of Belfast stood paralyzed for a moment in face of it. They did not recognize it as an offshoot of the old factions fight stock, nor did they understand how it could result from the profession or practice of religion in a town where the temples of Presbyterians, Protestants, Roman Catholics, Methodists, oven of Arians, range in the peace-inspiring beauty of modern architecture almost side by side, and where the hierarchs, presbyters and preachers of all these different Christian denominations meet daily on terms of perfect equality and with a genuine, friendly, Irish greeting of salutation. Hence the municipality did not know, apparently, what to do. That grand curator of citizen interests, the sword, came to their relief. Martial law was proclaimed. The rioters heard the sound of the voice of order. They could not afford to despise it. They commenced to recede from their position in face of the military, and it is quite evident from the news this morning that the Irish riots in Belfast have been extinguished.

An almost ridiculous side of the story is shown in the small number of persons who have been injured, some three or four only being in the hospitals. Now will come the secondary consequences—arrests, committals to jail, bails, bonds, trials, judicial sentences and the penalties. Then Belfast will be peaceable again, and it may be that after the next general election her people will enjoy repose from the debauching efforts her local and itinerant politicians.

Fear of More Revolutionary Trouble in Spain.

The telegraphic news from Madrid represents more revolutionary trouble brewing in Spain. The Cabinet Ministers and others have received warning of a probable outbreak of the partisans of ex-Queen Isabella. It is thought that this may lead also to renewed activity of the Carlists. The apprehension is sufficiently alarming to cause active preparations on the part of the government to meet the threatened outbreak. A local disturbance had occurred at Pampeluna between Carlists and liberals, when an attempt was made to assassinate the Mayor of that city. It is evident that Spain is still resting on a political volcano. Partisan revolutionary spirit, though apparently suppressed for a time, exists with all the intensity of the Spanish nature. The different monarchical claimants look upon the soil and people of Spain as their rightful property, just as a man does the cattle on his estate. These royal aspirants and intriguers have no patriotism. They want power and the revenues of the country only, and to obtain these would plunge Spain in revolution and slaughter the people like cattle. They do not seem to comprehend the progressive spirit of the age which is leading the nations to recognize the principle that governments must be based upon the will of the governed. The partisans of monarchy make a great outcry if the people rise to overthrow despotism and establish self-government, but have little to say when royalist scoundrels plunge a country into the horrors of civil war. Of all the parties in Spain the liberal republican party, of which Castelar is a distinguished representative, is the most respectable and most moderate. Looking at the conflicting elements of revolution in that country, we fear it has yet to go through a fearful ordeal. If the republicans behave wisely they may in the end overcome all the royalist factions, make Spain a republic and lay the foundation of a great future for their country.

PIUS THE NINTH AND THE ITALIAN ROYALTY.—A despatch from the Holy City states that Monsignor de Mérode, Grand Almoner to Pope Pius the Ninth, has been despatched to Brussels commissioned to make arrangements for the reception of the Pontiff in Belgium. Intelligence of this character has been conveyed to the world frequently, at intervals, since the occupation of Rome by the Italians was completed by the entry of His Majesty Victor Emmanuel to the capital of the consolidated nation. The Pope remains in the Vatican notwithstanding. It may be that he will suddenly fly from the Pontifical residence. We cannot see what good would come to the cause of the Church from such an event, and it is almost certain that Belgium would be deeply, if not dangerously, excited by the advent of the illustrious ecclesiastic to her soil in the character of a refugee from the centre of religious unity.

The Louisville Straight-Outs—Who Will Suffer from the Nomination of Charles O'Conor?

The letter of our Louisville correspondent, published to-day, gives an interesting account of an interview with Colonel Blanton Duncan, the moving spirit of the straight-out Bourbon Convention about to be held at Louisville for the nomination of Charles O'Conor as the candidate of the still unterrified democracy for President of the United States, and for the adoption of a platform on which all who are unwilling to vote for the liberal republican candidates can plant themselves and take part in the contest. Our correspondent finds Colonel Duncan full of energy and hope, loaded down with correspondence from old-line democrats, and strong in the faith that his pet Convention is going to be a great success. The responses pouring in from all States, and the earnest tone of the letters, many of which were examined by our correspondent, convince him that a strong undercurrent is running in favor of the Louisville movement; that it is not being laughed at by the whole people, and that it is very probable the Duncan raid may draw off enough of the democratic forces from the liberal republican and democratic coalition to defeat Greeley. Colonel Duncan kindly furnishes extracts from these letters, and hence we are the better able to judge of the temper of the writers and to form an intelligent idea of the effect the movement is likely to have on the prospects of the two real candidates actually in the fight.

We expressed the belief in a former notice of this straight-out convention strategy that it might in the end be found to be more damaging to those who have helped it to a success than to their opponents. This belief is strengthened by the tone of most of the letters in Colonel Duncan's liberal collection, from which we have been favored with quotations, and we suppose these are fair specimens of the whole correspondence. In nearly every instance the writer, in his energy, makes it apparent that, while he desires a strict party ticket to vote for, he would, under no conceivable circumstances, support Greeley, but if driven to choose between the two candidates should prefer Grant. We give Colonel Duncan credit for full sincerity when he declares his conviction that if the Bourbons succeed in getting eight hundred and fifty thousand votes it will be "enough to beat Greeley to smash;" but we would remind him that if these votes were cast for President Grant instead of being thrown away on Charles O'Conor they would count exactly double, or seventeen hundred thousand, and make the result he desires all the more certain. In order to convince him and all who are looking to this Bourbon movement only as a means of defeating the liberal republican candidates, we quote from Colonel Duncan's correspondents. The first is from an old farmer of Illinois, who says:—"We democrats in this part of the country cannot support that life-long abolitionist, Horace Greeley, for President of the United States. We think General Grant the best man of the two, but we want a straight ticket to vote for, and we hope the Louisville Convention will put out a good democrat." Well, if a "good democrat" should not be in the field it is evident that this Illinois farmer and his friends would vote for President Grant, and not for Greeley; so, as far as they are concerned, the Louisville Convention would damage the party that has been looking to it for aid. A letter from the editor of a North Carolina paper, published at Charlotte, states that the conservatives failed to elect their Governor because "five thousand democrats refused to vote with the party endorsing Greeley." These five thousand votes, then, would be given to Grant in the Presidential election, and not to Greeley, if a straight-out democratic ticket should not be in nomination. A citizen of Douglas county, Illinois, writes that the feeling among his friends is "one of intense disgust with the action of the Baltimore Convention," and hence they would hail with delight the nomination of Bourbon candidates. A Salem (Mass.) democrat is strong in his desire for straight-out nominations. "Present a straight democratic ticket to the country," he says. "Grant is bad enough, but Greeley is the scum of all rascality—the most infernal liar, the most dangerous cuss," &c. It is clear who our Salem friend would vote for if he could not give his vote to Charles O'Conor. A Mississippi lawyer "wants the record of Greeley," and finds plenty of citizens "who cannot and will not support Greeley." A gentleman from Culpepper, Va., cannot conceive how any democrat can endorse Greeley, and says, "As for myself, I will not vote for him." He would no doubt prefer Grant as a choice of evils.

Some of Colonel Duncan's correspondents are yet more emphatic. "I was in the Confederate service four years, a major," writes a Professor of Latin in a Missouri college, "and I'll be —— if I vote for any such man as Horace Greeley." He would vote for Grant first, in the absence of a strongly flavored democrat. A red-hot Kentuckian is equally firm in his resolve never to support Greeley, and a Nebraska unterrified writes in bad English to the same effect. Now it seems evident that a very large majority of these straight-outs are so bitterly opposed to Greeley that unless supplied with a safety-valve in the shape of a Bourbon ticket they would burst right out in favor of Grant. This is precisely what they ought to do. The Louisville movement is a mere farce so far as a serious nomination of candidates with any view of success is concerned. No person pretends that it is anything more than a diversion, and the only question is as to which side it will help. The issue is fairly made between Grant and Greeley, and there is no reason why any other candidates should be in the field. Democrats who are convinced that Greeley is not a fit person to fill the office of President should insure his defeat by voting for General Grant, instead of risking his election by throwing away their ballots on a third candidate. The whole democratic organization and the whole democratic press have joined the liberal movement, and it is evident that the contest between Grant and Greeley is to be a close one. The effort to make any important break in the democratic ranks will be a failure, but individuals are at liberty to vote as their convictions prompt, especially at a time when old party lines are so completely obliterated. A third ticket is only a subterfuge, and no man in this contest should hesitate to take a decided position and to vote directly for President Grant if he believes his election necessary for the welfare of the nation.

OBITUARY.

Captain Henry K. Davenport, U. S. N.

A despatch received at the Navy Department from Minister Washburne at Paris, dated August 9, announces the death of this gallant officer as occurcurring at Carlsbad, in Bohemia, on the 8th inst. Captain Davenport was in command of the United States steamer Congress, on the European station, and the announcement of his being taken with severe illness was reported from Southampton some months since. It was thought advisable to remove the patient to Carlsbad, where a course of the waters, it was hoped, would effect a recovery. Captain Davenport's system, however, could not rally, and he sank gradually until the end came. Mr. Davenport was born at Savannah, Ga., in 1820, and entered the naval service as a midshipman on the 19th of February, 1838, making a total of over thirty-four years' service of his country. At the breaking out of the war he ranked as lieutenant, and was then serving on board the steam sloop Susquehanna. Unlike so many of his fellow officers of Southern birth Mr. Davenport remained true to his allegiance, and exhibited throughout the war the highest qualities as a naval officer. During a portion of the conflict he commanded a squadron of gunboats on the Missi[illegible] with the rank of commander, and was plac[illegible] command of the Lancaster (second rate) befo[illegible] close of the war. In 1866 he was appointed N[illegible]tion and Equipment Officer at the Washington Yard, and afterwards on ordnance and specific at the Navy Department, where he remained unta[illegible]dered on active service in command of the Con[illegible] (second rate) in 1871. In 1868 he was promot[illegible] the grade of captain. The Congress, under command, first accompanied Captain Hall's Expedition to Greenland, where the little Polaris was finally equipped for its perilous voyage. The Congress then returned to New York and became the flagship of Vice Admiral Rowan in the squadron which welcomed the Archduke Alexis to America in November last. Captain Davenport's last feat at sea was convoying the Cuban filibuster Hornet from Port au Prince to the United States, when he sailed for Europe to join the squadron under the command of Rear Admiral Alden. In the death of Captain Davenport the naval service loses an able and distinguished officer. In Washington circles and elsewhere his demise will be regretted by a large circle of friends as that of a genial and refined gentleman. He was married to a Washington lady, a Miss Graham. His eldest son, R. G. Davenport, is an ensign in the navy.

Emetrio Regunaga.

By the mail from Montevideo, South America, we are informed that Dr. Emetrio Regunaga, the late Minister of Government and ex-member of the Superior Court of Justice, died at that place on the 16th of July. He was universally esteemed by foreigners as well as natives, and ranked as a true patriot of acknowledged ability.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Rear Admiral Joseph T. Green assumed command of the North Atlantic Squadron yesterday, and raised his flag upon the flagship of the squadron, the Worcester, lying off the Boston Navy Yard. The flag was saluted by Rear Admiral Steedman, in command of this station, with thirteen guns, to which the Worcester replied with a similar salute. The Worcester will probably sail next week for the headquarters of the North Atlantic Squadron.

The United States despatch boat Wasp, Commander Quackenbush, sailed from Montevideo for Asuncion, Paraguay, July 15, conveying the United States Minister, Hon. J. L. Stevens.

WASHINGTON, August 20, 1872.

The United States steamer Wyoming was at Aspinwall on the 7th of August, with all well on board. The officers and men who had been detailed to take care of the Edgar Stewart had been withdrawn from that vessel.

The United States steamer California, now at Panama, has been ordered to San Francisco. The Ossipee arrived at Valparaiso on the 6th of July and was expected to leave on the 11th for Rio, en route for Boston.

The Pensacola was at Callao on July 25th.

Naval Orders.

Lieutenant Commander Henry Lee Johnson, Lieutenant Henry Wheeler and Master Charles Seymour have been ordered to torpedo duty.

Captain Alexander H. Rhind has been ordered to command the Congress in the place of Captain Davenport, deceased. He will soon take passage to join his vessel.

Paymaster Tuttle, of the Lackawanna, has been detailed as astronomer of the surveying force in the Pacific under the command of Commodore Skerrett. The object of the expedition is the surveying of such parts of the Pacific as is requisite to make a perfect chart for the use of ships.

FIRE IN THOMPSON STREET.

Last night fire was discovered in the basement of the three story brick building, 102 Thompson street, the first floor of which is occupied by Frederick Figge & Bro., as a lard establishment, causing a loss to stock of $500; insured in the Ætna of Hartford for $2,000. The second floor occupied by John McCarten as a laundry, was damaged $200 on stock; insured in the Springfield, Pacific and St. Nicholas for $2,000 each. Several parties who had goods on this floor sustained a joint loss of $300; fully insured. The building is owned by Mr. H. Andrews, of Rhode Island, and is damaged about $700; fully covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR AT STATEN ISLAND.

Last Sunday three residents of New York, named respectively John Still and Messrs. Van Sant, uncle and nephew, engaged a cat-rigged boat at Bay Ridge and sailed over to Staten Island. Upon her arrival at the lower landing, Staten Island, Mr. Still, whose father is engaged in the Seventh Ward Bank, while reaching forward in the boat to obtain a drink of whiskey out of a demijohn, fell overboard to rise no more. Yesterday Mr. Henriquez, of 40 Broad street, paid a visit to the Chief of Police of Staten Island, Captain Holbrook, and informed him that young Van Sant, aged twenty-one of 221 South street, had not returned to his home since Monday. Captain Holbrook commenced an investigation of the affair, and it is hoped that a solution may speedily be arrived at.

MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED.

The civic magistrates and borough representatives, having become convinced of their own inability to restore order, surrendered the control of the city into the hands of the military, thus practically establishing martial law.

The commanding officer of the Queen's troops issued a proclamation warning all quietly disposed citizens to remain in their houses, and stating that "every person found on the streets would be looked upon as a rioter and treated accordingly." All public houses received orders to close their doors and not to reopen them until permitted by the authorities.

It is the intention of the military authorities to resort to extreme measures to suppress the disorders.

The government of the Belfast municipality has been temporarily vested in four magistrates, with ample military reserves.

She was in Court yesterday and vehemently denied ever having been divorced from Byrne, claiming that she left him on account of her religion, and married Stoepel under the impression that Byrne had obtained a divorce from her.

Mr. Carpenter, an executor under the will, denies that she was the legal wife of the deceased, and claims that the debts due will absorb nearly the entire estate.

DARING JAIL BREAKERS.

CHICAGO, Ill., August 20, 1872.

A bold escape from the County Jail was made between eleven and twelve o'clock last night, by four young men, three of whom were awaiting trial for robbery and the other serving out a two years' term for attempting to kill a policeman. The prisoners had been supplied by friends outside with revolvers. One of them, who was allowed the privilege of the corridors, obtained possession of the cell keys while the Deputy Jailer in charge was sitting outside the jail and liberated his friends. When the jailer came in he was confronted by the four men, who pointed their cocked revolvers at his head and demanded the key of the outer door. Resistance was useless and the jailer gave up the key and the prisoners unlocked the door and walked off. They are all well known to the police and will probably be recaptured.

CHICAGO WHEAT CORNER.

Excitement and Tumult Among the Grain Dealers.

REPORTED FAILURES.

Large "Margins" Called In by Interested Parties.

CHICAGO, August 20, 1872.

J. B. Lyon & Co., who were originators and principal managers of the wheat corner, have ailed. The names of some twenty other individuals and firms are reported as unable to meet their obligations; but many of these, it is asserted by parties in a position to know, will be able to meet all liabilities as soon as they can get the matters in shape, hence an injustice might be done to solvent parties by publishing the list. At least twelve or fifteen firms have refused or been unable to put up margins, or so far as to settle differences; but matters are still in such confusion that it is difficult to ascertain positively who these parties are.

A prominent operator who has been, during the greater part of the time since the corner was established, a constant seller of wheat, yesterday afternoon called for margins to the amount of $100,000 from parties to whom he had sold. The total amount put up on the call was only $2,500. The losses of this operator will aggregate not less than $100,000, and this notwithstanding the fact that he was on the other side from the managers of the corner, and but for this failure to meet their obligations would have been largely ahead. There is an exceedingly bitter feeling among many members of the Board of Trade at the manner in which the Ring have conducted their business, as it is alleged that they drew many unsuspecting brokers to a financial ruin by inducing them to buy grain for them, representing, even after prices had dropped twenty-five cents per bushel, that they were still able and determined to carry the corner through the month and had allowed the prices to drop purposely.

A leading and thoroughly reliable merchant asserts that one leading member of the Ring came to him this morning and assured him that he had not failed nor was likely to, and wanted him to buy 100,000 bushels of wheat for them to-day. He at first consented, but immediately reconsidered the matter and refused, thereby saving himself $10,000.

Among the parties positively stated to have failed is Hugh Maher, whose recent irregularities in connection with the Iowa elevator have been the subject of much comment.

The market this afternoon on open board showed considerable firmness, and quite a number of buyers made their appearance. Prices advanced 2 a 3 cents; closed steady at $1 15 cash or seller August and $1 14 seller September. The receipts were again large to-day, 570 cars being inspected.

TERRIFIC STORM IN PENNSYLVANIA.

A Church Struck by Lightning and the Steeple Destroyed.

CATASAUQUA, Pa., August 20, 1872.

One of the fiercest thunder storms that have ever been known occurred in this neighborhood this afternoon, hurling destruction in every direction. The splendid Catholic Church of St. Lawrence had its steeple entirely destroyed and the roof damaged. The rectory had a very narrow escape. The church was first struck at four o'clock P. M. The storm still rages unabated (half-past six P. M.), with a fearful rain.

A FATAL HURRICANE NEAR WAWARSING.

KINGSTON, N. Y., August 20, 1872.

A terrific hurricane swept over a portion of the town of Wawarsing on Friday, between three and four o'clock P. M., taking a narrow strip near Lackawack. It mowed down all before it, trees, fences and buildings being taken up and carried away like feathers. The barn of W. H. Wager was struck and completely demolished. Three boys taking shelter from the storm were in it at the time, and one named John Cove was killed by the falling building. He was heard to say, "I am hurt," and died immediately. The other lads escaped uninjured. Other very extensive damage was done, barns and outhouses being blown over and many tons of hay and grain were destroyed. The typhoon passed so near Wager's house that a pear tree shading it was twisted from its roots and carried a considerable distance. A sleigh was lifted by the wind, the iron work was bent and twisted as if by herculean hands and the box carried half a mile. The hurricane passed towards Cape Pond, in a southerly direction, causing a large amount of damage.

AN ALLEGED KU KLUX MURDER.

ST. LOUIS, August 20, 1872.

Advices from Southeast Missouri state that Marion Weeks, the Postmaster at Rice Hill, Reynolds county, was shot and killed by an unknown party on Saturday last while watering his horse in Black River. The assassin was concealed in the brush on the bank of the river. It is alleged this is another Ku Klux case, it being asserted that Weeks was murdered because he had given information to United States Commissioner Sewort, at Ironton, regarding certain persons implicated in the whipping of Rev. Mr. Callahan some weeks ago. No arrests have yet been made.

MACE AND O'BALDWIN FIGHT.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 20, 1872.

A large crowd of sporting men left by the forty minutes past eleven o'clock train to-night on the Pennsylvania Railroad for Pittsburg, from which place they will cross into Virginia, where the fight between Mace and O'Baldwin will take place. Ropes and all the necessary apparatus went with the party.

THE COLD SPRING RACES.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., August 20, 1872.

This was the first day of the Cold Spring races. The weather was extremely warm and the attendance fair. The first race was for trotting horses that had never beaten 2:30; $500 to first, $250 to second. St. Elmo won, beating General Howard. Greenwich was distanced in the third heat.

Time, 2:38¼—2:35½—2:32¾.

The second race was for running horses, free to all, mile heats, best three in five. The following is the result:—

Fairfield	1	1	1
Conners	3	2	2
Protection	2	3	3

Time, 1:51—1:49¼—1:47¼.

MORE PARIS GREEN.

Coroner Keenan yesterday held an inquest at 324 East Twenty-sixth street over the remains of Mrs. Mary Leonard, twenty-nine years of age, and born in Ireland, who committed suicide by taking a dose of Paris green while laboring under temporary aberration of mind. Some weeks ago deceased lost $750, which she supposed was stolen from her, and such was her trouble of mind in consequence that reason seemed to be partially dethroned. Mrs. Leonard had threatened to her cousin, Elizabeth McMahon, that she would not live, and later, during the absence of her husband, Mrs. Leonard swallowed a dose of Paris green. Medical aid was summoned, but proved of no avail, and death subsequently ensued.

UTICA REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

An Immense Crowd of Administration Supporters "Pent Up."

SPECULATIONS BEFORE THE FIGHT.

Gubernatorial Candidates—The Three Ex's, Morgan, Opdyke and Dix.

General Dix Formally Withdraws His Name.

UTICA, N. Y., August 20, 1872.

Utica is crowded to-night. From all parts of the State radical republican delegates have arrived, to be present at the Convention to-morrow, which will nominate candidates for State officers. These are:—First, Governor and Lieutenant Governor; Congressman at large, Canal Commissioner, State Prison Inspector and a Presidential electoral ticket for the State. The excitement over the Gubernatorial contest is simply immense—not as regards any possible conflict on a choice, for conflict there will be none, but from the doubt which prevails as to who is the coming man. If the knowing ones were but just to reveal and come out with the fact who the preordained is, it would put an end to all the bothering calculations on which all not in the secret are intent. The lower floors of the political headquarters—Baggs' Hotel—are jammed with delegates, divided into knots and crowds, discussing the all-absorbing problem whether the choice of leaders of the Convention shall be ex-Governor Morgan, ex-Mayor Opdyke or ex-Secretary of the Treasury General Dix. There are Ex's enough to pick and choose from. Go from knot to knot of these political wiseacres and you retire from each with a Tantalus-like confusion of ideas as to which of the three named candidates is the favorite; for, strange to say, there appears to be

NO FAVORITE AMONG THEM,

but a sort of triple "Hobson's choice." That is, if they don't get Morgan, who, perhaps, has the most backers, they will be content with Opdyke, and in the event of neither of these being the choice of the leaders after the caucus had among them, they will put up with Dix. Now as to the popularity of each of these with the rank and file, it runs thus:—Admitting the undertow that renders a decidedly expressed opinion in favor of any of them a dangerous experiment for the federal office-holders, either present or prospective, and who, in fact, compose the majority of the delegations," in the first place, Morgan is the most popular because he appears to be the favorite with the leaders. His great backer is Thurlow Weed, who is still as eager to breast the political billows as ever. Cæsar was the billows of the Tiber; but Thurlow has a

SECOND CHOICE IN GENERAL DIX.

Now, as against his first choice, Morgan, it is secretly asserted that in the event of his nomination and election Thurlow will be the power behind the throne, and that one will go back again to the days of the old Albany Regency, and that all the federal patronage throughout the State, and your Custom House especially, would be at his disposal. This patronage is a terrible stumbling block, and is also the prize to be won in the gubernatorial race, and all who have an office to win or one to lose keep that main chance in view when advocating or opposing the pretensions of any candidate. Roscoe Conkling, however, is secretly adverse to Morgan, knowing full well, as he does, that Morgan would be able to compensate himself for all the jealousies and disappointments he has felt in as a dispenser of patronage for the last few years. There is, therefore, strong, but very unostentatious opposition to Morgan's nomination; but, as I said before, or insinuated, he left his name with his own consent to be presented to the Convention, and that body will "crook the pregnant hinges of the knee, where thrift may follow fawning." At this moment it is said that Thurlow and those whom he deigns to take into his counsel has telegraphed to Morgan to know his views. Now, what should be Morgan's objection? It is said to be this, that as Chairman of the Republican General Committee he has the handling of large amounts of election funds, and in the event of his accepting a nomination it might be charged against him that from these he would contribute largely to ensure his own success. So much for Morgan.

CONKLING'S SUPREMACY

AS TO DIX,

these straight-out radicals don't want him—an old-time democrat, and now at best but a liberal republican—and it would be like going into the camp of the enemy to get a leader. One thing is certain, the New York or Brooklyn delegation won't have him, while the vacillating county delegations have not the backbone to stand for him, though he would, perhaps, be the most acceptable of the three to them. He has some persons on the New York delegation like John H. Anthon, but nothing like enough to sustain a motion in his favor. Now, as to Opdyke. He stands, perhaps, highest of all with the city delegation—that is, with the Custom House and the revenue cliques, both on your side and the other side of the river. He is a true Fenton in the manner of his suave dealing with applicants for office, and to-day Tom Murphy's files in the Custom House would show more rejected applications for office signed by him for his friend this and his good republican friend that, than any score of men supposed to have equal influence in that direction. Surely if he was Governor he would remember all those old friends of his. Judge Robertson is out of the race; he can lay the flattering unction to his soul that he is of too much importance to the party in the Senate to remove him for the present, even to make him Governor.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

The only person at all talked about is A. B. Cornell. If he should get the nomination it will be as a citizen of Livingston county, he resigning Surveyor of the Port.

FOR CONGRESSMAN AT LARGE

Lyman Tremain, it is understood, will be unanimously nominated. Roscoe Conkling is on the fence. That is, he is sick, which means too indisposed to take any active part one way or the other in the contest which wages so near his own door, and in which, too, he is so largely interested.

EXCITEMENT INCREASES WITH FRESH ARRIVALS.

Tom Murphy, Opdyke, Barlow, General Arthur, John H. Anthon, Charles Spencer, Judge Robertson, Postmaster Jones and the full New York and Brooklyn delegation are all present. Everything now depends upon Morgan's reply to Thurlow Weed, whether he will accept the nomination. H. B. Claflin, who was favorably spoken of, has positively declined.

I might go on interminably giving you the moves on the political chessboard here, but that no positive result would or could be reached thereby.

THE LATEST RUMOR

in the lobby is that Morgan has declined, preferring to serve the party in his present position of Chairman of the Republican National Committee. A dinner caucus is now being held at Senator Conkling's, at which Opdyke, Cornell, Arthur and others are present. Thurlow Weed is now pressing hard for Dix, but meets with little encouragement. Judge Robertson is very popular, and moves among the masses, chatting freely and pleasantly upon his prospects whenever the subject is broached. A. H. Wheeler is also spoken of, but, it would appear, only to kill time; for, as I said before, the Convention will nominate the man whom the powers that be may present to-morrow. There has not been one single caucus held by any delegation. Indeed, they are all at sea, helplessly drifting about, waiting to be towed ashore to-morrow by the leaders and then to start for home. So far as the delegates are concerned in having an independent voice and urging the claims of a candidate of their choice, it will be the greatest farce of a convention that was ever held in the State.

General Dix Withdraws.

UTICA, August 20—Midnight.

Affairs political stand here now as follows:—General Dix has written a letter withdrawing his name from the canvass. That disposes of him. Senator Morgan has made no sign as yet, and should his delegation not receive a formal declination his name will be presented to the Convention and he be unanimously nominated. Should he, however, decline at the last moment the contest will be narrowed down as between State Senator Robertson and ex-Mayor Opdyke. The Robertson stock has gone up wonderfully to-night, and after all there may be some warm work for the Convention to-morrow.

UNION SOLDIERS' CONVENTION.

UTICA, N. Y., August 20, 1872.

The Soldiers' Convention met in the Utica Opera House at eight P. M. On motion Colonel William Bullard, of New York, was chosen temporary chairman. On taking the chair Colonel Bullard addressed the Convention at some length, thanking the Convention for the honor conferred upon him, and declared it to be the duty of the soldiers of the Union army to stand by their old commander, and to never agree to shake hands with the rebels over the chasm until they were willing to be loyal. He then referred to the disaffection in the republican party, and said there was no such disaffection among the soldiers. The address was received with much enthusiasm, and when the name of General Grant was mentioned the entire Convention rose to its feet and cheered lustily. Colonel A. D. Ketchum and Colonel L. D. Dudley were chosen temporary secretaries, and a Committee on Credentials was on motion appointed. A resolution was offered to appoint a Committee on Permanent Officers of the Convention and a plan for permanent organization—to consist of eight, one from each Judicial district.

A member moved to make the committee consist of one from each Congressional district. A discussion ensued, and it being intimated that there were not enough delegates present to select one from each Congressional district, the Chairman stated that the late trains had brought in a large number of delegates. Finally the question was put on increasing the committee to one from each Congressional district, and it was carried.

On motion of Colonel Murray a committee of eight to report resolutions, was adopted.

The Committee on Credentials then reported, the when it was stated that forty-one out of the sixty-one counties of the State were represented.

On motion it was then decided to leave the choice of permanent Chairman to the Convention, and Major General George H. Sharpe, of New York, was chosen.

General Sharpe then addressed the Convention at much length, pointing out the duty of the soldiers of the Union in the coming crisis, involving the honor of their old commander and the welfare of their country.

The following despatch was read dated Saratoga, August 20, 1872:—

To the PRESIDENT OF THE VETERANS' CONVENTION, care L. D. Dudley, Baggs Hotel:—

Kind greetings to our old comrades, and very sorry not to be able to be with you to-day. I wish you a happy reunion, and feel sure that the action of your Convention will be patriotic and wise. Yours in fidelity to the old flag.

A. E. BURNSIDE.

The Committee on Permanent Organizations was then named by the delegates from each Congressional district. General Charles H. Van Wyck was then introduced to the Convention by the Chairman, and he proceeded to speak of the political situation and the duty of the soldier. He criticised the new organization, which, he said, was sometimes called the democratic party. They want nothing said about the past. That was all very well. The man who steals, the incendiary, want nothing said about what they have done: but we cannot live and progress unless we look back at our history. The speaker proceeded at length to discuss the history of the democratic party and criticised the conduct of that portion of the republican party calling themselves liberal republicans in leaving the party with which they had acted to perpetuate the Union.

This speech excited the greatest enthusiasm and at its close three hearty cheers were given and a band of music played "Hail Columbia" and the "Star Spangled Banner."

The Committee on Resolutions then reported as follows:—

Whereas in 1868 the people of the United States, grateful to the distinguished soldier whose patriotism and generalship had brought peace to the country and discomfiture to her enemies, confident of his ability to preside over the nation in civil affairs as he had nobly led in our struggling against the rebellion, elected Ulysses S. Grant to the Presidency of the Republic;

Whereas a convention of the people with remarkable unanimity and enthusiasm, have placed the name of General Grant again in nomination for President of the United States; and, whereas we find marshalled on the side of an old commander in the present political contest, the hosts who were true to the country in her darkest hours contributing their means, their sympathies and their prayers; who never bowed the knee to the rebel power, nor in weakness and faint-heartedness trifled with the national honor while patriots were battling at the front to defend it; who know that eternal vigilance alone can preserve us from the restoration of rebels to power and place.

Resolved, That we have no sympathy with that political party which has among its most earnest supporters the Tammany democracy and the Ku Klux Klan; that we discover, in the present remarkable alliance between the enemies of republican institutions and the followers of Horace Greeley an attempt to wrest the government from the control of men of tried and undoubted loyalty.

Resolved, That we heartily approve of the nominees of the republican party for President and Vice President of the United States, and pledge to them our most earnest support. We believe that the man who led us to victory and the one who watched over us from his place as chairman of the Senate Military Committee and so carefully guarded our interests, are the best men to rely on for justice to our maimed comrades and the widows and orphans of those who sacrificed their lives in our late struggle for the preservation of the Union.

Resolved, That we are in full sympathy and harmony with the Republican State Convention about to assemble, and hereby pledge ourselves to give to the ticket it may nominate the same earnest support we gave to our imperilled country in her hour of danger.

Resolved, That we heartily approve of the proposition to establish a Soldiers' Home in this State, wherein the weary, worn and broken-down soldier may find a resting place in his declining years; and that we pledge our earnest support to measures looking to an appropriation by the State through which the Home may be fully and permanently established.

Resolved, That the Soldiers' and Sailors' organizations for each Congressional district are hereby requested to appoint three special delegates or representatives to the Pittsburg Convention, to be held on the 17th of September, and all the soldiers and sailors of the State are requested to attend that Convention in a body.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

General Stewart L. Woodford was then introduced to the Convention, and was received with three hearty cheers. General WOODFORD addressed the Convention. He said that on this occasion the soldiers ought to be here and nowhere else. As for the reconciliation so much spoken of, he said the soldiers of the Union wanted it and would struggle for it, but they wanted it based on justice, so that it might be lasting. He said the honor of their old commander had been assailed, and then proceeded to speak of the character of General Grant, alluding to a number of instances of his honor and unselfishness—his honorable action in returning to General Sherman his protest against his (Grant's) action, and his acknowledgment to Thomas after he had moved out from Nashville that he (Thomas) was right and he (Grant) was wrong. The speaker then proceeded to speak of the duty of the soldiers, and declared that they would now again fight it out on the line they had adopted.

The Committee on Permanent Organization of the Convention reported a number of vice presidents and also a number of secretaries, which report was agreed to. Also a resolution that a State Central Committee be appointed, to consist of one from each Congressional district, to have entire charge of the State organization, which was agreed to. The districts were, on motion, filled as far as it was possible to-night, as follows:—

Second, William A. Rowan; Third, E. C. Robinson; Fifth, Captain John E. Dowley; Sixth, Captain Chester D. Southworth; Seventh, General James C. Pinckney; Eighth, Major William H. Corsa; Ninth, Colonel George F. Hopper; Tenth, Colonel A. P. Ketchum; Twelfth, Captain J. T. Mater; Fourteenth, General George H. Sharpe; Fifteenth, Major Robert K. Oliver; Nineteenth, Colonel D. F. Ritchie; Twentieth, Captain Fox; Twenty-first, General J. E. Curtis; Twenty-second, John Beatie; Twenty-fourth, Captain John E. North; Twenty-seventh, Captain E. B. Geer; Twenty-ninth, Captain Henry R. Curtiss; Thirtieth, Samuel W. Brazier; Thirty-first, Captain William J. Morgan.

E. Delafield Smith was then called on and addressed the Convention at some length, chiefly on the recognition due the soldiers who fought for the perpetuation of the Union. He said that they were now called on to forget the great battles of the rebellion, and said, moreover, that whenever they were forgotten then Horace Greeley would be elected President and not till then.

The Convention then adjourned.

SENATOR CONKLING SERENADED.

After the Convention of the State Soldiers and Sailors had adjourned, the delegates, in company with many outsiders, proceeded to serenade Senator Conkling and the Hon. Ellis H. Roberts, member of Congress for this district. Each responded in short speeches, acknowledging the compliment, and alluded briefly to the national topics.

After the serenade guns were fired and great enthusiasm was manifested throughout the city.

VERMONT.

MONTPELIER, Vt., August 20, 1872.

The democrats and liberals met in joint convention to-day and nominated a mixed county ticket, with Homer Hatton, democrat, and C. W. H. Dwinnell, liberal republican, for State Senators. A proposition to maintain a distinct democratic organization was ignored, so the coalition is thorough and complete. The liberal republican strength in the State is estimated at about five thousand, and daily increasing. A. P. Gardner, democratic candidate for Governor, addressed the Convention this afternoon.

CONNECTICUT.

Meeting of the Republican State Convention To-day.

HARTFORD, Conn., August 20, 1872.

The Republican State Convention, for the nomination of an electoral ticket meets in this city to-morrow. A large number of delegates are already in the city. Among the names suggested for electors are Austin Dunham, of Hartford; Henry Farnham, of New Haven; Charles Benedict, of Waterbury; Henry P. Haven, of New London, and Lozeno Blackstone, of Norwich.

LOUISIANA POLITICS.

NEW ORLEANS, La., August 20, 1872.

James Lewis (colored), for Congressman at large, and Dr. Worrell, for Presidential Elector of the Second district, have been placed on the ticket of the Pinchback republicans by the Executive Committee, vice Judge Dibble and W. R. Fish, who have declined. Lewis is the nominee of the Custom House party for the same office.

GEORGIA DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

ATLANTA, Ga., August 20, 1872.

The straight Democratic Convention was held here to-day. Twenty-two counties out of 136 were represented. Delegates were appointed to the Louisville Convention and Charles O'Conor, of New York, was declared the preference of the Convention for President.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The Republican State Nominating Convention.

Arrival of the Delegates—The Nominations To Be Made—The Two Corrupt Rings and Their Candidates for Governor—Negro Delegates Offering Their Votes for Money—Chamberlain the Probable Nominee for Governor.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 20, 1872.

The city is crowded with delegates to the Republican State Nominating Convention, which meets to-morrow in the Senate chamber of the new State House. The officers to be nominated are Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Comptroller General, Attorney General, Superintendent of Education, Congressman at Large and seven electors for President and Vice President of the United States. A large majority of the delegates are negroes, and nearly every white republican in South Carolina is present. It was generally believed that the negroes desired some sort of reformation in the State government; but to-day I find that nearly every delegate came here as a matter of speculation to vote for the highest bidder. This is done openly, without any attempt whatever to hide their villany, and it was not uncommon to hear negroes ask each other on the streets who was offering the most money. The main interest of the Convention centres on the nomination for Governor, for which the two prominent candidates are Attorney General Chamberlain and Speaker Moses, of the House of Representatives. The former is a candidate of that has swindled the State over ten millions of dollars, and the latter is a candidate of the Legislative corruptionists and Blue Ridge Railroad ring. In the event of the nomination of either of these candidates the white people see no relief from the fraudulent debt and heavy taxation by which they are now encumbered, and they recognize in the election of either a continuation of the old ring operations under a new name. Chamberlain is now a member of the Financial Board, and in common with Scott and the Treasurer is equally responsible for the over issue, of bonds, and Moses is regarded as still more infamously concerned in the swindles than Chamberlain. It is stated that the administration at Washington favors a reform ticket, which would be successful in overthrowing the thieving ring that now has control of the State, but this is an impossibility, as the ring spend their money lavishly and will still control the State. Another feature is that suits are about to be instituted against Scott and others in the courts here, and if some of the ring are not in power it is more than probable they will terminate their careers in the State Penitentiary.

THE NEW YORK FINANCIAL RING,

GENERAL GRANT,

it is said, desired the nomination either of Judge Orr, United States District Attorney Corbin or Reuben Tomlinson, all of whom are republicans of good standing, who possess the confidence of the taxpayers of the State; but the ring has proved too powerful, and to-night it is confidently asserted that Chamberlain will be the nominee. It is possible that the supporters of the defeated candidate may bolt the nomination and by forming a coalition with the white people and the liberal republicans nominate a good State ticket with a prospect of carrying the State on the 19th of October. In such a contingency it would not surprise anybody if South Carolina would go for Greeley in November. With the administration ticket now almost certain to be nominated this State will be a heavy load for General Grant in the Presidential canvass. Comptroller General Neagle, who has amassed immense wealth here, furnishes the funds for the Chamberlain party, while John J. Patterson, of Pennsylvania, President of the Blue Ridge Railroad, is said to be paying out liberally for Moses. I do not believe there ever was witnessed such as is openly practised here by the non-taxpayers upon the taxpaying portion of the community. Senator Sawyer arrived here to-day, fresh from the Cabinet at Washington, and I learn to-night that he represents the President as condemning a bolt in any consideration, even for the sake of reform. In accordance with this advice a consolidation upon Chamberlain by the hitherto reform republican elements is feared. The whites are sadly disappointed, as they had been led to hope by Orr, Corbin and others, who claim to represent the administration, that Grant had determined to rid the State of the corrupt Scott-Chamberlain-Kempton ring.

SHAMELESS AND BAREFACED CORRUPTION

OHIO.

An Immense Gathering of Grant Republicans—Speeches by Governor Noyes and Others—Opening of the Campaign on the Western Reserve.

CLEVELAND, August 20, 1872.

By arrangement of the Republican Central Committee the campaign in Ohio opened at several of the most important points to-day. The meeting held in this city to-night was a monster affair. Governor E. F. Noyes was the principal speaker. He spoke for nearly two hours, touching upon all the important issues of the day. He was listened to with the closest attention, and his arguments were apparently received with the greatest favor by all parties.

While he was speaking the Grant Boys in Blue, the Tanners and other organizations of republicans marched into the square where the speaking was going on, with torches, transparencies and banners, to the number of 2,000. Although several of the wards were not organized, the lowest estimate of the number at the meeting was 15,000, and the enthusiasm for Grant and Wilson was greater than has ever been known in this city at so early a day in any Presidential campaign. Speeches were also made by James M. Root, Mr. Hart and J. C. Lee.

Governor Noyes was serenaded at his hotel by the Grant Boys in Blue, and in response to a call made a few remarks, in which he predicted Ohio would give 40,000 majority for Grant.

The commencement of the Grant campaign opens on the Western Reserve in the most auspicious and enthusiastic manner.

SUICIDE OF A MINISTER.

The Rev. G. M. Jenks, pastor of a Presbyterian church, committed suicide here last night by shooting himself through the head. No cause is known for the act except depression of spirits.

THE BOURBONS.

A Day in Colonel Blanton Duncan's Study.

RUMMAGINGS IN HIS MAIL BAG.

Ominous Letters from the "Pig-headed" Undercurrent.

Startling Discontent and Dissatisfaction in the Democratic Ranks.

ANYTHING TO BEAT GREELEY.

Why the Unterrified Got Slaughtered in North Carolina.

DON'T LET THE OLD PARTY DIE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 17, 1872.

I am going to tell the story of the "straight-out" movement. I am going to show its present standing and its latent strength, and when my tale is told the people of the country may take the facts and the fancies and the fallacies, and from the heap figure out for themselves whether or not the thing is an idle fancy of foolish politicians or an honest effort of earnest democrats or a league with Grant, and whether or not the September Convention is to be a success.

THE BOURBON HEADQUARTERS.

Notwithstanding all that has been said about eccentricity and instability and chimerical vauntings, it cannot be denied that Blanton Duncan is the recognized head and front of the offending movement, and that he has sounded the watchword and raised the banner around which the discontented are rallying.

COLONEL DUNCAN

is the Chairman of the National Bourbon Executive Committee, with headquarters at Louisville.

I called yesterday at the interesting spot, and had a long talk with the man who is just now undoubtedly attracting much of the attention of the liberal leaders and not a little from the other side. The Bourbon headquarters are established in the private study of Colonel Duncan's elegant Fourth street residence. He himself is one of the most princely gentlemen of the place, and his mansion is furnished with all the comforts of taste and the most refined culture. He is the possessor of immense estates, which were confiscated by the federal government when he abandoned all and went into the confederacy, but which have been restored to him since the close of the war by an act of Congress. I found the Colonel in his study lounging in an easy chair, with his body three-fourths of the way under his writing desk, busily wading through a mass of correspondence from all parts of the country relating to the political situation and the situation of the "straight-out" movement in particular. He received me cordially as he would an old friend, and got up to place me one of the most comfortable chairs in the room except his own. He was in the middle of a letter to Senator Bayard, and asked me to amuse myself among a file of exchanges that lay on the table until he would finish his writing.

A PENCIL SKETCH OF HIM.

Colonel Duncan is a little over six feet high in his slippers, is somewhat swaggering in his gait and wears his clothes loose and comfortable. He is a portly blonde, with a clever face, and is just turning his first half-century. His forehead is high and his face physiognomically fine, rather large bluish-gray eyes, a well-set Roman nose that is neither large nor small, a well-cut mouth and a full beard that does not look full because it is naturally light and sparse and is studded with gray and is not worn long. His general appearance lacks a little of being imposing and his talk is free, decided and self-confident. He is inexorable with those who differ with him in matters of mere opinion and states his own opinions for facts. In physical energy he has few superiors, and once thoroughly interested in a cause, as he is in the Bourbon movement, he is one of its most indefatigable workers. Such is a bird's-eye view of Colonel Blanton Duncan.

THE INTERVIEW.

"Well, sir," said Mr. Duncan, signing his name to the letter with a vigorous flourish at the end of the word "Chairman," "I am at your service now."

CORRESPONDENT—Colonel, I believe you are recognized as the leader of the Bourbon movement.

CORRESPONDENT—Your movements have commenced to attract the greater part of the attention of the Greeley organs, I believe, Colonel.

Colonel DUNCAN—Yes, sir (with another smile), yes, sir, they have been calling me "pig-headed," "obstinate ass," "mendacious defamer," etc., but they are beginning to be scared. They thought they were safe; they didn't believe anybody would dare set the house on fire—they didn't believe I would set the house on fire. But they were mistaken: now they see it beginning to tumble in and they are frightened. They find that it won't do to ignore me any longer.

THE BOURBON CORRESPONDENCE.

CORRESPONDENT—I have called, Colonel, for the purpose of obtaining from you some facts concerning the situation, the expectations and the prospects of your party.

Colonel DUNCAN—Well, I don't know what I can give you. The country is alive with the subject, and names are pouring in here every day by the bushel. Every State in the Union, except California, Nevada, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island, has responded to my circular, and some of them will send tremendous delegations. There will be the biggest and most enthusiastic Convention here in September, sir, that has ever been held in this country. They don't believe it; but it is so, sir; and you'll find it so. See here the letters that have come to-day. (Here he jumped out of his comfortable chair, and, going to a cabinet, took down out of a pigeonhole labelled "Fresh" a great packet of papers which he dumped vigorously on the broad table in front of me. The fall jostled them out over a square yard, and they covered it all.) This is only one day's lot of them, remember. Examine them yourself and you'll find out more than I can tell you about the Bourbon movement, as they call it.

I commenced to examine them, the Colonel keeping up a running and enthusiastic talk at the same time that he picked out for me the most important ones and the ones from the most distinguished public men.

A FORMIDABLE LIST OF NAMES.

The Colonel also showed me a book wherein he had inserted the names of all who had written to him declaring themselves in favor of a straight-out nomination. It was a formidable, and, to me, I must say, a surprising list. He had them divided off into States. Texas seemed to take the lead; then New York, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Georgia, Minnesota, Wisconsin and others followed, the ones named having the longest lists.

OMINOUS LETTERS.

For the sake of having actual facts I will give you some of the letters that I read. The names are withheld by request, but I can vouch for the genuineness of the matter. A vein of doubt and timidity seemed to run through the whole of them, and the question "Will there be a convention?" was often asked. I give these letters to show that there is a deal of discontent and disruption after all, and that the "silent undercurrent" that has been talked of is no myth. It is a dangerous discontent that these letters breathe. It is ominous and it is numerous enough, one must confess, to justify and encourage the Bourbon leaders. There are many hearty letters from the South.

ILLINOIS.

Here is one from an old farmer near Chesterfield, Ill. It was written in a rustic hand and bore the evidence of earnestness and honesty on its face:—

We democrats in this part of the country cannot support that life-long abolitionist, Horace Greeley, for President of the United States. We think General Grant the best man of the two, but we want a straight ticket to vote for, and we hope that the Louisville Convention will put out a good democrat. For my part, I shall do all I can to make the Louisville Convention a grand success. I think if we get out a good democrat, that most if not all the genuine democrats will drop Greeley and come back to first principles. Do not let our party die yet; it would be too bad to surrender to Greeley.

WHY THEY FAILED IN NORTH CAROLINA.

The editor of the Charlotte (North Carolina) Bulletin writes that the conservatives failed to carry that State because five thousand democrats refused to vote with the party indorsing Greeley.

MR. CHARLES REEMELIN,

of Ohio, who has been claimed by both the Grant and Greeley parties, is for neither, and will support the September movement, though he will not attend the convention.

W. P. WILLEY,

a son of the West Virginia Senator, and the only delegate at Baltimore whose voice was heard saying "nay," writes, repudiating the whole thing, and saying that he is anxious to do anything in his power to aid the straight-out democratic movement.

THE TIMID DOUBTERS.

The following letter is one among a number showing that there is really a doubting undercurrent that is only waiting to be heard and to be led. It is from Taylorville, Ill.:—

COLONEL BLANTON DUNCAN:—

DEAR SIR—In the Missouri Democrat of the 7th inst. there is an article purporting to be a call for a Convention of true democrats for the purpose of nominating a President on a democratic ticket, to be held at Louisville, Ky., September 3, asking of the democrats that they appoint delegates to that Convention. Quite a controversy arose here as to the genuineness of the call, the democrats (that is Greeley democrats) denying it, while we claim that it is genuine. Please write to me and state whether there is such a call, dated "Louisville, Ky., August 6, 1872," and signed by "Blanton Duncan, Chairman," and much oblige.

"THE UNTERRIFIED OF EGYPT."

A letter from Southern Illinois, signed by a number who call themselves "The Unterrified of Egypt," says that they want a straight-out ticket.

INTENSE DISGUST.

A letter from one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Douglas county, Illinois, says that the feeling there "is one of intense disgust with the action of the Baltimore Convention." And that "the nomination of a straight-out democrat would be hailed with delight by the mass of the democratic party here."

MICHIGAN.

Colonel William M. Ferry, of Michigan, a brother of the Senator, and who has always been a democrat, closes a long and serious letter as follows:—"In the belief that an opportunity will be afforded by the action of the Louisville Convention for democrats throughout the Union to vote as democrats and maintain their integrity, I am," &c.

There are many other earnest letters from Michigan.

A VICIOUS BOURBON

from Salem, Mass., writes this way, in a great sprawling hand:—

Present a straight democratic ticket to the country! Grant is bad enough, but Greeley is the scum of all rascality—the most infernal liar, the most dangerous cuss, and whose administration would redound to the interest of all the isms of the day; whose whole course in life has been one of hatred to the democratic party and its policy and measures, and who will cheat them, as he has every party that has had anything to do with him.

P. S.—There are plenty of straight dems here and in Marblehead, and hope to have a chance to vote a true demo.

CONNECTICUT.

A New Haven (Conn.) letter asks for a large package of circulars and promises delegates.

AN OLD EDITOR OF TEXAS.

Texas is one among the strongest States, and a gentleman—an old editor—writes from Whitesboro as follows:—

DEAR SIR—Being in full accord and sympathy with the movement to preserve the organization and integrity of the democratic party, I address you as the accredited leader of the true men of the nation by whom this purpose is to be accomplished.

I regard it as almost impossible now to send a delegation to the Convention which assembles in your city on the 2d proximo; but can assure you that if your Convention should nominate a candidate worthy, capable and honest, Texas will give him a majority greater than any State in the Union in proportion to population.

In Texas, as in other States, we got started wrong. The Greeley movement was started by designing, ambitious men, who were shrewd enough to engage the co-operation of influential, good men. This, coupled with the fact that the people did not dream of so grave a fraud being practised upon them at our State Convention or at Baltimore, accounts for the very strange part Texas has borne in this very unnatural alliance with the enemies of democracy and the South.

In this fanatical rush "with anything to beat Grant" the press of the State was carried down with the current, which leaves the people without any medium through which to express their utter contempt for this unholy alliance, while the intolerance of the press and the leading Greeley democrats will soon drive them to resistance and defiance.

So you may rest assured that if Louisville gives us a ticket our present candidates of the Greeley and Brown combination must either alter their creed, quit the field or suffer an ignominious defeat.

And in designating our candidates we shall need no nominating conventions. We will nominate them in the harvest field, in the shops and at the desks, and can beat Grant and Greeley both together.

I have a little political experience in Texas, and at one time edited the leading journal of the State, and therefore claim to know something of the sentiments of the people.

I wish your movement the greatest success, and if my humble help can be made available let me know how to bestow it. Very truly, &c.

MINNESOTA.

A candid letter from Minnesota says that the democratic press there is committed to Greeley, and the leading politicians have carried off the mass of the people, but there are still some stanch democrats who stick to the faith, and many who would return to it if they had a certain-sounding bugle and a rallying point.

Another letter from Winnebago says a large portion of the democrats there will be with the movement as soon as it gets fairly in motion. "In this vicinity they are wholly dissatisfied with the present position. We desire somebody to vote for this Fall other than is now before the people."

MISSISSIPPI.

A prominent Mississippi lawyer writes from Okolona as follows:—

Colonel BLANTON DUNCAN:—

DEAR SIR—We will hold a district convention at West Point, in Colfax county, on the 24th inst. We hope to have a full convention of good and true men. I think this district will be well represented at the Louisville Convention. The people are with us, in my opinion, and only await an organization to attach themselves to it. But we can only succeed on a platform of sound principles, with a good and reliable standard-bearer. Send me prospectus of your paper and I will get a list of subscribers. Please send campaign documents. We want the record of Greeley, and especially his endorsement of General Butler's order No. 28. I have recently been in several counties in this district, and everywhere I find plenty of our best citizens who tell me that they cannot and will not support Greeley, and nowhere do I find any enthusiasm whatever for him. It is impossible for our people to support Greeley when they consider his record. Yours, &c.

VIRGINIA.

A letter from Culpepper, Va., says:—

I feel inclined to favor your plan, especially since having read your highly patriotic circular. How any life-long democrat can now endorse Horace Greeley is beyond my comprehension. As for myself, I will not vote for him, and many of my friends entertain the same opinion. Give us one of our own party.

MISSOURI.

Here is a letter from a rather profane Professor of Latin in a Missouri college:—

DEAR SIR—Can I do anything to aid you in the good cause in this region? Our democrats are supporting Greeley because they have no one else to vote for (or at least they think so). I was in the Confederate service four years, a major; and I'll be damned if I vote for any such man as Horace Greeley. Missouri is not lost. Gratz Brown is not over-popular here, as he is a regular drunkard. If we could only get up some good independent move it would do much good. Let me hear from you. Yours, truly, ———.

A CONTRIBUTION.

One earnest individual sends a dollar "to help along the good cause."

EXCESSIVELY SO.

A Kentucky red-hot writes that under no consideration will he support Greeley or any other ticket that endorses the several so-called constitutional amendments; and that he will "work of nights" to get money enough to pay his expenses to the Louisville Convention.

A REGULAR STRAIGHT-OUT.

An unpunctuated individual writes from Nebraska as follows:—

Mr Col blandon duncan chairman of the committee louisville kentucky dear sur being a democrat and a subscriber of the Noo York Dey book sir i cannot surport H Greeley & thar is plenty of Democrat here that wont gou to the Election a tal if we Democrats Dont git a strait out & out ticket sir I am a tennesseean and shoultered my musket in the cos of Freedom & right & fought four year fer Davis & Company & will give you a few Names & you Can Organize our County Now I will gave you the names of a few good democrats.

(He then gives a good long list of names).

NEW YORK CITY.

A Bourbon Wall street merchant writes a long letter, hoping, for the sake of the preservation of principle in America, that the Louisville Convention will name the next President.

A New York "Attorney and Counsellor at Law" writes that he does not mingle much in politics, and consequently is sorry to say that he is not well posted in the present crisis, but thinks "the Greeley tide has reached its full flood."

GEORGIA CERTAIN.

A letter from Senator Bayard, of Delaware, encloses a despatch as follows:—

ATLANTA, Ga., August 12, 1872.

We can carry Georgia with Charles O'Conor. Will he accept Louisville nomination? Large straight-out meeting to-morrow. Answer at once.

(Signed by a number of prominent Georgians.)

To which Senator Bayard says he replied as follows:—

I am informed and believe he will.

WHY THE THING HAS BEEN KEPT SO QUIET.

"Why, Colonel," I ventured to ask, "have you been keeping this matter so quiet? Don't you believe, from the general run of all these letters, that the people are held back by doubts of its strength, and that if you were to keep the real facts before the country it would give your cause character and force?"

Colonel DUNCAN—Yes, that is so; but we have thought it best to work away quietly and let the September Convention come like a clap of thunder upon the country.

CORRESPONDENT—But don't you think the publication of the facts now would assure the timid and strengthen that Convention?

Colonel DUNCAN—Yes, you are right about that; but we are strong enough already to make the movement a success, and our policy is to take the country by storm and sweep it with a whirlwind of enthusiasm. Besides, we are hampered now by the

WANT OF A PRESS.

The democratic organs have all gone over to Greeley, but after the Convention campaign papers will spring up all over the country. I have already received advices of campaign papers to be started in different sections, and they say that if we make a good nomination a new and unsubsidized press will spring up fresh from the people promulgating the ideas and speaking the wishes of the people, and will prove a powerful and crushing foe to the present rut-running and wishy-washy concern that has sold itself for pottage. Some of the papers have begun to see it, and those that have sense enough are beginning to tone down already.

HIRES AN AMANUENSIS.

At this moment the door-bell rang, and a rather gawky, squint-eyed young fellow was shown in, and, after being catechized by Colonel Duncan and announcing that he had done some copying once in the County Clerk's office, was employed as an amanuensis to the chairman of the Bourbon National Executive Committee. After being instructed to return at eight o'clock next morning, and be expected to write steadily from that time until five in the afternoon, he retired.

"My correspondence is increasing so rapidly," remarked the Colonel, "that I find the employment of an amanuensis absolutely necessary."

THE AFTERNOON MAIL.

Just then the bell rang again, and the servant girl going to the front door returned with her arms full of letters and papers.

"This is my afternoon mail," said the Colonel.

He then went to work tearing open the wrappers while I dived again into the already examined pile of letters that lay spread out before me on the table.

"Ho! ho!" suddenly exclaimed the Colonel, rearing back and throwing his legs up across his desk. "Here is one from Vermont."

CORRESPONDENT—Ah!

He then proceeded to read it, saying, at the same time, "There are devilish few democrats up there in Vermont, but what there are are mighty good ones."

He handed me the letter to read. It was from an influential local politician, who declared himself heartily for a straight-out nomination, and gave the names of a number of Bourbons in the State who might be relied on as correspondents. This reduced the number of States which had not responded to five and Colonel Duncan, turning to his list book, found a blank page, made a vociferous "V.," and then wrote down "Vermont," to which he appended the list of names which the letter contained.

HE IS NOT THE CONVENTION.

He then resumed the undoing of the mail. Presently he gave vent to something which was half grunt and half laugh, and when I dropped my letter and looked up he smiled a broad smile and said:—

"Many of these fellows write to me making suggestions as if I was the Convention. I always have to write back explaining that the Convention will make its own rules. They want to leave it all to me."

TRYING TO CONVERT HIM.

Presently he gave vent to the same kind of sound again and handed me a pamphlet with this title:—

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY,
THE
AND NATIONAL PROGRESS.

"Them fellows think they can convert me," he said with a laugh. "They do. Always sending me such as that. Think they can convert me."

The next letter was from a Texas town and contained a list of the names of seventeen democrats who would support the September Convention.

"There," he said, "you see, there are seventeen from one town. That is seventeen. Sometimes there are a thousand; but suppose there are only seventeen in every town, that makes 850,000 democrats in the country—enough to beat Greeley to smash." And he took his list-book, hunted out the "Texas" pages and put down the seventeen names.

"But," ventured the correspondent, "Colonel, if you do beat Greeley with your 850,000 votes, you don't elect your nominee; you simply elect Grant."

Colonel DUNCAN—No; you don't understand us at all. We only want to show that it is impossible for them to elect Greeley and then the democrats will all come back to us.

(Colonel Duncan firmly believes that the united democratic party of the country is able to elect its candidate without the aid of any outside votes.)

"We have beat them already," said the Colonel. "Why, Phil Doern said to me the other day—[Phil Doern is the proprietor of the Louisville Anzeiger, the German democratic organ of the State]—that they were beat, and that I had done it. And he is right. If I had not made the break they would have gone on and had a nice, easy time. But I set the house on fire, you see, and now see them come tumbling in. They didn't think anybody would do it, but they were mistaken."

HIS INTIMACY WITH NAPOLEON.

At this juncture the conversation flew off at a tangent and landed plump on the other side of the Atlantic. He reached a photograph of the ex-Emperor Napoleon with the royal autograph, which he said I might mention. It would give spice and variety, he thought, to my letter.

"You see," he said, "I have a right to be at the head of a great political movement. I associate with the crowned heads and the royal hidalgos. Here he got down a photograph of the Grand Duke Alexis, which the royal Muscovite had presented personally to a member of his family.

THE FIRST GUN.

The Colonel, leaving me to admire the crowned head and the royal hidalgo, plunged again into the mass of correspondence that still lay a foot deep upon his desk.

Presently he pulled out from the heap an imposing document, which he eagerly opened and devoured, with such exclamations during the process as a-ha, a-hee, a-ho, a-hoo, and various other expressions that might have been classed among the dialects of the Unyanyembe. When he had got to the end of the document he went back to the first of his exclamations and hurriedly repeated them in an excited manner. He then turned to me, and, holding the ponderous paper aloft, triumphantly exclaimed:—

"Here's the first gun! Boom, she goes!"

"What is it, Colonel?"

"The first gun, sir. Gee—boom!"

He explained in a way that the science of chirography would be vain to attempt to express that it was the proceedings and resolutions of a meeting of the straight-out democrats of Trimble county, Kentucky.

"These resolutions are strong," he said, "and it would be well to get them into your letter to the HERALD. They are the first gun."

Whereas the Baltimore Convention in adopting a platform abandoned the principles of the democratic party and accepted such as are conflicting and irreconcilable with them; therefore be it

Resolved, That we democrats of Trimble county do declare and say that as the Baltimore Convention abandoned the true principles of the democratic party, the acts of said Convention are not binding on us as the action of the democratic party.

Resolved, That we hold to the doctrine of State rights and a strict construction of the federal constitution, believing their recognition to be indispensable to the maintenance of free political institutions and the perpetuation of popular liberty in this country.

Resolved, That we will make no quarrel with our friends who have deserted us, but will cling to the time-honored principles of the democratic party.

The following named gentlemen were appointed as delegates to attend the Convention to be held in Louisville on the 3d of September next:—C. C. Holmes, James Gill, F. A. Adams, Jacob Hawkins, Jacob Zeager, J. Y. Newkirk, J. W. McCain and A. W. Bartlett, and all other democrats of the county opposed to Grant and Greeley.

The meeting was largely attended and was composed of some of the sturdiest and most influential citizens of the county.

The Colonel was a good while in getting over his delight at having the first gun fired, and he read the resolutions over and over again, often breaking forth in some exuberant comment.

"These are strong resolutions," he exclaimed again emphatically. "Ha, ha, ha! How Dawson will feel sorry when he sees this, the jackass!" (Dawson is the editor of the Louisville Ledger, once the organ of the Bourbons, but now gone over to Greeley.) "How sorry he'll feel when he sees this!" said the Colonel, half mumbling to himself:—"I told him at Baltimore not to go over; to stay on the fence awhile. Now he'll be sorry he didn't take my advice. Compels me to start a paper, too, the jackass. Spend my money, too. I knew he'd be sorry for it."

"And all other democrats in the county opposed to Grant and Greeley," laughed the Colonel as he read over the resolutions again exultingly.

SOME ADVICE ABOUT BETTING.

"If you have any money to bet," said the Colonel, turning to me suddenly, "bet it against Greeley. I have already bet $2,500, all I had to spare. It's a sure thing though. I'm betting on four aces. You mustn't bet on Grant, you know, but bet against Greeley. You'll win it then sure."

THE SEPTEMBER CONVENTION.

Coming back to the subject of the September Convention, the Colonel reiterated that it would undoubtedly be the grandest affair of the kind ever held in this country. He intended to see to the arrangements himself personally, and those who are aware of his indomitable energy will be satisfied that if he does take hold of that branch of the affair the arrangements will be complete and ample, and that there will be nothing wanting.

"All the correspondents are coming," he said. "They will crowd around me, too. They all know me."

WHO WILL BE NOMINATED.

It is generally understood among the leaders of the movement that Mr. Charles O'Conor, of New York, is to be the nominee. It is known that he is willing to accept. Colonel Duncan says the Vice President has not been decided upon yet, and there is no telling who it will be. I would like to make the humble suggestion that it is nothing but just and right that Colonel Duncan himself should receive that recognition of his really earnest and untiring services in the Bourbon cause.

CONCLUSION.

And now my story is told. It is comprised of a deal of the ludicrous and the chimerical, with a very alien admixture of serious and certain fact, it is true; but, as you see, my impressions of this semi-serious symposiac have been obtained from a comfortable seat overlooking the very limb of the tree upon which hangs the nest in which this Bourbon egg is being hatched. I have endeavored to give what I have seen as I found it, and, as I promised in the outset, have given the barren, unvarnished facts, and leave the country and the liberal party to make up their mind as to the real importance and the prospective strength of the September movement. One thing is certain, it is not being laughed at by the whole people. There is a strong element that is undercurrent, which, being unable to comprehend and cope with the new, prefers to stand by that which is old and has been tried and which has been handed down to them from the fathers with their endorsement of its righteousness. There are few intelligent men who believe that Mr. Blanton Duncan's movement is strong enough to accomplish what he claims for it. It has strength, but that strength is only capable of defeating Greeley. It cannot defeat Grant, except, possibly by co-operating with Greeley. This from its very nature is impossible.

THE PLAN AND PURPOSE OF THE VISIT.

A Nimrod Prince and His Exploits in the Killing of Bears, Crocodiles, Ostriches, Wild Boars and the Projected Tiger-Shooting in British India.

Yesterday morning at six o'clock the Prince Augustus Coburg, son-in-law of Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, left the steamer North America, in which he had arrived a few hours previously from Rio Janeiro. Numerous and cordial were the handshakings which took place ere the handsome young Duke had left the deck and taken a carriage in company with Herr Carl Fleischman, a tutor, his only attendant, and who is about to leave shortly for Europe. In person the Duke is tall and of a commanding presence. His features are regular and well formed. He wears a blonde beard and mustache, and the general impression formed upon seeing him is that he is possessed with great firmness combined with great good nature. Quickly the carriage rolled over some of the narrow streets leading from the North River to Fifth avenue, which must have reminded him, by the jolting produced, of travelling through some of his Brazilian ravines. As the last whoop of the retreating milkman was heard in the neighborhood of the Brevoort House the Duke alighted and with an elastic step was seen under the portals of the hotel, and a few seconds later had inscribed his name in the hotel register. A substantial breakfast followed, after which our royal visitor started alone on an exploring expedition away up to the Central Park, walking the whole time at rapid pace in spite of the sun's almost tropical rays, and a casual observer might have thought him to be engaged, to quote a well-known expression, "of taking it out of himself." After a long walk he returned from the Park, passing down Broadway, gazing with interest at the magnificent stores which are to be seen at either side. Arriving at his hotel once more he entered his sitting room, lit a cigar and commenced to read the HERALD. While reading the history of his life, his pedigree, his services in the Brazilian navy, and such collateral matter, his meditations were interrupted by receiving the card of the writer. The colored boy who had carried the piece of pasteboard soon returned, and said that he would be glad to see the HERALD's representative. Thinking, perhaps, that the Prince might not be familiar with our vulgar tongue the writer opened the interview in French, and commenced the conversation in French with a courteous

"BON JOUR, MONSIEUR LE PRINCE;"

but, after a few moments' conversation, Prince Saxe stated that English was as familiar to him as French, and accordingly the language was changed. The following is the conversation which took place:—

REPORTER—This is your first visit, I believe, to the United States?

PRINCE—Yes, it is; and I look forward with great pleasure to my journey across the Continent to San Francisco. I also am much interested in this city of "Gotham," as Washington Irving termed it in his "Salmagundi," for I consider its growth and prosperity simply marvellous, and the modern name of Empire City is well earned.

THE PRESIDENT.

REPORTER—You have not yet decided what towns you will visit on your way to the Pacific slope?

PRINCE—Well, no; I am waiting for my brother by the Java from Liverpool, and then my first visit will naturally be to President Grant, for whom, in common with the Brazilian people, I entertain a very high respect.

COMMERCIAL RELATIONS.

I may say that there is a great deal of sympathy in Brazil with the States, and our commercial relations are developing themselves from day to day with astonishing rapidity. Perhaps you are aware that this country takes three-fourths of the coffee we export. In addition to this our trade in cotton, India rubber, sugar, hides, &c., is in a very flourishing condition, and the country at large is becoming more and more cultivated.

HORRIBLE WINE.

We are also growing wine, but hitherto it has been terrible stuff and as sour as vinegar; but some of the Brazilians declare it excellent and swear by it, but, for my own part, I think it execrable as a general rule. However, matters may change in respect to this production if we get more European cultivators of the vine to settle among us.

THE DEATH OF THE DUKE OF AUMALE'S SON.

REPORTER—You have heard, I suppose, of the death of the Duke of Guise, your cousin?

PRINCE—No, not a word. I am truly grieved, however, to hear it, as it will be a terrible blow to his poor father, for he fairly doted on his son. The lad, however, I always considered somewhat puny and delicate. I am very, very sorry to hear it.

THE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD.

REPORTER—Might I ask if you have formed your programme for your trip round the world?

TWENTY-FIVE DAYS

previous to our departure for San Francisco; then we proceed to Japan by Pacific Mail steamer, thence to Shanghae, then Pekin, whence a visit will be paid to

THE GREAT CHINESE WALL.

Leaving the land of Confucius we shall proceed to Australia and will visit Sydney, Melbourne and other principal cities; thence to British India, where I have

SET MY HEART ON TIGER SHOOTING,

for I'm a most enthusiastic sportsman. I have hopes to get some buffalo shooting in this country before I leave. By the way, I remember seeing at Rio a cartoon in a New York comic paper of and General Phil Sheridan, surrounded by a cordon of cavalry, protecting him from the infuriated buffaloes on the Plains, and perhaps I may have something of that kind of luck.

ALEXIS FLYING UP A TELEGRAPH POLE

REPORTER—I see you are an enthusiastic Nimrod.

PRINCE—Well, you have not misjudged me, and I am passionately fond of my gun.

REPORTER—Your experience, I have no doubt, extends in that matter over many lands.

A COSMOPOLITAN HUNTER'S TALE.

I have shot partridges and pheasants in England; I have tumbled over in the highest peaks of the Styrian Mountains forty-two chamois. It was the most exciting and dangerous sport I ever had. I have killed bears in Hungary, seals in the Baltic, when I was there in my ship in the war of 1866, when I was in the Austrian service. I have passed many an hour at deer stalking in Germany. I have shot countless capercailzies there; I have shot ostriches in the plains of South America, tapirs in the dense forests weighing often 900 or 1,000 pounds, wild boars or peccaries, and last, but not least, at a place called San Francisco, situated in the centre of Brazil.

FIFTY CROCODILES

REPORTER—That is a notable record.

PRINCE—And now I want to get a shot at the buffaloes and the tigers.

THE PRINCE AS A LINGUIST.

REPORTER—Since you have been in so many lands you are, doubtless, somewhat of a polyglot?

PRINCE—Yes, I have acquired several languages, I admit. My mother being French and my father German, these are two languages to commence with. In addition to this, having resided a great deal in England, I speak English. For that country I have the highest affection and admiration, for many reasons, which are doubtless palpable to you. I speak also "la lingua bella;" also Magyar, or Hungarian.

PRINCE—By the way, speaking of Hungary, are not some of Prince Esterhazy's family resident in this country?

REPORTER—I am sorry to say I do not know.

AS AN AUTHOR.

REPORTER—You are known, I believe, somewhat as an author?

PRINCE—I do not think that title is a merited one, seeing that I have only written some light works on my own travels, which were merely printed for private circulation.

MY FATHER-IN-LAW, THE EMPEROR,

and myself also are great admirers of your American authors and poets—Emerson, Bancroft, the historian, and Oliver Wendell Holmes—while among the poets William Cullen Bryant's majestic rhyme and Whittier's lines of rhythm and melody are familiar to us as household words. Dom Pedro has translated a good deal of Longfellow's glorious cadences, particularly those derived from the "Sagas of the Norsemen."

THE VIENNA EXPOSITION.

PRINCE—After I return from my trip round the world I have to represent the Brazilian government at the Vienna exposition, which promises, from all I hear, to surpass the Paris exhibition of 1867. I saw in your paper to-day a letter from Minister Jay suggesting the propriety of the government of the United States making a grant of money in favor of American exhibitors at Vienna.

WHY THE PRINCE TRAVELS WITHOUT A SUITE.

REPORTER—You are not in favor of having the inconvenience of a large suite when you travel?

NO FOOD FOR THREE DAYS.

PRINCE—No. Too many people around you while travelling are a nuisance. I remember thinking this when I rode across from Rio to Pernambuco during the drought. As it was, we had to go without food for three days—that was during the dry season. We had sufficient food only for our own necessities. If our party had been larger we should have perished. In addition to this it is agreeable to be without people elbowing you constantly.

ASSASSINATION IN BRAZIL.

REPORTER—The country in Brazil is now in a peaceful condition and there is not so much assassination going on as there used to be.

PRINCE—Well, it is merely in the seaport towns that so much murder is committed among foreigners. In the country murders are hardly ever committed for the sake of money. Women and politic are the great causes of trouble!

WHAT BRAZIL WANTS

Brazil is a magnificent country, and I think that the beauty of scenery at Rio Janeiro far exceeds those celebrated landscape marvels of Naples and Constantinople, with both of which I am familiar. All Brazil wants is a greater population to cultivate her immense resources.

THE PRINCE'S EUROPEAN POLITICS.

REPORTER—With a French mother and German father, what were your sympathies during the late Franco-German war, may I ask?

PRINCE—My sympathies were German, but I think it was wrong of Germany, after capturing the French provinces, to exact such a frightful amount of tribute money as three milliards of francs.

Thanking the Prince for his courtesy the reporter withdrew.

The Prince Philip.

Last evening the Cunard steamer Java brought to our shores Prince Philip of Coburg-Gotha, Duke of Saxe and Lieutenant Colonel in the Austrian army. The Prince comes here to join his brother, Prince Augustus of Coburg, mentioned above, on his tour round the world, which is to terminate on the 1st May, 1873, at the opening of the Vienna Exposition, when both brothers will have their respective functions to fulfil, the one as Brazilian representative at the Exposition and the other will have to resume his military command. Prince Philip bears but faint resemblance to his brother, being of dark complexion and short and, further, somewhat addicted to a stoop. He is also remarkably short-sighted and constantly wears spectacles. He is accompanied by a military officer, an old friend, in the Austrian army. He also brought with him an Italian valet. The Prince was in this country four years ago, and has already visited the principal cities in the Union. He has not seen his brother Augustus since they met at Vienna last Winter. The meeting between them last night at the Brevoort House was a joyous one, and plans will doubtless be laid to-day for putting into effect their proposal to visit the antipodes and to go round the world.

DR. HOUARD.

His Arrival in New York Yesterday from Cadiz.

Nineteen Months in a Spanish Dungeon.

He Tells the Story of His Imprisonment and What He Knows of Secretary Fish—The Cruel Treatment He Was Subjected To—His Claim Against Spain and What He Thinks Will Come of It.

After days of anxious watching Dr. John Emile Houard, who has obtained during the past year more than a national reputation, arrived here by the Alexandria, of the Anchor line, running between New York and Cadiz. As the steamer's arrival was telegraphed from Sandy Hook a number of friends and sympathizers met together at the wharf to give the exile a welcome home. These were mainly Cubans residing here, but among them were mixed some Americans, though no one of an official character. When finally the steamship neared her dock a rush was made for the gang plank, and before Dr. Houard had time to appear on deck he was almost submerged, as it were, in a sea of congratulations. It seemed a tussle as to who should have his hand first. The stranger in his own land was quite overcome by this affectionate welcome, and his voice almost failed him as he attempted to answer the thousand questions which were put to him at the moment.

HIS APPEARANCE.

Dr. Houard is a man of apparently about forty years of age, of medium height. His hair is dark and no gray is visible in it, while his beard, which he wears long, is of a somewhat lighter color. He wears no mustache, which gives him a somewhat singular appearance. His face is exceedingly brown from tanning under the hot sun of the south of Spain, and his eyes have a thoughtful, somewhat solemn look as of a man who had suffered much. This look is carried out by his gesture, which is stately and slow. Every movement indicates the gentleman of refinement and culture. He was dressed in a suit of black.

After mutual congratulations had been exchanged for some time, Doctor Houard drove from the steamship with a couple of friends to the Astor House, where he registered his name, taking room 128. During the afternoon a large number of friends, mainly Cubans, called in to see him.

A reporter of the HERALD was despatched to look after the distinguished gentleman, and after some difficulty in tracing him up to the city finally met him at the Astor House itself, where he called in later in the afternoon. An introduction was obtained through a distant relative of the Doctor, and the reporter stated the object of his visit. Dr. Houard expressed himself as at seeing the representative of the HERALD, and said that before he communicated anything he wished to thank the press of America for the manner in which it had befriended him when apparently he had no friends. He stated that he attributed his release to the efforts of the American press, and particularly the NEW YORK HERALD, which had advocated his cause from the first in the strongest manner, and he had no doubt had finally succeeded in making Congress take the matter up.

REPORTER—What do you think, Doctor, of the action of the American government?

Dr. HOUARD—I knew so little of what was going on outside my prison walls that, indeed, I hardly like to give an opinion against the government. Still it seems to me their action was very dilatory and long drawn out. I think Secretary Fish might have acted more promptly. In this way, I think, I have a right to complain. The government had all the proofs before it that I was both an American citizen and totally innocent of the charges brought against me, and I think, under the circumstances, might have abbreviated, or at least alleviated, my sufferings somewhat. However, when once of the matter things went along with considerable swiftness. General Sickles in particular acted as promptly as I could wish, and as soon as he had once received his instructions from the government lost no time in seeing me liberated. I have also in particular to thank Mr. Duffy, the American Consul in Cadiz, for his uniform kindness to me, a total stranger to him. He sympathized with me so deeply that had I been his own brother I could not possibly have been treated with more consistently kind feeling.

REPORTER—I presume you intend presenting your claim immediately to the government?

Dr. HOUARD—Certainly. I shall repair to Washington in a day or two and present my claim. I am not quite certain as to what sum I shall demand. But I am entitled to a pretty round sum, not only for the persecution and sufferings I have been subjected to while an innocent man, but for

to which I have been subjected. Thus I had a very fine medical business in Cienfuegos, second only to one other in the place. This, of course, has been completely broken up. I also have there a very fine property, the value of which when I left it was fully $50,000. The volunteers have since burned down the houses upon it, stolen the cattle and, in fact, taken and destroyed everything but the bare land itself. Now I do not value the place at over $30,000.

REPORTER—Do you intend returning there?

Dr. HOUARD—Oh, no! not for the whole island of Cuba. I have a perfect right to return, but the volunteers wouldn't allow me to walk four squares without shooting me down. I was, indeed, afraid that, had I been liberated in Cuba, they would have killed me. They freely made threats of doing so.

REPORTER—How long were you imprisoned?

Dr. HOUARD—Altogether nineteen months—one month in Havana, fourteen months in Cienfuegos and four in Cadiz.

REPORTER—During all this time how were you treated?

Dr. HOUARD—The treatment differed very much in different places. In Havana I was simply

TREATED BRUTALLY.

They made me sweep the streets and the crossings. Then when taken back to Cienfuegos, though the prison was good enough, I had to pay very heavily for it. What were called the poor prisoners were in a frightful condition—had to lay on the ground, eat anything they could get hold of, and altogether passed a wretched existence. For me, who could pay, things were somewhat better. We were allowed beds to sleep on and to eat anything we were willing to pay for, which was brought us from outside. They made me perform no labor of any kind, though this was mainly because I bribed the jailer so as to get out of it. They seemed to make no distinction between ordinary convicts and political prisoners. This existence was heaven itself compared to what I suffered afterwards. I heard of the order of transfer to Cadiz with dismay, and then actually thought I should have to serve out the eight years I was condemned to. We were taken on board the transport ship and which were attached to both ankles and ran thence to the waist. We were lodged down in the hold. When we wanted water we had to go on deck, dragging our chains after us. This was almost an impossibility and required our utmost strength. Finally the exertions I had to make and the bad quality of the food which I paid for, as it was impossible to eat the beans and hard crackers which were given the soldiers, gave me the dysentery, and I had to bribe a cabin boy to let me down water on the sly, which I used to hide beneath my clothes. This experience was the worst of all, and I was actually glad when we reached Cadiz. We were speedily transferred to the prison, and then a long course of suffering began. The commandant of the prison, Juan Castillo, was a brute and a thief. Here, again, the food was so bad that the prisoners actually died from eating it. I had to send out and get my food. As the commandant had all my money he used to pay for it and

CHARGE ME DOUBLE

and in the bargain used to cut my meat and bread to pieces under the plea that he was afraid that letters had been placed in them. Even the rice and milk he would turn over and knock about with the same excuse of letters, that it was quite unfit to eat when it reached me. The Commandant was particularly cruel with me. He would not allow any of the other prisoners to converse with me, though they talked among themselves. He would allow no letters or papers to reach me, and allowed me to send none unless he had previously examined them and altered them to suit his mind. But my principal suffering was the filth of the prison. It was something terrible. Vermin of every kind abounded in such profusion that we had to get up three and four times a night and pick them off our body. This and the confinement finally made me sick again, and the physicians advised that I should be

TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL.

The Commandant, however, thought he saw in this some plan of escape, and, for some time after, utterly refused to let me be taken away. When, at length, mainly through the representations of the American consul, Mr. Duffy, who in all this was very kind to me, I was taken away, I was too weak to walk and had to be carried in a carriage. At the hospital, through good treatment and the exertions of Mr. Duffy to get me all that could possibly do me good, I gradually recovered and finally heard of my release with a sensation of joy only equalled by that of a man who has escaped from the very jaws of death. I am fully confident that, had it not been for the fact that Mr. Duffy and various other persons in the city, Spanish as well as Americans, befriended me, I should not have survived the ordeal. The treatment I received was simply cruel and dastardly.

REPORTER—How long did you remain in Cadiz after your release?

Dr. HOUARD—Twenty days, until I could complete my preparations for leaving. During this time I stayed with Mr. Duffy. It was not a lack of money which made me do this. The

EXTENSIVE PRACTICE

I had when I was first arrested was the cause of my having some money outside of the lands I owned. This, however, has been pretty well eaten up in the time I have been in prison, obliged all the time to support my family and myself.

REPORTER—What family have you, Doctor?

Dr. HOUARD—I have a son in Philadelphia and two daughters in Cuba. They are both native-born Cubans. It is my intention to have them leave Cuba as soon as possible. Since I have been in prison they have been

and have suffered a good deal, though not from any pecuniary want.

REPORTER—They know of your release?

Dr. HOUARD—I believe so. I wrote to them before I left Cadiz.

REPORTER—How did you enjoy the passage over?

Dr. HOUARD—Oh, very well, considering that we had head winds pretty near all the time, which made it a long passage. The boat is a slow old tub. We left Cadiz on the 3d of August, making a passage of seventeen days.

REPORTER—What will be your future movements?

Dr. HOUARD—I expect to start for Philadelphia the day after to-morrow, and will shortly after go on to Washington, to look after my claim. Where I shall reside permanently I have not as yet decided. It may be in Philadelphia, and possibly again in the South. I have thought of New Orleans, where my medical skill would probably be of more avail, as the diseases are somewhat like those of Havana. But as yet I am not certain.

The HERALD reporter rose to go, and as he did so Dr. Houard wiped his forehead with his handkerchief and said, laughingly, "This is much hotter than Cadiz." Shaking hands, the reporter took his leave.

THE JERSEY CITY POLICE WAR.

Governor Parker on the Situation—He Will Leave the Case to the Courts—He Dislikes Bayonet Exercise.

A HERALD reporter called on Governor Parker at the Executive Chamber in Trenton yesterday to ascertain his views in regard to the police conflict in Jersey City. The Governor is fully convinced that the convicted Commissioners have no right to continue in office, but he does not see how he can place the new appointees in office. He regards the case as a contest for office to be settled by the courts.

REPORTER—Has there been any circular issued to the Judges of the Supreme Court with a view to have a special term held for the consideration of this matter?

GOVERNOR—Not that I am aware of, and if there had been, probably I should have heard something of the matter.

REPORTER—Who is the official to convene the Court in special session?

GOVERNOR—I suppose it is the Chief Justice; but it is something that is so foreign to the regular order of business—something so out of the common way—that I am not prepared to say how they should proceed to convene the Supreme Court in special session.

REPORTER—Would there be any trouble if the Court was in session?

GOVERNOR—None. It is because the Supreme Court is not in session that the trouble arises.

REPORTER—Why don't you act, Governor, and enforce your appointments?

GOVERNOR—Where is my authority to enforce the appointments when it is a legal question that has to be settled? The Court is the only place where it can be settled, and I am not aware that any action will be taken before November.

REPORTER—But is there no way whereby you can enforce the appointments?

GOVERNOR—What would they have me do? Call out the military and place the men in office at the point of the bayonet. It might be done in that way, but that would only make matters more difficult. I really do not wish to give an opinion on the matter, and as it is a question for the Court, I propose to leave it there.

REPORTER—Then you have not heard of any steps for convening the Supreme Court to consider this matter?

GOVERNOR—No, I have not, and there has not been anything new on the subject within the last few days, nor do I think there will be anything new until the Court decides.

REPORTER—What is your real opinion on the case?

GOVERNOR—It has assumed a legal phase. The Commissioners whom my appointments displaced say that they have a right to hold over, and the Attorney General says they have no power, that they forfeited it; and where there is a difference of opinion the Supreme Court only can decide.

As Chief Justice Beasley is absent from Trenton, no session of the Supreme Court can be held for the present. The HERALD reporter spoke to several prominent lawyers and politicians, who were in Trenton, on the subject, and the universal opinion is that Governor Parker should have sustained his appointees by the power of the entire State militia if necessary. Among those interviewed on the question was the eloquent advocate, Garret B. Adrain, who defended Bridget Durgan in the Coriell murder case, John Kelly, of Elizabeth, and seven members of the Legislature. They are all of opinion that the Governor should maintain his authority at all hazards.

CUBA.

The Herald Livingstone Letters and the Slave Trade.

Comments of the Diario de la Marina—"For Several Years Not a Single Slave Landed on the Cuban Coast from Africa"—The Latest News About the Insurrection.

HAVANA, August 15, 1872.

The publication of Dr. Livingstone's letter to Mr. Bennett and the editorial comments of the HERALD of the 27th of July, in referring to the Doctor's remarks upon the slave trade in Africa and stating that Cuba was now the sole slave market of the civilized world, have had the same effect upon the Diario de la Marina, which represents the ultra Spanish idea that a red rag would have on a bull, and has been the cause of another nervous fit and offence to this journal, and brought forth in its columns a refutation of the statement that the island of Cuba was still a market for that "relic of barbarism," the African slave trade. Nevertheless, many well informed know better, and your correspondent has repeatedly received the assurance that negroes from Africa have disembarked on this coast within the present year, and but a few days since was informed by a gentleman holding a high position to a foreign government here, that the well known king of the slave traders had landed a cargo of "sacks of live coal" on these shores, not far distant from Havana. Such may or may not be the case. It is very difficult, almost impossible, to arrive at the truth or source of such statements, but the experience of former years, when the introduction of African slaves was a matter of fact, and large expeditions were frequently landed despite of treaties made in apparent good faith, the details of such landings were carefully withheld from the public. Only those directly interested, the authorities in most of the cases, and the importers, were at all aware of the particulars, and it was their interest to keep them and, therefore, only undefined rumors circulated respecting such landings. Diplomatic inquiries repeatedly made always resulted in the government denying the fact. The slave trade was not only a source of great profit to those who engaged directly in the business, but the authorities at all cognizant of the expeditions assisted in the landings and concealment of these unfortunates for a consideration. To-day the danger of offending the nations with whom Spain has treaties for the suppression of the traffic is far greater; but the facilities for carrying out these enterprises to those powerful and influential men of this island, whose interest still leads them to act in opposition to the dictates of humanity, progress and the law, are considerable; and such enterprises are more profitable than formerly, negro slaves commanding enormous prices, on account of the scarcity of field hands, and risks are undertaken with some degree of impunity, and under the cover of manifestations of patriotism and the influence of ready cash, everything is possible in this island. But, in denial of all reports of this nature, the patriotic, but ignorant, Spaniards in general, not forgetting their prejudices, maintain that it is the work of "laborantes," just in the same manner as they attribute everything else, derogatory to the glory and power of Spain, to the machinations of conspiring Cubans, whom they style "laborantes." The main idea of the Cubans on this question is well known—liberty and freedom to all; as it will be remembered that during the first year of the insurrection, the Cuban Congress issued a decree of emancipation to all classes.

AS SECRET AS POSSIBLE,

[illegible] TION.

[illegible] of the [illegible]

[illegible] as pub- [illegible] plorer, [illegible] prising [illegible] import- [illegible] ipal [illegible] the source of the Nile, an idea brought down from remote ages, and which has cajoled the glory-seeking minds of ancient Roman Emperors.

It is well known for the Diario spoke on the subject at the time, that several years ago two English travellers attempted an undertaking similar to Dr. Livingstone's. Speke and Grant, after having surveyed the meridianal limit of Lake Nyanza, to which they added the name of Victoria in honor of the reigning sovereign of England, believed that they had discovered the source of the Nile. But later on Sir Samuel Baker discovered another lake of the same name, to which he added the name of Albert, it being thus proved, as we showed at the time, that the source of the famous river was not one but several. Dr. Livingstone has discovered new lakes and rivers which prolong the Nile southward for a distance of 700 miles beyond the lake discovered by Baker.

To reduce the matter to the simplest geographical expression, this discovery will prove, if substantiated, that the Nile is the largest river in the world. Perhaps the Doctor himself, who has undergone so many dangers and sufferings to arrive at this result, thus understands it, when he has given his undertaking a character likely to interest the entire civilized world.

Livingstone speaks in moving language of the horrors of slavery in Africa, and hopes to succeed, by the aid of his nation and the United States, that the trade among the Africans themselves shall be abolished. But the HERALD, in its editorial comments on this point, says an untruth, which might be excused, coming from Dr. Livingstone, ignorant on account of his long absence, of events, even of the success of the Atlantic cable, but coming from the HERALD needs a correction.

This journal states, in order to deceive we know not whom, that the Island of Cuba is the only market open to the slave trade, and this assertion is absolutely false. For several years past the Island of Cuba has landed on its coast. Who declares otherwise states what is untrue. Regarding the domestic institution of slavery, the government of the nation [illegible] use of those most interested, [illegible] ure welfare of those wh[illegible] pists invoke, has ta[illegible] ing the matter [illegible] ce with the in[illegible]

NOT HAD A SINGLE SLAVE FROM AFRICA

[illegible] rtaking, with- [illegible] sing it too [illegible] received with [illegible] hitherto it may give [illegible] regarded with disdain by [illegible] humanitarian sentiments. The [illegible] ent, so near Europe—that depository of [illegible] m—which has carried out so many labors [illegible] of good in the name of religion, has in its bosom human beings submerged in the most abject barbarism, who practise cannibalism and are a stain upon civilization. Would not an undertaking to Christianize these people, extinguish in them the germs of barbarism which destroy them and soften their manners be a more worthy one than to discover the sources of a river?

The HERALD, the patron of this undertaking, considered by many as useless, also finds motives of another kind which may interest European nations in the colonization and exploration of Equatorial Africa. Many articles of prime necessity grow in those regions—such as cotton, sugar cane, tobacco and all tropical fruits. To open these new markets for European productions in exchange for the native would be an enterprise worthy of the times we live in, even without counting the high humanitarian considerations to which we have already alluded.

THE INSURRECTION.

No new tidings of importance have been received within the past few days from the insurrectionary districts. The principal corps of the patriots, under the leadership of Generals Ygnacio Agramonte, Vicente Garcia, Villamil and Magin Diaz, have concentrated and taken up their position on the mountain of Bainas, belonging to the ridge of Cubitas, situated about twenty-one miles from Puerto Principe. Here, Spanish reports say, the insurgents strongly fortified their positions, but would abandon them as soon as the government troops advance in that direction. The colonel of the regiment La Reyna Ayuso officially reports an engagement he had with the insurgents on the 28th ultimo, in which, according to his report, twenty-seven insurgents were killed, his loss being one soldier killed and two officers and twelve soldiers wounded.

On the 1st instant a party of insurgents appeared in the neighborhood of El Cobre, near Santiago de Cuba, and carried off a number of horses, provisions, &c. Brigadier Fajardo has taken possession of the Central Department as Commanding General and Governor of Puerto Principe.

No further reports of military operations have reached here from Las Tunas nor from Holguin. The late disastrous encounters already fully reported have been completely confirmed. There have been rumors current of severe engagements in the Central Department, but not any of these have been confirmed. The patriots appear to be resting on the results of laurels lately won.

It is believed here that not much can be done toward the suppression of the insurrection until towards the close of this year. Captain General Ceballos is making out a full and—as far as possible—an impartial report of the state of affairs in this island, without disfiguring facts, as his predecessors have done. Fresh troops are also required, and a demand for such is to be made on the mother country. As usual, reports and rumors of all kinds and shades are current, and it is difficult to break through the barrier of falsehoods and misrepresentations which the government throws around its operations and get at anything else but the uniform and stereotyped accounts which have been given these past four years by the journals of this city.

El Cronista, the ultra Spanish paper, published in New York, has lately found no favor with the authorities in Havana. The whole edition forwarded by last mail was confiscated by superior orders.

THE SUICIDE OF MRS. KENGER.

Coroner Schirmer yesterday morning held an inquest in the case of Mrs. Ida Kenger, the woman (late of 142 Essex street) who committed suicide by taking Paris green, a full report of which has heretofore been published in the HERALD. Mr. Kenger and three or four other witnesses were examined, and the facts elicited were the same in substance as heretofore made public.

GRAND MASTER'S REPORT.

The M. W. Grand Master then presented his annual report. All the forty-eight districts in the State were officially visited by the Grand Master, who travelled over sixteen thousand miles for the purpose of instructing the members in the secret work, but recommends the appointment of a competent Grand Instructor. The Grand Master looks with some degree of apprehension on the too rapid increase of lodges, many of which organize without considering the responsibility, and the report recommends that no charter be granted unless to a double number of applicants of whom at least one be a Past Grand. The manner of investing the lodge funds is also alluded to, and proper legislation is recommended.

After referring to some decision on points of law, the P. G. reported his action in reference to the relief of the Chicago sufferers.

The report feelingly alludes to the demise of P. G. M. Seger, P. G. M. Cochrane, P. G. M. Post, P. G. Randoll and P. G. Ashton; refers to the system of voting and recommends proper legislation.

The report was received and referred to a special committee composed of P. G. M. Gould, P. G.'s Rowe and Cowan.

NEW YORK CITY.

James Allman, of 12½ Washington street, was yesterday committed by Justice Dowling, at the Tombs, on a charge of having cut William O'Connor, of 14 Washington street, in the head with a razor

In the Court of Special Sessions yesterday the presiding Justices disposed of a calendar containing seventy-two cases, all of which were for petty offences, involving nothing of more than routine business.

The body of an unknown man was yesterday washed ashore on the west side of Governor's Island and made fast by the military authorities, who immediately notified Coroner Schirmer. The remains, of which no description were given, were sent to the Morgue.

Coroner Schirmer was yesterday called to No. 2 Greene street to hold an inquest on the body of Thomas W. Baird, a youth of nineteen years, born in Kentucky and by trade a carriage maker, who died from fracture of the lower jaw and contusions of the head and neck, said to have been received about ten days ago by a fall.

The Comptroller has been paying, through his paymaster, Moor Falls, during the past two days, the Boulevard workmen along the line of their work the wages due them for two weeks ending August 10, to the amount of $43,000. Much satisfaction was expressed by the workmen at the promptness with which they were paid their wages, the Comptroller having audited and signed the rolls within a few hours of their reception in the Department of Finance.

THE PROCESSION LAW.

Meeting of Privates of the Eleventh Regiment.

At the call of Orderly Sergeant P. Mueller a number of privates of the Eleventh regiment held a meeting at the Walhall, in Orchard street, last evening, for the purpose of taking action in reference to the arrest of Captain Brandeis, of that regiment, for an alleged violation of the procession law one Sunday in June last. The meeting was called on the ground that the Board of Officers of the regiment, to whom the case had been submitted, had neglected to take action in the case to obtain satisfaction, as it is alleged that the arrest of Captain Brandeis was illegal. The meeting having been called to order, Orderly Sergeant Philip Mueller was called upon to preside. Several of the officers of the regiment were in attendance, among the number Lieutenant Charles Kunkel and Captain Focher, who counselled the privates assembled to await further developments, stating that the Board of Officers in due time will do their duty, and characterizing the proceeding as an insubordinate action in not awaiting the result of the action of the authorities. Another angry discussion ensued on a proposition that the privates should proceed in the matter on their own hook, without the aid of officers. Several of the privates argued that they, and not the officers, formed the regiment; while, on the part of the officers, it was argued that the privates were subject to the military laws of the United States and the orders of their officers, as the officers were subject to the laws and the orders of the generals in command. The result of a lengthy discussion was the appointment of a committee to take further action in the matter, and to report the result at the next meeting. The committee was composed of Messrs. Winter, of Company A; Becker, of Company C; Missaner, of Company F; Noll, of Company B, and Starch, of Company L.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The Argentine Confederation and Its Relations Toward Brazil.

Railroad Management and General Industrial Extension—Indian Raids on the Frontier—British Naval Guard Over English Interests—Trade at Rio and Emigrant Landings.

By mail at this port we have our files of South American papers, dated in Rio Janeiro the 24th of July and in Buenos Ayres the 29th of June. The journals supply the following interesting details of the latest news reports from the Empire and the States of the Confederation.

Argentine Confederation.

The River Plate Times of July 29 has the subjoined items, dated in Buenos Ayres:—

IN PRISON AND SUFFERING.

Matthew Beggs, an engine driver in the service of the Northern Railway, has been thrown into prison for the reason that he happened to be driving a train on the Northern line some four months ago, which, in spite of all his endeavors to avert the accident, ran over and killed a drunken mulatto who was trespassing on the track. Beggs is held without trial or formal charge.

INDIAN RAIDS ON THE CONFEDERATE FRONTIER.

There has been an energetic demonstration in Congress against the conduct of the Ministry, more especially as to Colonel Gainza, the Minister of War, in respect to the frontier defence. Constant reports come in as to the depredations and atrocities committed almost daily along the whole frontier by the Indians, and Colonel Gainza was arraigned by the Chambers for his gross inefficiency.

CONFEDERATION RELATIONS TO BRAZIL.

Dr. Tejedor's note to the Brazilian Cabinet has given great offence in Rio Janeiro, and there can be not the slightest question but that the note will have to be withdrawn in as public a manner as it has been issued to the world. General Mitre has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of St. Christopher's, and it is hoped that he will be empowered to settle the difficulties between the two governments by the only course now left open to the Argentine Republic—viz., that of withdrawing the deliberate insult offered to Dom Pedro by a Minister generally acknowledged to be incompetent for the important post which he at present holds.

ARGENTINE RAILROADS EXTENSION.

One of the important events of the fortnight has been the inauguration of the section of the Great Southern Railway from the Salado as far as Carmen de las Flores. The entertainment was a complete success, and the large number of gentlemen connected with the engineering profession who attended on the occasion expressed themselves in the highest degree gratified with all they saw, and with the thoroughly solid and workmanlike manner in which the works had been completed.

BRITISH INTERESTS PROTECTION.

Her Britannic Majesty's ship Rocket, Captain A. R. Wright, has arrived in port at Buenos Ayres, from Montevideo, some people say to be in readiness to protect British interests in the event of the Brazilian complication resulting in war. "Knowing what we do (says the River Plate Times) of the protection British interests are in the habit of receiving here, and looking to the not altogether gigantic size of our protector, such a reason for her presence is, of course, out of the question."

THE THEATRES AND WEATHER.

The Buenos Ayres Times of June 29 refers to the above subject in the following words:—Our theatres, as usual, are in full swing, and generally there is an expectation among pleasure goers that the Winter season will not pass over without its share of amusement.

Speaking of the Winter season reminds us that we have passed through the "veranita de San Juan," and, after the usual pampero and rain, we are now fairly plunged into the cold weather, which, if possible, is more searching here than in the Old Country.

OPERA.

Everybody has been asking about the new opera, La Condessa di Amalfi, which is to be brought out to-night (July 29) at the Colon Theatre. It will be good news—adds the journal above named—for those who like to know and follow the text of what is being performed to hear that Messrs. Adams & Co., the enterprising American advertising firm, have printed and published a libretto of the opera in question, which is extremely well got up, in clear, legible type.

THE TURF.

And again the Plate Times says:—We publish the entries for the races which are fixed to come off at Belgrano on the 9th of July.

Brazil.

THE BOUNDARY COMMISSION TO PARAGUAY.

The Brazilian transport Wasimon has left Rio Janeiro for Paraguay, with the Imperial Commission on board, appointed to settle definitively the limits of that Republic with the Empire of Brazil. The members of the Commission are S. S. Rufino Eneas, Gustavo Galvao, Francisco Xavier Lopez de Araujo and Drs. Guillermo Carlos Lassance, Augusto Wenceslao da Silva da Lisboa and Joaquim Xavier de Oliveira Punental.

THE PORT OF RIO JANEIRO—ITS TRADE, FOREIGN AND HOME.

The Anglo-Brazilian Times of the 24th of July supplies the following statements of news:—The returns for the first half of 1872 show that the vessels arriving from abroad at the port of Rio Janeiro numbered 527 sailing vessels and 174 steamers, of which 32 sailing vessels and 3 steamers were Brazilian. During the same time there arrived from ports of the Empire 690 sailing vessels and 216 steamers, of which 673 sailing vessels and 211 steamers were Brazilian. During the same time 32,659 persons arrived by sea, namely: 7,037 Brazilians and 25,622 foreigners, of whom 6,500 natives and 1,937 foreigners came from ports of the Empire; 483 natives and 8,367 foreigners to Rio from abroad, and 15,318 foreigners in transit. The departures were 26,753.

TELEGRAPHIC EXTENSION.

By royal decree the Platino-Brazileiria Telegraphic Company has obtained authorization to operate in the Empire and approval of the statutes. The company is formed to carry out the Lamas telegraph concessions from the Argentine and Oriental governments, with power to contract with the Brazilian government for connecting the Argentine and Oriental lines with those of Brazil, and to purchase the Lamas concession for a telegraph cable between Rio Janeiro and Montevideo.

CATHOLICITY ON LONG ISLAND.

Corner Stone of the R. C. Church of St. Joseph, Hewlett Station.

The corner stone of a new Catholic church was laid with appropriate ceremonies at Hewlett Station, Long Island, in presence of a numerous assemblage, yesterday afternoon. The event marked an epoch in the advance of Catholicism on the island, which will long be remembered by those who had the good fortune to be present thereat. The weather, though warm, was auspicious, and many of the guests sojourning at the Pavillion, Woodsburg and Rockaway availed themselves of the opportunity presented to participate in the religious services of the occasion. The building, which is of the Gothic style, is a frame structure, with bell top, 36 by 80 feet in dimension, and is situated on a lot 60x100 feet, the ground being the donation of Mr. Daniel Longworth. The tout ensemble of the structure reflects immense credit on the young architect, Mr. Thomas F. Houghton. The entire expense may amount to $5,000. The one P. M. train took down many of the leading Catholics of Brooklyn. Shortly before four P. M. the ceremonies were commenced, Rev. Dr. Turner, V. G., officiating in the absence of the Right Rev. Bishop. The ceremonies commenced with the blessing of the water and the chanting of the Litany of the Saints in the Latin tongue. Then came the blessing of the stone and of the entire new edifice, around which the procession wended in very pleasing array, headed by two torch bearers and a crucifix. Among the clergymen who participated were Rev. T. J. Landry, President St. John's College, Brooklyn; Rev. John Kiely, of the Cathedral, Jay street, Brooklyn; Rev. Joseph Bruneman, Rockaway; Revs. Kavanagh, Vice President, Suspension Bridge, Niagara; Carroll, East New York; Hauber, Foster's Meadows. The entire proceedings were enlivened by the presence of the zealous and faithful pastor of the new church of St. Joseph, Rev. Arthur J. Dorriss. The ceremonies over, the Very Reverend Father Turner addressed the multitude in most appropriate terms. He congratulated them on the happy issue of the day. Expressing his hopes that substantial aid would be accorded the worthy pastor in his endeavor to pay the debt of his new church, the reverend gentleman closed his happy discourse.

BEATEN BY HER SON.

The Ante-Mortem Statement to be Obtained.

Captain Charles W. Coffey, of the Twentieth precinct, yesterday afternoon informed Coroner Keenan that Mrs. Margaret Dykes, who, on the 14th inst., was terribly beaten with a club in the hands of her son, Joseph Dykes, at their residence, 442 West Twenty eighth street, was lying in Bellevue Hospital in a very critical condition. In his opinion it is highly important that the ante-mortem statement of Mrs. Dykes should be taken at the earliest possible moment, as she cannot live. The assailant was arrested at the time and is in prison awaiting the death or recovery of his mother. Such official action as may be necessary will be taken.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Assault Upon a Sea Captain.

Before Commissioner Osborn.

Yesterday, upon an application made by the Italian Consul, Commissioner Osborn issued a warrant for the apprehension of one Vincenzo Lopez, a sailor employed on the Italian bark Providenzo, who is accused of having committed an assault upon Michael Dodero, the captain, while on the high seas. Lopez has been arrested and sent to jail to await the sailing of the vessel.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Alleged Illegal Commitment.

Before Judge Barrett.

In the case of Jeremiah Savage, committed to the schoolship Mercury by Justice Scott for petit larceny, Judge Barrett granted a writ of habeas corpus, returnable yesterday, for his discharge, on the ground of illegal commitment. When the case was called the Commissioners simply produced the prisoner and the naked commitment, but no formal return to the writ. Judge Barrett held that this was no return at all, and granted an order to show cause, returnable next Monday, why the Commissioners should not be attached for contempt.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

General Tweed's Biography Contract.

Before Judge Sedgwick.

Frederick H. Greer vs. William M. Tweed, Jr.—In this matter, in which there is a sort of trinity, three cases having grown out of one contract to furnish a biographical sketch and accept some five or six copies of the work on the part of defendant, a motion was made to open the third judgment obtained in the case, amounting to $6,570 95. It will be remembered, as published in the HERALD already, that two suits had been in progress, the one to recover $300 for the number of books engaged to be taken and the second for $27,000, which included not only the volumes to be taken, but also penalties, amounting to $165 a day for every day's delay in furnishing the biography. This second judgment was vacated by Judge Robinson in an opinion whose terms were not over complimentary to the fairness of the contract on which it was based. The present judgment differed from that entered in the second suit in so far that, instead of claiming the whole penalty, damages were assessed by a referee. Defendant claims that in this, as in the $27,000 suit, no proper service of process had been made, and that the judgment had been entered surreptitiously. An adjournment was asked on the part of plaintiff to prepare counter affidavits as to regularity of service of process, and, after some discussion on that subject, the Court adjourned the hearing until Tuesday next, the execution on the judgment being stayed in the meantime.

Decisions.

Henry J. Smith vs. James G. Tighe et al.—Motion denied, with costs.

JEFFERSON MARKET POLICE COURT.

A Large Return—The Stolen Clocks—A Burglar Found in a Saloon—Embezzlement by a Clerk—The Light-Fingered Gentry—An Old Man Robs His Employer—Passing Bogus Checks—Robbery on a Steamer.

The watch returns in the above Court were unusually large yesterday morning, and contained several "heavy" cases, it being nearly noon before the last prisoner was disposed of. There were sixty-two prisoners presented for trial, forty-three of whom were held and nineteen discharged. Thirty-nine were males and twenty-three females. Nineteen were charged with intoxication, twelve with disorderly conduct, seven with being drunk and disorderly, six with assault and battery, four with petit larceny, three with grand larceny, three with being suspicious persons, two with being vagrants, two with burglary, one with felonious assault, one with false pretences, one with violating the Hotel act and one escaped convict from Blackwell's Island. The latter, Robert Curran, was sent back to serve out his sentence.

THE STOLEN GOODS—AN OWNER FOUND.

Yesterday morning Captain McCullough, of the Eighth precinct, placed "bracelets" on the wrists of two young men named Coffey and James Lawrence, and escorted them to the Court, when they were committed without bail to answer a charge of burglary. The prisoners, it will be remembered, were arrested in Greene street, Monday night, upon information given by Madame Laura, having in their possession a trunk containing two valuable clocks and several pieces of bronze ornaments, the facts of which have already appeared in the HERALD. Mr. Solomon Lobe, of 37 East Thirty-eighth street, upon reading the HERALD yesterday morning, saw a description of the goods captured by Captain McCullough, and, surmising they were a portion of the proceeds of a burglary committed on his place of business Friday night last, visited the station and identified the property as belonging to himself. A charge of burglary, charging them with forcing open the coalhole and stealing the property, was preferred against them. They denied the charge, and still claim that some person unknown to them had employed them to carry the goods to Greene street. The prisoners are the same persons arrested by Captain Byrne, of the Fifteenth precinct, a short time since in Wooster street, having in their possession about $1,500 worth of silk dresses and ladies' wearing apparel which were supposed to have been stolen. As no owner could be found for the goods, and no proof being produced that they had stolen them, they were discharged by Justice Cox.

A BURGLAR CAPTURED IN A SALOON.

A few minutes after four o'clock yesterday morning as Officer Stanton, of the Twentieth precinct, was patrolling Eighth avenue, he discovered some person in the liquor saloon of John Jackson, at 350. Rapping for assistance, he was soon joined by another officer, when the two "surrounded" the place and ordered the young man, who had made his entrance by forcing open the fanlight over the front door, to deliver himself up. He finally delivered himself up and was found to be dressed up in Mr. Jackson's coat, which he had taken from a hook in the store and hung his old one in the place of it. On his person were found several cigars and other articles which were identified by Jackson as his property. Upon being escorted to the station house in Thirty-seventh street he gave his name as Hugh Taffe, sixteen years of age, residing at 154 West Eighteenth street, and claimed to be employed in a kindling-wood factory. A complaint of burglary being preferred against him, he was committed without bail to answer.

EMBEZZLEMENT BY A CLERK.

Officer Gallagher, of the Ninth precinct, presented Matthew Shine, of No. 630 West Forty-sixth street, whom he had arrested Monday evening on complaint of his employer, Abraham Vanderbilt, of 406 West Forty-sixth street, charged with embezzling $12 in money from him. The accused admitted the charge, but his employer refusing to prefer a complaint against him, he was discharged.

CHARGED WITH STEALING A DIAMOND PIN.

John Carman, of 39 Prospect street, Brooklyn, on Monday night caused the arrest of Thomas Horam, of No. 6 West street, by Officer Dunlap, of the Ninth precinct, charged with stealing a diamond pin from him, valued at $200. The complainant states that he had the pin on the inside of his vest while riding on a Bleecker street car on Monday evening. He detected the prisoner placing his hand on his breast, and immediately feeling for his pin found it was gone. Horam denied the charge yesterday morning, and stated he was twenty-two years of age and an inspector by occupation. He was committed, without bail, to appear for trial.

CHARGED WITH ROBBING HIS ROOMMATE.

John Minster, residing at 106 Grand street, Monday night visited the Eighth precinct station house and represented to Captain McCullough that his roommate, William Galle, had broken open his trunk during his absence and stolen $65. Officer Keating arrested Galle and arraigned him yesterday morning. He denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

THE DANGERS OF WALKING ON THE BOWERY.

Charles Metcalf, of 40 West Houston street, on Monday night became somewhat jubilant over several drinks of election whiskey and concluded to take a promenade on the Bowery. In order to present a respectable appearance he ornamented himself with a watch chain, to the end of which was attached a bunch of keys. As he was strolling along looking in the shop windows James Lynch, one of the Bowery ornaments, noticing his condition, and always ready to earn an honest dollar, took his stand alongside of Metcalf and, placing his hand on his watch chain, soon had the bunch of keys in his hand. He was so much disgusted at his ill luck that he dropped the keys and was quietly walking away, when Detectives Tully and Dilks, who had noticed his movements, stepped up and escorted him to the Central Office. Both prisoner and complainant were locked up until yesterday morning, when a complaint of larceny from the person was preferred against Lynch. He denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

AN OLD MAN ADMITS ROBBING HIS EMPLOYER.

ROBBED ON A STEAMER.

Charles Hillman, a colored waiter employed on the steamer Rising Star, running from Aspinwall to this city, was presented by Officer Kennedy, of the Twenty-sixth precinct, charged with robbing several passengers on the last trip to this city. Nicolas Jimeno Collante was the only complainant who appeared against him, and charged him with entering his stateroom and stealing $80 in gold. Another passenger, named W. P. Mitchell, also was robbed of $8 in gold during the passage, and is of the opinion that Hillman took it, but owing to the small amount, refused to appear against him. The prisoner denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

PASSING BOGUS CHECKS.

On the 13th inst. William Rudolph, of 233 Thompson street, charges that James E. Pretto visited his store and purchased a pair of gaiters for $6 50. He offered in payment a check for $20 on the Eighth National Bank, No. 650 Broadway, drawn payable to his own order, and signed A. Wolf & Co., which he represented as good and that it would be honored upon presentation at the bank. Believing his statements to be true Rudolph accepted the check and paid Pretto the balance. He claims the check to be worthless, as he says there is no such house in this city. The prisoner denied the charge, but was committed in default of $500 bail to appear for trial at the Special Sessions.

A BRUTAL MURDER.

Terrible Results of Rum-Drinking in Westchester County.

Hewing a Man to Death with an Axe—A New Mode of Treating Dissatisfied Boarders—Attempted Double Murder—Fiendish Features of the Crime and Escape of the Perpetrator.

A large number of deeply interested citizens assembled in the Town Hall, at New Rochelle, Westchester county, on Monday evening, to witness the proceedings of an adjourned inquest, held by Coroner Meeks, touching the brutal murder of a laborer named Mathew Curran near that village at an early hour on Sunday morning. The jury selected on the occasion was, in the matter of intelligence, an exceptional one, Justice William R. Humphrey acting as foreman.

From the most authentic sources it has been ascertained that the taking off of Curran cannot but be regarded in the light of an inhuman butchery. Deceased, it appears, was a railroad laborer, about fifty years old, and owing to an injury received some time ago was so lame that he was compelled to walk with a stick. He, together with some fifteen others, boarded with a man named John Cody, who kept a place in the lower portion of the village and on the Pelhamville road. All of the parties worked on the railroad now in course of construction between the Harlem River and Westchester. The men having been paid on the 10th instant, as was their custom, drank heavily, keeping up the spree without intermission until the tragedy occurred.

THE CAROUSE,

it is said, was participated in by Cody and his wife, causing the latter to so neglect her household duties that the boarders were unable to procure their regular meals. Among those who became dissatisfied with the existing state of affairs were the deceased and a man named Michael Foley, both of whom left Cody's boarding house last Friday and took up their abode with a party named Barton, who keeps a place of entertainment in the immediate neighborhood. Arriving at the latter place deceased and Foley resumed their spree, drinking deeply until Saturday night, when, between ten and eleven o'clock, the intoxicated pair strolled out, as was supposed, to make the rounds of the

LOW DRINKING SHOPS

in the neighborhood. Next morning the deceased was found opposite a drinking place kept by one Gaffney, covered with blood and in a dying condition, having received several cuts on the head, one of which, in the anterior portion of the skull, was a frightful gash, through which the brain was oozing. The unfortunate man was allowed to remain by the roadside until he died, about seven o'clock on Sunday morning. Foley, it appears, had also been attacked during the night, and after being brutally beaten on the head with a stone or some other blunt instrument, wandered about in a semi-unconscious state until morning, when, on examination, it was found that, in addition to a number of severe scalp wounds, he had also sustained

A FRACTURE OF THE SKULL.

The testimony given by Foley, before he was sent for surgical treatment to the County Poorhouse, goes to show that Cody either followed or accidentally met the deceased and himself on Friday night, and while inflamed with liquor and enraged because they had left his boarding house, first attacked Foley with a rock, beating him as above described, and then deliberately went to his house (which was not far from the spot where the murder was committed) and returning with an axe dealt the deceased several

MURDEROUS BLOWS ON THE HEAD.

The work of death was plainly observed by Foley, who had crawled into a place of concealment after having his head pounded almost to a jelly by the infuriated Cody. The injured man also testified that Cody returned to the spot where his victim lay groaning in about an hour after he had buried the axe in his skull, and finding him still alive said, soliliquizingly, "Mat Curran, you son of a b—h, ain't you dead yet?" and raising brought it down with fiendish violence on the defenceless head of his expiring victim. The statement of Foley was corroborated in many material points by witnesses who were called to testify at the inquest, which resulted in a verdict being rendered that deceased came to his death through injuries received by an axe in the hands of Cody. The murderer disappeared on hearing of Curran's death, and up to last evening had not been arrested, although Detective George P. Govens, of New Rochelle, aided by New York detectives, were believed to be on his track.

In connection with the escape of the murderer, considerable dissatisfaction exists among the citizens of New Rochelle with the action of Justice Porter in the premises. It seems that Cody, having heard of the probable death of his victim, at about six o'clock on Sunday morning hastened to the house of Justice Porter and told that official that he had had a quarrel with two men, whom he feared would die, and that he wished to surrender himself. The Justice is said to have replied that he did not do business on Sunday, and told Cody to report himself to the village constable and he would attend to the matter next day.

The murdered man was buried by the town authorities after a post-mortem examination had been held on the body. Foley, who is the principal witness against the murderer, is believed to be in a fair way to recover.

DEATH OF A NEWARK ALDERMAN.

Alderman Ira Budd, of Newark, whose frightful fall from a carriage in that city last Sunday evening was reported in Monday's HERALD, died yesterday morning, between four and five o'clock, at his home in Lafayette street. Up to Monday evening hopes were indulged that the injured man might be saved, but when about to perform the surgical operation known as trepanning, the doctors discovered that the fracture of the skull extended over six inches, and that the brain was covered with blood. It was then agreed that there was no hope for him. He died in the midst of his friends without showing a sign of consciousness from the time of the accident. He was a native of Harrison township, in his forty-seventh year, had lived in Newark twenty years, and was worth probably $50,000. In politics he was a republican, but of a disposition so genial that he was twice elected in a democratic ward. Yesterday afternoon a special meeting of the Common Council was held to take official notice of Mr. Budd's death. After a brief speech by the President a series of ressolutions were adopted eulogistic of the deceased and regretting his sudden and awful taking off. The Council Chamber was draped in mourning, as also the front of the City Hall. It is not likely that any special election will be held to fill the [illegible] by his death, as the city charter p[illegible] lows:—"In case any such vacancy sha[illegible] three months before the first Tuesda[illegible] any year, it shall be within the dis[illegible] Common Council to appoint a spe[illegible] not as they shall deem expedient.' THE CAMPAIGN.

How the Political Straws Blow in California.

GREELEY TACTICIANS IN VERMONT.

Sentiments Prevailing on the Shores of Lake Erie.

Samuel J. Tilden's Ambition Carrying Him Toward the White House.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, August 19, 1872.

Starting West to see how the Fall campaign might be going in the States of which Chicago is the chief city, I first met Edgar Mills, brother of

D. O. MILLS, THE PRESIDENT OF THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA.

He was on his way to the Pacific coast to take position at the head of his great branch bank in Sacramento.

"How does Mr. Greeley stand on your coast, Mr. Mills?"

"He can't carry there, in my judgment. I am surprised to see what headway the thing has got in the East. We don't think everything of Grant, but Greeley can make very little impression on him. The coast is republican; the party is well gathered up with us; the newspaper press holds by the regular ticket; and the democrats will not poll their full vote. What we call the "Mick" element—the Irish—will support Greeley; but the "chiv." (rebel chivalry) element, which is strong and stubborn, takes an askant look at the platform of their recantation. Very wealthy democrats in parts of our country have come gradually to be identified with commercial enterprises which are dependent upon federal stability, and therefore you will meet old Mississippians, Tenneseeans, Georgians and Texans, long residents among us, who are building railroads, flumes, canals, anchorages, &c., and will support Grant on business grounds though they don't much like him."

"How does Ralston, the cashier of the bank and ruling influence on the coast, as some say, stand on this issue?"

"Ralston is not a very ardent Grant man, but he will not do anything for Greeley."

"It may be," said Mr. Mills, "that this Greeley tide will rise our way; but when I left home it was hardly ebb and flow. I must confess that the fervor for Greeley in the East is more general and decided than I supposed.

VERMONT TENDENCIES.

Meeting Mr. Daniel Roberts and some Vermonters from the city of Burlington they attested as follows:—

Mr. Roberts, an abolitionist formerly, a republican still and a lawyer of clear head and reasoning force, said:—"We have nominated in Vermont a fusion State ticket, which, we expect, will draw 5,000 votes from the regular ticket, making a change of 10,000 and reducing the republican majority to say 15,000. This change will be all, under the circumstances, desired at the State election. As the other States declare in their State elections for Greeley, we shall expect to keep up the fire here and reduce the republican vote to an equal thing or less by November. We had a harmonious State Convention at Burlington, where Kilpatrick made the popular speech, but James S. Thayer, of New York, made the reasoning speech. We want this State to be canvassed by men like Mr. Thayer. Vermont is almost immemorially anti-democratic; but Greeley's Tribune is the farmer's campaign document. He has got it for a year and must read it to save his money."

Mr. George H. Biglow, a public man and editor, also of Burlington, Vt., who supports Grant, gave still a fair view of the situation as follows:—"There is some defection here, but in the city of Burlington I believe that only fifty-six voters are claimed by the Greeley republicans, and of these only about a dozen have shown their hands. It is not assumed that there will not be a large falling off in the regular democratic vote, and there will also be some republicans who will vote neither for Grant nor Greeley. Adams would have been a more winning nomination for these parts by the republican bolters. The ablest democrat in this State, and in point of tone and bearing, the foremost leader in the State, some think, of either party, is Edward Phelps, a lawyer, of Burlington. He was a Fillmore and Bell man formerly. His wife says of him—he is now absent in Europe—that he will not support Mr. Greeley. The fusion State ticket has no ghost of a chance, though it has a couple of good names on it. Vermont is for Grant by the same relative majority as formerly. The party is too strong to go down with horn-blowing, like Jericho. When it gets as weak as Jericho appears to have been Greeley may unfix a battlement or two that way."

THE REBEL ARCHIVE DEALER.

At the Clifton House, on the Canada side of the Niagara Falls—that spot of ground by the gorge of the deep river which has just leaped the cataract and been borne again into a sort of purgatorial life—a man was pointed out to me with a youngish and yet wrinkled look, florid hair and beard, near sighted eyes and glasses, and a professional soldierly air, stern and secretive, and on the whole not prepossessing, as Pickett, the ex-rebel officer who had just precipitated the country back into ugly memories and opened the bloody chasm, by trading in Confederate documents to the high figure of $75,000.

"That money," said one indignant bystander, being told that Mr. or "Colonel" Pickett was the recipient of it, "was paid by the United States on the same principle that a husband might pay it to be assured that his wife had been formerly a leman. It was no ground for divorce, but merely acquired to promote household strife." The portrait, the trade and the result seemed to be properly suited to the spot—the Smugglers' Border—the worst place in many respects in North America by association. Nature's sublimest and most awful energies mingling along that little Niagara line with all the forms of human error and vice—war, men over the Falls, international counterfeiting, baggage smashing, Sol Davis, imposition upon travellers, banishment, Fenian invasions, Canadian revolt, spies, custom-house abuses and the sale of smallpox clothes and documents.

"Interview any of these people," said I to myself; "interview Jake Thompson, or Sanders, or the ghost of Morgan, the murdered Mason, or Pickett? No! It would be the propagation of social, moral and national epidemic, after the Dr. Blackburn fashion. I would rather deal in the old clothes of Judas than with any of these dealers in the rags of dead treasons."

THE GREELEY DEPRESSION ON THE ERIE LINE.

It is not to be doubted that the Greeley men in Western New York are despondent. They claim that all the elements, numbers, arguments and influences are vastly in their favor, and that they ought to realize the 100,000 majority prophesied at Baltimore by Governor Hoffman, and yet they are depressed about the city of New York. "There," said the Hon. Joseph Warren, "we have everything but a commander. The fifty thousand majority we ought to be assured of is likely to be frittered away by the incompetency of the new directory of the democratic forces to solidify unwilling masses and control them in the face of the disintegrating labors of O'Brien and Murphy. I mean that when Tammany Hall was made respectable in names its organization was not kept up and its machinery—the same machinery which O'Brien and Murphy have added to the Custom House party, that which puts voters in discipline and brings them out to vote—was abandoned."

NEW YORK CITY WAVERING.

This opinion prevailed from Albany to Buffalo:—That the new Tammany Hall is deficient in men of political marshalship. Another democrat said that it was the simplest thing in the world to give vitality and direction to the great Greeley majority of New York, and that was to reinstate some one capable generalissimo at the head of the Tammany Commandery—none of the old trio, but one acquainted with their method of organization, as O'Brien, in an inferior degree, got to be when he put the said system into the hands of the republicans.

"By this means," said a veteran politician, "we merely give a commandery and battalion discipline to a host of simple men who do not act unless feeling themselves part of the general responsibility." A subject of general complaint and apprehension among the democrats and liberals is the mysterious course of the

HON. SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

This fox of politics is moving midway between Schell and Hoffman, Church and Beach, the Custom House and Apollo Hall, Tammany Hall and the Committee of Seventy, toward his own exalted object of pursuit—the Presidency of the United States. He comes nearest Martin Van Buren of any of the notable men of New York in the mystery of his movements, the shortness of his parallel approaches and the infinite distance of his designs. He wants Hoffman thrown overboard with Barnard, Schell with Greeley, and with one hand on the Committee of Seventy and the other on Jimmy O'Brien's shoulder, he hopes to fly by the aid of a kite, composed of equal parts of

New York journals, republican and democratic—where? Some say to Albany as the regular democratic candidate, endorsed by the Republican Regular Convention, thus leaving the Greeley liberals out in the cold and sweeping New York city by the aid of Jimmy O'Brien's forces with warrants held over the heads of Sweeny and Tweed, and insinuations thrown out on Hoffman, to paralyze all of them. Here would, indeed, be a Machiavellian pickle. It is worthy of Matty Van Buren and the cabbage-garden campaigns planned at Kinderhook.

The first point Tilden desires to make, according to sagacious estimate, is the removal of Judge Barnard, and this will have been accomplished if his persistent presence and urging at Saratoga and his active work in the New York Assembly to achieve it have availed. Barnard removed, a judge will be obtained to refuse relief to Tweed & Company when they are committed to jail; and there they will go or remain at large as fugitives, unable in any event to guide the campaign. Or, possibly, these masters of the machinery might be placed at liberty by condignly reviving and moving their cogs and wheels in the interests of a truly great reformer and old regency democrat—nothing less than the Hon. Samuel J. Tilden. Here would be a pother worthy of Sixtus V.—Tammany made to grind, like Samson, in the mills of the Philistines, to elect S. J. Tilden Governor of the State and make him the reviver of the regency at Albany, surrounded by Henry Richmond, like another Percy, and with the Presidency dead in the wind for 1876.

There are men like Judge Verplanck and others who say that will sweep New York like a breeze, and that nobody's machinery can beat him there. "Look," they say, "at Greeley running against Sam Cox, and running him down so that Tammany had to 'count' Cox in." This, manifestly, is the hope of the Greeley thinkers:—That the wholesome impulses of the people will carry Chappaqua along, and even over the head of Conkling and Murphy's line of battle and Mr. Tilden's "shenannigan." In Erie county the German vote is nearly a unit for Greeley, and it may be said that nearly everywhere Schurz's example has carried this great element over to Greeley.

Senator Fenton is at work day and night, writing letters to everybody, and keeping up his reputation as the "best organizer New York ever had."

THE POLITICAL HEADQUARTERS.

The Liberal Republicans.

Colonel Johnson was present during the day at the Glenham Hotel Headquarters; but business was very dull. Only a few visitors dropped in, the most distinguished among them being the following:—Senator Casserly, of California; Senator West, of Louisiana, and W. U. Saunders, the colored orator. Senator Casserly states that he will start for California on Saturday, to take an active part in the campaign. David Clark, of Hartford, Conn., writes:—

To show you that we have gentlemen of the highest character with us, who have been republicans from the formation of the party, I give you the following names of some of them:—Charles J. McCurdy, Lyme, ex-Judge of the Supreme Court and ex-Minister to Austria; Mr. L. F. Foster, Norwich, Judge of the Supreme Court, ex-United States Senator and ex-Vice President of the United States; Mr. David A. Wells, Norwich; General William G. Ely, Norwich; General Joseph E. Perkins, State Senator; General Dwight Morris, late Consul at Havre; General William H. Noble, Bridgeport; Mr. Thomas S. Greeman, Mystic Bridge, the largest shipbuilder in the State, and who helped to give birth to the Republican party in 1855; Mr. T. M. Allyn, Hartford, ex-Mayor, a gentleman of great wealth and influence; Mr. Thomas Belknap, a prominent and influential gentleman of this city; Mr. J. H. Brownley, late of the Evening Post; Mr. Thomas M. Clark, West Winsted, late of the Winsted Herald; Mr. Whiting Hyde, and his son James, Willimantic, among the largest manufacturers in Eastern Connecticut; William H. Chollar, West Killingly, a prominent and influential republican; Mr. Albert Austin, Suffield, ex-State Senator and Railroad Commissioner; Hr. H. L. Reed, Danbury, and Hon. Lemuel Clift, Mystic River, member of the present Legislature, and other gentlemen of prominence; Mr. Hugh Harbison, one of the principal managers of Colt's Firearms Company, and 5,500 other republicans who have heretofore voted the republican ticket, but now ardent supporters of Greeley and Brown. I am happy to say that new recruits are flocking to our standard daily.

General Brinkerhoff writes as follows from Cincinnati:—

I have been here since Thursday night, and I think that we have got rid of pretty much all the underbrush in this neck of woods; and consequently, that being the case, rely upon carrying the First, Second and Third districts. We may lose the short term in the First district. I cannot stop for details, but you may set down Hamilton City as dead sure for Greeley and Brown for 5,000 majority.

Mr. H. A. Tenney writes from Madison, Mo., that at least twenty per cent of the native republican vote will go for Greeley.

The Democratic Headquarters.

Augustus Schell and Colonel Banks were both in attendance at the Spingler House yesterday, but there was really very little of any importance to do. Letters from Maine of a most sanguine character were received, and also from Ohio. Among the visitors were Senator Fenton, General Slocum, J. S. Thayer and Colonel Grover, of Ohio.

The Republican Headquarters.

Mr. William E. Chandler was on duty at the Fifth Avenue Headquarters yesterday. Among the visitors closeted with him for some time were General Hartranft, of Pennsylvania, the republican candidate for Governor, who expresses himself as fully confident of his election, and Sergeant-at-Arms Ordway. There was no business of importance transacted during the day.

MR. GREELEY'S MOVEMENTS.

Mr. Greeley was not at the Lincoln Club or any of the political headquarters yesterday, persisting in his close seclusion and much needed rest. A number of gentlemen inquired for him at the Lincoln Club and at the Liberal Headquarters during the day, but they could not be informed even of the place of his whereabouts.

THE COMING DEMONSTRATION.

The Executive Committee of liberals and democrats, Algernon S. Sullivan, Chairman, having in charge the arrangements for the great liberal and democratic demonstration in honor of Greeley and Brown, is in session every day at Tammany Hall, discussing measures relative to that end. It is proposed to make it the biggest affair of the kind ever seen in this city, and the committee is bothered mainly over the selection of a place large enough to hold it in. The best and most prominent speakers of both parties will participate.

WAGERS UPON THE ELECTION.

A prominent sporting man of this city, having offered to bet $10,000 that Horace Greeley will be the next President of the United States, a response accepting the wager in a similar amount was forwarded last night for acceptance and ratification. The parties who have taken up the bet belong to Wall street, and have formed a combination or pool to divide the profits or loss of the venture. In case the sporting man referred to backs out they will renew their bet (against Horace Greeley's election to the Presidency) and leave it open for general acceptance, the amount wagered, if takers turn up, to be deposited in a trust company.

POLITICAL CAMPAIGN NOTES.

There is a printers' Greeley club in San Francisco. It was organized on Sunday, the 11th instant.

Ex-President Johnson is in favor of electing the President and United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.

A thorough canvass of the German voters of the city of Springfield, Ill., reveals the fact that 751 are for Greeley, 4 for Grant and 14 doubtful.

The Chicago Tribune publishes a list of thirty-seven generals who were engaged in suppressing the rebellion that have come out for Greeley.

Among the republican stump speakers for Maine are John A. Bingham, whom Ben Butler says is a murderer, and Butler whom Bingham says is a thief.

The colored people of St. Louis will not permit one of their race to wear a white hat. If a negro is caught with one on he is in danger of having both hat and head smashed.

The Philadelphia Press thinks the Louisville Democratic Straight-out Convention will be a failure, from the fact that it will not be recognized by any prominent men of the democratic party.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says that General Grant will make no speeches during this campaign. As it was not generally expected that he would, the disappointment will not be very great.

The Newark (N. J.) Journal is not afraid to trust Mr. Greeley to make as many speeches or write as many letters as he chooses. It says:—"Let him go on speaking and writing; the more he does of each the better we shall like it, for day by day will the contrast grow stronger between the man who can do these things and the man who cannot."

The Memphis (Tenn.) Avalanche, which has in time past contributed its full share to the abuse of Horace Greeley, now says:—"There are few persons who will call in question Horace Greeley's veracity. His positive statements on all subjects are universally accepted as truthful, because the records of a long and busy public life have never traced an untruth to his door."

ADVANCE IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

WALL STREET, TUESDAY, August 20—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat and flour were lower and unsettled in sympathy with the tenor of the Chicago market, but the decline brought in buyers and led to active dealings, chiefly for export. Cotton was quiet and unchanged.

MONEY ACTIVE—3 TO 6 PER CENT.

The money market became active late in the afternoon, and the closing dealings were at 6 per cent, with the closing quotation 5 a 6 per cent on call. The first business and the early renewals were at 3 per cent, but the inquiry grew active after two o'clock on a legitimate demand, and the rate advanced to 4 per cent. This fact was taken advantage of by the bear clique in the stock market, who added an artificial element to the inquiry and ran the quotation up as stated. The advices from Chicago of the immense shipments to that city of grain from the interior are the chief cause of the legitimate element of the better demand for money, but the extent of the present necessities can hardly be enough to warrant any large advance just now in the rate on call. Meantime a rather firmer feeling is perceptible in discounts, and prime paper is hardly negotiable at less than 7 per cent.

ADVANCE IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

The decline in gold and the prospective easier access to cash gold during the rest of the season led to a further hardening of the foreign exchanges, as indicated in a raising of the rates for sterling to 109½ for sixty-day and 109⅞ for sight bills by the leading foreign bankers. The market is far from being firm at these figures and is only nominally quoted so, buyers obtaining readily a concession of ⅛ a ¼ per cent for any moderate amount. With the great

DECLINE IN WHEAT

we look to see a fresh and extensive supply of commercial bills drawn against exports, the appearance of which is just now delayed because of the unsettled state of the gold market. Indeed, three several reasons are now claimed to have entered into the calculations on which the "bulls" based their recent retreat from the speculation for a rise in gold. These are, in brief, the culmination of the Chicago "corner" in wheat, the verdict at Saratoga and the later more encouraging prospects of a re-election of the present administration at Washington. We give the last reason, not from any of our own, but simply as an influence which entered into the causes operating to effect the decline in gold. It should be remembered that the gold clique have not vanished from existence. They are only broken up and reduced to smaller proportions. The bigger and wealthier members have withdrawn, but a nucleus is left around which a devoted partisanship is still warmly fighting.

THE EXPORTS OF THE WEEK.

The aggregate exports of domestic merchandise from the port of New York to foreign ports for the week ending August 20, 1872, was $3,906,951.

A DECLINE AND RALLY IN GOLD.

The gold market opened weak under a heavy pressure of "short" sales, and declined to 113¾. True to the phase of human nature, which has so often recorded the folly of buying when prices are high and selling when they are low, the host of speculators who were willing to buy gold at 115½ rushed eagerly to sell "short" at 114. Visions of a rapid fall to 112 or perhaps 110 floated before the excited imagination of these enthusiasts, and, in their haste to secure a fortune on the downward turn, they oversold the market, causing a reaction like the return of an India rubber ball, and lifting the price back to 114¼. The oversales of Monday are reflected in the extraordinary clearances of over $140,000,000 and in the payment of a consideration of 1-64 a 1-32 for the use of gold in making deliveries this afternoon. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	114¼	12 M.	114
11 A. M.	114	1 P. M.	114⅛
11:11 A. M.	113¾	3 P. M.	114¼
11:14 A. M.	113⅞	4 P. M.	114⅛ a 114¼

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from 3 per cent for carrying to 1-32 for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$142,974,000
Gold balances	3,063,551
Currency balances	3,751,997

The Sub-Treasury paid out $30,000 on account of interest and $1,000 on account of redeemed five-twenties.

GOVERNMENTS HEAVY.

Government bonds continued heavy with the decline in gold, currency prices showing a yielding of ⅛ a ¼ per cent from last night's quotations. There was a corresponding improvement, however, in gold values, and the London price of 62's this evening is ⅛ per cent higher than last night. The following are the closing quotations:—

STOCKS HEAVY AND LOWER.

The early decline in gold had the effect of imparting a steady and moderately firm tone to the stock market, particularly as the situation of the gold pool regarding Pacific Mail turned attention to that stock and induced a good deal of buying of it, advancing the price to 74⅛. But the rally in gold by the remnant of the clique, helped, as they were, by the oversold condition of the market and the flurry in money as narrated above, induced heaviness and eventually weakness, the market falling off pretty nearly a half per cent all around. In the case of Wabash there was a sudden drop from 75¼ to 73, with not a single sale between 74½ and 73. The explanation of this last incident lies in a "stop" order to sell at 74. The stock having been offered at that price after sales at 74½ the broker accepted the next best bid, which happened to be 73, thus fulfilling his instructions literally, although the price recovered to 73⅝. The decline in Wabash was due to sales of the stock by parties who had been holding it on "puts," which expired recently. The closing quotations were generally the lowest of the day.

NEW CROP RICE.

The steamship Manhattan, which arrived in this city last evening, brought the first of the new crop Carolina rice. The parcel (six casks) was shipped by Daniel Talmage's Sons, of Charleston, and is consigned to their house in this city, 110 Water street (where a sample cask is on exhibition). It was grown on the Pon Pon River by a successful colored planter. There is a considerable rivalry between many of the planters to get the first of the new into market, and to gain time the grain on the outskirts of the field is cut often before the grain has thoroughly matured. This fact accounts for the generally broken condition of the early receipts. The present parcel, however, seems to be an exception, it being quite whole, very white and pearly in appearance, and, altogether, much handsomer than usual for the period. In regard to the crop of the present year we have no further data than already laid before our readers. The crop having, it is hoped, safely passed through danger apprehended from salts and caterpillars, bids fair to equal that of year before last. Messrs. Daniel Talmage also show us samples of the Louisiana new crop, an invoice of which comes consigned to them from New Orleans by the steamship St. Louis. The quality is good, but considerably broken.

YACHTING.

THE TIDAL WAVE AND MADGIE.

A Close Race for the Challenge Cup Won by the Former.

Contests in Prospect—The Newport Citizens' Cups and Madgie and Madeleine $400 Cup.

NEWPORT, R. I., August 20, 1872.

The harbor this morning was crowded with yachts, the finest of the pleasure fleet sailing under the Stars and Stripes. At ten A. M. a meeting of the captains of the New York Yacht Club fleet was held on board the flagship Dauntless in order to consider the programme for the remainder of the cruise. It was finally arranged to sail the race for the

CUPS PRESENTED BY THE NEWPORT CITIZENS

to-morrow. The course will be from an imaginary line between Brenton's Reef lightship and the buoy to the Sow and Pigs, leaving the lightship on the starboard hand, and return to starting point. The race is open to yachts of all yacht clubs, and consequently there will be a large entry. There will be no time allowance in the race to-morrow, the first boat in winning the prize. Nearly all the schooners will start, excepting some of the smaller ones, and in the sloop race the Meta and Coming will probably put in an appearance. The schooner yacht Eva left to-day for Martha's Vineyard, after which she will steer direct for Cape May.

THE RACE TO-DAY

was between the schooners Madgie and Tidal Wave for the challenge cup, won last year by the former, when she beat the Sappho by fifty-seven seconds. The race to-day was hardly a satisfactory test between the two yachts, as the wind did not hold steady throughout. The Tidal Wave turned the buoy twenty-nine minutes ahead of the Madgie, but the latter beat the Tidal Wave nearly twenty-five minutes, coming home in a fresh breeze close hauled. The Tidal Wave, however, won the Challenge Cup by thirty-eight seconds. The course was from an imaginary line between a stakeboat off Fort Adams and the Dumpling Rock, round the buoy off Block Island and return. About eleven A. M. the two competing yachts weighed anchor and stood outside Goat Island, when they lay with their jibs to windward, awaiting the starting signal. The Regatta Committee were in the catboat, Our Kitty, and at forty-one minutes past eleven they gave the preparatory warning, and ten minutes later the signal to go. There was a pleasant breeze about south by east, and the tide was running ebb. They crossed the line as follows:—

THE START.

	Owner.	Cubical contents.	Time. H.	M.	S
Madgie	R. F. Loper	6,482	10	52	14
Tidal Wave	W. Voorhis	8,880	10	53	51

The Madgie was under mainsail, foresail, two square-headed topsails and three jibs, and the Tidal Wave had up mainsail, foresail, main club topsail, small foretopsail and three jibs. The Madgie kept along close under Bateman's Point, just skirting the rocks, and the Tidal Wave followed in her wake. The Madgie set her staysail and the Tidal Wave soon followed suit. The Madgie luffed close round the point, trimmed sheets, took in balloon staysail and headed about southwest. The Tidal Wave kept her ballooon up, and soon began to overhaul the Stonington schooner. The Tidal Wave kept her luff and began drawing upon the weather quarter of the Madgie, her balloon staysail drawing well. The Madgie then set a small working staysail and trimmed the main sheet well aft. The Tidal Wave was still closing up on the weather quarter, and at last she began to bear away, and,

COVERING THE MADGIE, TOOK THE LEAD.

The Madgie then came out on her weather quarter and did pretty well as long as the breeze lasted, but that was gradually lightening up to light air. The Tidal Wave increased her lead very fast with the wind hauled around to about northeast on the beam. Sheets were all eased off, but the Madgie could do nothing with the North River Queen, whose big topsail and staysail were doing good service. The Tidal Wave carried up sufficient breeze to round the buoy against a tide setting like a mill-race to the eastward, and then, going up on the starboard tack close hauled, she started for home with the tide helping her along. The Madgie here got into difficulties, as, the breeze dying away, she could hardly stem the tide, and she did not get round until twenty-nine minutes after the Tidal Wave, during which time the latter had travelled about six miles and was hull down. The yachts

TURNED THE BUOY

as follows:—

	H.	M.	S.
Tidal Wave	2	08	00
Madgie	2	37	00

When the Tidal Wave hauled in the wind she took in her jib topsail. It took the Madgie about five minutes after rounding to get her sails properly set on the wind, but when trimmed down they were a picture and a credit to the Stonington artist who cut them. The wind had now hauled round about due east, but appeared a little variable as the Madgie was heading up two points better than the Tidal Wave. The latter stayed at 3:16 P. M., and made a stretch to the northward. The Madgie had been coming up hand over hand, and was now only three miles astern. The Madgie tacked to the nor'ard at 3:21, and still kept gaining on the Tidal Wave, which finally sent up her jib topsail. Both yachts were then on the port tack, and at 3:45 they stayed and stood for home. Now the race began in earnest, and it became intensely interesting as the breeze freshened and the Madgie gradually closed on the Tidal Wave. She set her balloon staysail, but shortly afterwards took it in, as the wind headed her off her course. The Madgie, with a good breeze, kept closing up to windward on the Tidal Wave's quarter. Every mile they travelled lessened the distance between them, and as they went by Bateman's Point it was any one's race, making allowance for the time the Tidal wave had to give the Madgie.

THE ARRIVED AS FOLLOWS.

	Arrival. H.	M.	S.	Actual Time. H.	M.	S.	Corrected Time. H.	M.	S.
Tidal Wave	5	28	4	5	29	13	5	29	13
Madgie	5	28	25	5	36	11	5	29	51

The Tidal Wave, therefore, wins the Challenge Cup by thirty-eight seconds. It is seldom such a close race is sailed, and with a strong steady breeze the Tidal Wave would have had hard work to repeat her victory, as the Madgie is not sparred or rigged for light air.

THEY MADGIE AND MADELEINE ARE MATCHED

to sail twenty miles to windward and return in an eight-knot breeze for a $400 cup. The schooner yacht Josephine, Mr. Lloyd Phœnix, of the New York Yacht Club, is anchored in the harbor.

ALLEGED HOMICIDE.

Fatal Result of Business Rivalry.

For some time past there has been a bitter and unrelenting feeling of rivalry existing between two saloon keepers doing business in the immediate vicinity of 443 West Forty-third street. The rivals often indulged in wordy wars, and threats of personal violence passed between them. Last Saturday night the trouble broke out afresh, during which John Goory, who stood in the crowd which had collected, threw a lager beer glass, and it took effect on the head of Margaret Fritz, a child four years of age, who was in her mother's arms at the time. The little girl was reduced to insensibility, and probably received a fracture of the skull. She lingered till Monday night and expired from the effects of the violence received.

Captain Killalea, of the Twenty-second precinct, hearing of the occurrence, took prompt action in the matter, and arrested Goory, who is alleged to have thrown the glass, and Justice Coulter committed him. Other parties, more or less implicated, have been detained as witnesses. Coroner Schirmer will thoroughly investigate the matter.

The names of none of the persons detained by the Captain were made known. The parents of the deceased child live at 443 West Fifty-second street.

THE HEAT.

James Foley, a plasterer, thirty-three years of age, born in Ireland, died in Bellevue Hospital from the effects of the extreme heat. Deceased lived at 407 East Eighteenth street, whither the body was removed. Coroner Schirmer was notified.

Henry Koehler, a German, forty-six years of age, was sunstruck on Monday, and died in Bellevue Hospital. He lived at 528 Ninth avenue. Coroner Schirmer has the case in charge.

The following additional cases of sunstroke were reported at the Police Central Office, in Mulberry street, last night:—

John Murray, of Kingsbridge Road and 165th street, at the corner of 110th street and Sixth avenue. Sent home.

George Sutton, aged 86 years, of Newark, at 61 Eldridge street; attended by a physician and taken care of by his friends.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, August 20, 1872.

The State Department Scandal-Mongering.

The denial furnished by the State Department to the effect that it is not known at that Department that there is anything in its archives relating to the scandalous conduct of Cassius M. Clay while Minister to Russia is disproved by the fact that copies of the Clay record have already been furnished by the State Department, and are in the handwriting of a prominent official on duty there. The record against Kilpatrick has been suppressed. Secretary Fish, in a recent letter, stated that he was opposed to the publication of such documents. Nevertheless, they are to be furnished for political effect during the Presidential campaign.

Experiments With Cannon Powder.

Interesting experiments have been in progress at Fortress Monroe for some time past, under direction of Rear Admiral Case, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, for the purpose of improving the explosive and other qualities of cannon powder. The results attained so far, with the aid of the latest discoveries, are fifty per cent increased force, greater velocity and diminished pressure on the walls of the gun. One of the latest trials was the firing of a fifteen-inch smooth bore with the same charge as was fired from a twelve-inch rifle at the turret of the British iron-clad Glatton. The impact of the smooth bore projectile was found to be 9,035 tons to the square inch, while the impact of the rifle shot on the Glatton's turret was but 6,100 tons, or nearly fifty per cent increase. It is certain that had the charge used against the Glatton been of the same quality as that fired at Fortress Monroe, the turret would have been completely disabled. These results art regarded by naval men as placing the United States ahead of all other Powers in the great contest between ordnance and defensive armor, besides greatly increasing the efficiency of the torpedo system

Nicaragua and the Inter-Ocean Canal.

M. Bernard, the Nicaraguan Minister, has informed the State Department that his government will cheerfully render every assistance to the exploring party to be sent out by the Navy Department in making the survey for the inter-oceanic canal through Nicaragua.

Pre-empting Diamond Lands.

The Secretary of tue Interior has referred to the Attorney General the question whether mineral lands in Arizona can be pre-empted as diamond lands. It is understood by the Commissioner of the Land office that the localities where it is claimed deposits of precious stones have been discovered belong to the mineral tracts and are not exempt from the provisions of law governing preemptions of mineral lands.

The Third National Bank of Baltimore and the Late Robbery.

The bank examiner at Baltimore to-day reported to the Comptroller of Currency that, so far as he had been able to examine the affairs of the Third National Bank of Baltimore, the loss by the recent robbery would not exceed $60,000.

Order to Gauge Beer Casks.

The Internal Revenue Bureau has under consideration an important circular, which, when completed, will be sent to gaugers throughout the country, ordering them to commence at once the gauging of all beer casks used by brewers. The object is to ascertain if the casks now used have not a greater capacity than represented by the class of stamps required. The stamps issued are for hogsheads, barrels, half, sixth and eighth-barrel. Upon inspection, should gaugers find that the smaller measures have a capacity greater than heretofore represented by the stamps used, the gauger will be required to mark the cask as requiring a stamp of the next highest capacity, or else the brewer must have them cut down to the required measurement. The use of stamps for third-barrel casks is prohibited by law, and should casks of this size be used, Collectors are required to exact the tax due from half-barrels. The expense of gauging is to be paid by the government. Gauging of beer casks have heretofore not been required, and lively opposition to the order is anticipated.

The Kentucky War Claim.

The claim of the State of Kentucky for money expended during the war in equipping and arming volunteers, amounting to $525,258, will be paid to-morrow. This claim has been pending for some time, and was only allowed by special legislation of Congress.

Treasury Balances.

The balances in the Treasury at the close of business to-day were as follows:—

Currency	$6,479,769
Coin	71,975,009
Including in certificates	30,255,000

BROOKLYN AFFAIRS.

Was It a Legal Appointment?

Doubts have been expressed among the politicians about the Hall as to the legality of the appointment of R. M. Whiting, Jr., as a Commissioner of the Board of City Works. The charge is that Whiting was appointed after the time specified by the act of the Legislature, and that one of the appointing power was absent from the meeting at which the appointment was made. Alderman Wylie, of the Seventh ward, has prepared a resolution to be submitted at the next meeting of the Common Council directing the Auditor not to audit and the Comptroller not to pay any bill or salary ordered to be paid by a vote of Whiting, and calling for the opinion of Corporation Counsel De Witt as to the legality of the appointment in question.

A Social Thief.

Daniel Toohill, of 85 South place, Brooklyn, was passing the corner of Third avenue and Twenty-fourth street, on Monday evening, about eight o'clock, when he was accosted familiarly by a party of young men standing there, who insisted on him joining them in a social "drink." While Mr. Toohill was talking with these new-found festive friends of his he felt a tug at his pocket, and turning around saw one of the crowd running down the street. He at once cried out "Stop thief!" and Officer Junkeman, of the Eighteenth precinct, came up and chased the man who was running away. The officer succeeded in capturing his man and also the watch and chain of Mr. Toohill, which the thief had thrown away in his flight. The prisoner was arraigned yesterday morning before Judge Shandley, at Essex Market Court, under the euphonious name of Conklin Pearsall. Conklin admitted being there, but said he did not steal the watch. He was held to answer in default of $1,000 bail.

Inspector Folk Quelling a Barroom Row.

The veteran Police Inspector, John S. Folk, was before Justice Walsh yesterday for clubbing Frank Foe, of 85 Columbia street, on the night of Saturday, the 3d instant. Foe and a party named Degnan were fighting in a barroom at No. 1 Atlantic street, when the Inspector, who happened to be in the vicinity, heard the row and proceeded to the place. The barroom was crowded, but as soon as Folk entered he thrust men aside to the right and left until he reached the fighters. He ordered them to clear out, whereupon Foe, as charged, resisted and tore the Inspector's coat. Folk then struck him on the head with his club, and there was no further disturbance in the place after that. Yesterday Foe denied that he tore the Inspector's coat, but John G. Dean and the Inspector himself swore that he did. Mr. Folk admitted having clubbed the complainant, though not before the latter had resisted and torn his coat. Justice Walsh reserved his decision.

The Lie Which Brought Phil Brennan a Caning—General Catlin's Last.

General Isaac S. Catlin is Assistant United States District Attorney. He fought bravely in the Union army during the rebellion and returned home with but one leg, having lost the other on a Southern battle field. The General's latest victim is ex-Assessor Phil Brennan. The two met on Court street yesterday, and a dispute arose between them regarding certain events at the recent primary election. Phil gave Catlin the lie, but had hardly uttered the words when that terrible cane, the same one with which Webster and Hodges suffered castigation, descended on his head. A crowd instantly collected, and a fight would probably have occurred between the men had not Jakey Worth and several others interfered and separated them. The stated cause of the little unpleasantness was that Brennan promised to assist Catlin at the primary in the Nineteenth ward, failed to do so, and, when charged with infidelity, characterized the General as a liar.

Anticipating a Riot.

A man employed on the elevator Scotia, lying at Atlantic docks was discharged by the superintendent, Mr. Scott, yesterday, when the other workmen threatened to strike work also, unless their colaborer was re-instated. Mr. Scott refused to take him back and all the workmen stopped work and gathered in little crowds about the docks. A new gang was engaged in New York and went to work on board the Scotia. The strikers continued to hang about and received additions to their numbers, when the superintendent, fearing a disturbance, applied to the police. Inspector Folk and 100 men repaired to the place but there was no occasion for their services. The strikers contented themselves with threats against the elevating company (the International), and finally retired from the docks. The "trimmers" employed aboard another elevator also quit work because two of the gang were discharged and joined the throng yesterday. The police will continue to guard the property against the strikers.

The Struggle for the Possession of a Child.

In the City Court yesterday the matter of the application of Mrs. Mary S. Rich, for the possession of Kitty Maude Clowes, infant daughter of Norris Clowes, was heard by Judge McCue. The circumstances of this case have heretofore been published in the HERALD. Clowes was formerly connected with the New York and Brooklyn press, but after the death of his wife (who was a relative of the petitioner in this proceeding), which took place on Blackwell's Island, he gave the child into the custody of John Higgins and wife, of New York, who subsequently delivered her to Mrs. Rich, with the understanding that the latter was to pay $300, the amount due for board, &c. The whole sum was not paid, and the Higginses forcibly took the child away. This brought the matter into Court. The relationship of the petitioner was proven yesterday, and also the fact that the father, Norris Clowes, who is now in Pittsburg, gave to Mr. Colgen, a relation of the wife, an instrument in writing, by which Mrs. Rich was to have the care and custody of the child.

Judge McCue awarded the custody of the child to Mrs. Rich, and recommended that Mrs. Higgins be paid $100 for board due. Little Kitty, who is about three years of age, was then surrendered to Mrs. Rich, and Mrs. Higgins wept.

LIGHTHOUSE TENDER FLORIDA, R J Lowden, captain, was capsized in a squall on Saturday forenoon about half way between Halibut Point and Newburyport Bar. The vessel was light in her hold and had a cargo of coal in sacks upon her deck, and when the squall struck her the deck load shifted and over she went so suddenly that the persons on board had hardly time to jump overboard. It happened that the boats of the Florida were towing astern, and the men succeeded in severing the fastenings before the vessel filled and sunk, and the crew, eight in number, were all saved and picked up by the schr Hattie M Mayo, of Eastport, and were brought into Newburyport, where they arrived at about half-past four o'clock PM. The Florida was built in Baltimore, in 1860, was a schr of about 50 tons burden, and left Boston on Tuesday of last week on a supplying expedition with fuel for the lighthouses. THE TEXANS' TERROR.

An Incident Showing the True Character of the Rio Grande Robber.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

As considerable agitation is now going on about General Cortina, the pirate of the Rio Bravo del Norte, I would mention a little circumstance coming under the immediate notice of myself, characteristic of this scoundrel and his bravado manner. A party of gentlemen in 1860 went from Texas to Mexico to purchase a "ganado" of horses. Having accomplished their purpose they returned home in company with the herd, and on the third day of their journey came to a rancho and asked the proprietor the privilege of corralling their horses in his corral for that night. He granted the request. After a hearty supper the owners of the herd and the proprietor of the rancho smoked their cigarettes and indulged in a conversation relative to affairs of the country, &c. The head herdsman made some very stringent remarks about Cortina, and denounced him as a cut-throat, coward, &c. The proprietor of the rancho laughingly said, "It would not be well for you if Cortina should overhear your remarks." The herdsman replied, "I would give my horses if I could meet him face to face. I would kill him like a dog." This manner and tone of conversation was kept up until it became time to retire.

In the morning, after getting breakfast and everything in readiness to drive the horses to the next stopping place, the owner of the horses asked the proprietor of the rancho how much he was indebted to him for his trouble and kindness. "Oh, nothing, Señor," said the ranchero; "but you can do me a favor when you get in Texas." "Name it," said the owner of the horses; "I will do any favor you ask of me." "Well, then," said the ranchero, just tell your friends along the road that you stayed all night with Cortina, the cut-throat and coward, and that he sends his regards to the Texans and will call upon them in the course of a few weeks for some cattle!" The horsemen looked somewhat sheepish, and though very brave when talking, as they presumed, behind Cortina's back, were very quick to say "Buenos dias," and put spurs to their horses when they found themselves in his presence.

SARATOGA.

The Fashionable Furor Unabated.

THIRD DAY OF THE RACES.

THREE CAPITAL CONTESTS.

Count d'Orsay the Winner of the Two-Year-Old Sweepstakes, Experience Oaks of the Three-Year-Old Purse, and Mary Louise the Free Handicap.

SARATOGA, August 20, 1872.

Fashion, usually cold and calculating, seems to have gone mad over the races now held in her Summer capital. Not only does the fickle dame pay court attended by queens of beauty, maids of honor and dancing nymphs, but even those from whom graver things might be expected seem driven to join in the dissipation of the gay carnival. Men whose reverend and austere air gave them influence in the Senate, men who wore white locks as a crown of glory, and judges whom nature had tonsured that she might mark them as priests of the law, are, like bad boys, "gambolling on the green." Even ministers of the Gospel, with no fear of unholy communion with the wicked world before their eyes, go blindly to destruction, betting on the losing colt. The excitement has proven so contagious that it defies all efforts to keep it within bounds, and all the little villages within a circuit of a score of miles have been inoculated with the "pizen." Everybody button-holes every other body to talk "horse" from a personal point of view, and as there are a dozen who lose their money to one who wins the chances are that the button-holed one falls into the hands of disaffected mercenaries eleven times in twelve. There are said to be twenty-five thousand visitors in Saratoga this week, who expend on an average seven and one-half dollars per day—a total of over one hundred and eighty-seven thousand dollars daily; while the betting each day is in round numbers about one hundred thousand dollars, of which one-half is in the pools.

THE POOL SELLING.

Last night was the best of the meeting. There was a much larger attendance than on any previous occasion, and the bidding was more spirited. The pools were sold, as usual, at the Honorable John's. The club house was two-thirds filled by the sporting fraternity, including a few of the Kentuckians and other South State men. There was also a slight sprinkling of gentlemen with white neckerchiefs, who might have been clergymen and might have been bridegrooms. A few Senators who were on the point of leaving the Springs, the impeachment trial being over, dropped in and mixed gayly with the crowd. There were also said to be judicial celebrities hovering about. No ladies were present. A string of $700 pools was sold, and the aggregate sales of the evening were a little over $20,000.

THE START FROM THE SPRINGS

was a very humorous one in many of its features. Belles stood, fan in hand, with babyish, pouting mouths, on the steps of Congress Hall, waiting for "Joe," or "Tom," or "Charlie," in a perfect tempest of anxiety and indignation. Uncharitable listeners suggested that the gentlemen called for had gone to "take a drink"—of Congress water. Widows in weeds, "fat and fair," sighed softly, like cooing doves, and waited patiently for their "dear naughty fellows." Buxom aged ladies, with crisp and crimp gray curls, and white or lavender kids—those ladies usually denominated "dowagers"—sat with a feverish aspect and an irascible smile, flipping their fans with more energy than grace, and alternately compressing their lips and lifting their eyebrows in a way that expressed much plainer than words, "I told you so—always late!" Lean, lank men, with leathery faces and great hooked noses, stalked off, umbrella in hand, and with spectacles abeak. Oily-faced men, with iron-gray hair and spotless white vests shielding enormou abdomen, scrambled down with turtle-like velocity to the long-waiting carriage, which small boys crowed behind.

EN ROUTE TO THE RACES.

Landaus, coupes, Clarendons, drags, dog carts and phaetons led off in the start, followed by the "Red Bird" and Gumptown coaches and the Geyser spring carryall. First comes Vanderbilt—the old gentleman and his pretty wife on the box, coachman and footman sitting behind; so that all the country people believe he is taking them out for a drive. Then comes Senator Jarvis Lord, of Rochester, owner of three banking houses and the heaviest contractor in the United States; also a political partner of Sanford E. Church, the present Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Then follow his two sons—George D. Lord, of the Assembly, and Frank N. Lord, of Governor Hoffman's staff. Colonel May, with his wife and his pretty daughter, come later in a Clarence, and General Carver in an open barouche. The latter has not missed the season at Saratoga for fifty years, and is celebrated as the first agitator of a railroad to the Pacific. He published a pamphlet in '38 prophecying hotel and palace sleeping cars from New York to San Francisco—anticipating the man Train and the facts by a quarter of a century. Wm. E. Marshall, the artist who became famous from his portrait of Lincoln, and who skated with the Empress Eugénie on the imperial pond, where the Duke de Morny presided in the days before Sedan, comes later, and leads Mr. Maurice J. Power, of New York, and his beautiful wife, who bowl along in a carriage ahead of O'Donovan, the Southern sculptor—critic of "Fine Arts"—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Chapin, of Peekskill-on-the-Hudson, are in a landau, and James Parkinson, of Philadelphia, last but not least, follows.

THE GRAND STAND

was well filled at half-past eleven o'clock, there being about three thousand persons present, of whom some twelve hundred were ladies. The display of fashion was not so great as on the day previous, and the tout ensemble less brilliant in color. Still there was a large sprinkling of the élite of the Springs, and many distinguished personages present. Prominent among the owners and backers of horses were O. M. Bassett; W. L. Brown, of Cleveland, Ohio; Thomas McGuire and McDaniels. Philip Pharleigh, dressed as an English swell, with mutton chop whiskers, was fanning himself and winking at Dusenberry, who regarded his immense blonde mustache with the most exquisite amour propre. Altogether the Grand Stand had its fascination for the guileless.

ON THE GREEN

and under an awning Dr. Underwood, S. O. P., was selling pools on the American plan, "the more you put down the less you pick up," at a rapid rate. A little distance off stood John Morrissey "coaching" his jockey, who rides Defender, and explaining the advantage of an even start over the "pruts" of an unequal race. The Doctor's pure Dublin brogue—Underwood is a Frenchman, born through stress of weather in the cove of Cork—drowned poor Morrissey's English, so that the jockey left in such a bewildered state that he lost

THE RACE.

Judge Connolly was early reported as suffering from a coup de soleil, which later turned out to be a false alarm. Subsequent reports assigned his illness to friction excited by the clouded jockey who ran around his orbit yesterday, and whose action upon extended surfaces even Plantamour failed to compute with the nicety that would obviate gastronomic results. The very latest bulletins report the Big Judge as well as could be expected while laboring under the shock. A gentleman who very closely resembled Mayor Hall, of New York, excited considerable attention—even approaching to enthusiasm—standing on the green. It was not His Honor, however.

The next sensation was a gentleman who carried a pair of Lord Ross' field lenses attached to his shoulders, and who seemed in a quandary whether he should weigh anchor like a ship, or fly like a bird. He having passed out of the horizon of the Grand Stand, there was a lull in the conversation.

THE STABLE BOYS

as usual congregated about the judges' stand and manifested their especial preferences. The negroes when the horses approached on the homestretch ran forward in a long broken column, waving their hats, throwing up their caps and yelling themselves hoarse, only to see their favorites lose. The colored jockeys were, in fact, particularly unfortunate in the day's racing, and the stable boys, instead of running forward kissing (bah!) and hugging each other, could only roll on the grass and smother their discontent.

RUMINATING ON THE RESULT.

It is impossible to stop here, although the first race has been run and the second one is at the finish. The sour visages, the long-drawn faces about are too comical not to be portrayed. Everybody has made his bet on Gray Planet, and Experience Oaks has won. There are some tears, doubtless, on Angelina's cheeks—the belle of yesterday—whose gallant has after all won the wager, and there are certainly curses upon the lips of all the professionals. The New Yorkers have all made their little deposits on the comet, and the comet at the last moment has for the second time failed to keep its appointment. There is a financial crash in the tribe of Gotham. There is dismay at the thought of hotel bills unpaid (and politics unsettled), and yet the busy world wags on its winding way.

THE RACING.

The track to-day was the best we have had at this meeting, and the weather was delicious. Good racing and fast time were looked for, and no one was disappointed, as every race was "done quickly." Three races were run, the first being a dash of three-quarters of a mile by two-year-olds; the second, a mile and an eighth by three-year-olds, and the third, a dash of a mile and three-quarters for all ages. All the races were satisfactory events, particularly to the winners. There were "wry faces" when Experience Oaks won the second race, she being considered of so little account in the race that one hundred to three was about the odds in the pools, and in the Paris Mutuel machine they ground out $243 75 for every $5 invested. The last race was won by Mary Louise, who won the selling race yesterday afternoon, and was sold to Mr. Hale, of Boston, for $1,600, $200 going to the association and $200 to the second horse. The gentleman won more than he paid for the mare.

In the first race there were twenty-nine entries, but only four starters. These were Hunter & Travers' imported black colt Strachino, by Parmesan, dam May Bell; A. Belmont's chestnut colt Count d'Orsay, by Kentucky, dam Lady Blessington; W. W. Glenn's chestnut colt Merodoc, by Australian, dam Ada Cheatham, and D. D. Wither's imported bay colt by Marsyas, dam Marchioness, by The Marquis. The stake amounted to $2,250. The colts were all of the finest types of the thoroughbred racer, and seldom if ever have we seen four so beautiful in a race. Mr. Belmont's and Hunter & Travers' colts sold for even money just before the start, and they came in first and second, Belmont's winning. The time of the race was not as good as was anticipated. The winner is a fine chestnut, about fifteen three, with a star in his forehead and a white rear fore foot. He started in the Saratoga stakes at the last meeting, but was kicked by Cora Linn and did not get a place.

The three-year-old race had five starters, comprising Hunter & Travers' bay colt Buckden, by Lord Clifden, dam Consequence; T. B. & W. R. Davis' brown colt Piedmont, by Asteroid, dam Fairy; Glen Flora Breeding Association's brown filly Experience Oaks, by Bonnie Scotland, dam by Lexington; D. D. Withers' brown filly by Eclipse, dam Hennie Farrow, and A. Belmont's g. c. Gray Planet, by Planet, dam Eagless. The latter was a great favorite over the field previous to the start. This race knocked all the betters "into a cocked hat." Experience Oaks won it easily, and she sold in the pools "for nothing." In the Paris Mutuels, where $5 were given for her, the betters received $243 75; and one gentleman showed a pool ticket that he paid $26 for which brought him back, discount off, $1,168. The result of this race upset the speculators, and they began to "plunge for hunk."

The free handicap had six starters. These were Bacon & Holland's brown horse Frank Hampton, by imported Aysgarth, dam by Charley Ball; A. C. Franklin's bay mare Arizona, by Lexington, dam imported Zone; Isaac W. Pennock's bay colt, by Vandal, dam Margravine; D. R. Harness' chestnut colt Meteor, by Asteroid, dam Maria Innis; John Morrissey's chestnut horse Defender, by John Morgan, dam Cynconia, and J. W. Weldon's gray filly Mary Louise, by Lightning, dam by Sovereign. Frank Hampton became the favorite in the last of the sales, and they grew very large just before the horses were saddled. Mary Louise won one of the closest races ever run on this track, the first, second and third horses not having four feet between the first and last. The favorite came in second and Arizona third.

The following are the details of the running as it came off:—

The First Race.

SWEEPSTAKES for two year olds; $100 entrance, half forfeit, with $700 added; winner of $1,000, 5 lbs. extra; of $1,500, 7 lbs.; of over $1,500, 10 lbs. extra; three-quarters of a mile.

A. Belmont's ch. c. Count d'Orsay, by Kentucky, dam Lady Blessington (Harmon)	1
Hunter and Travers' imp. blk. c. Strachino, by Parmesan, dam May Bell (Gray)	2
W. W. Glenn's ch. c. Merodoc (late O. P. B.) by Australian, dam Ada Cheatham (Canada)	3
D. D. Withers imported b. c., by Marsyas, dam Marquis, by The Marchioness (Lakeland)	4

Time, 1:19¾.

THE BETTING.

Belmont	$200	450	285	290	320	250
Stringfield	195	165	140	150	175	150
Hunter & Travers	170	355	200	300	365	250
Withers	100	110	65	90	70	65

THE RACE.

The colts had an excellent start at the first attempt, which is an unusual thing for two-year-olds. As they passed up the fractional track to the half mile pole, Strachino and Withers' colt were head and head, Count d'Orsay third, Merodoc fourth. As they ran out of the shook into the regular track Withers' and Hunter & Travers' colts were parallel, two lengths ahead of Count d'Orsay, who led Merodoc four lengths. The latter closed up well around the lower turn, and they were all close together as they entered the homestretch, Withers' colt leading half a length, Strachino second, Count d'Orsay third, Merodoc close up. As the colts got into the homestretch, after 200 yards running up, Withers' colt began to fall off and Strachino shortened his stride. Merodoc then took third place. Count d'Orsay came away from the others at the drawgate and galloped home a winner by two lengths, Strachino second, one length ahead of Merodoc, the latter being six lengths in front of Withers' colt. Time, 1:19¾. The race was not so fast as it should have been for such beautiful and well bred colts.

The Second Race.

PURSE $500, for three-year-olds; one mile and an eighth; winners this year of any single race amounting to $1,000 10 lbs. extra.

Glen Flora Breeding Association's b. f. Experience Oaks, by Bonnie Scotland, dam by Lexington (Gillen)	1
Hunter & Travers' b. c. Buckden, by Lord Clifden, dam Consequence (McAdams)	2
A. Belmont's g. c. Gray Planet, by Planet, dam Eagless (Floyd)	3
D. D. Withers' br. f. Mimi, by Eclipse, dam Hennie Farrow (Holloway)	4
T. B. & W. R. Davis' br. c. Piedmont, by Asteroid, dam Fairy (Henry)	5

Time, 1:57¼.

THE BETTING.

Gray Planet	$680	900	1,000	500	500	350
Buckden	250	300	335 }
Mimi	175	305	300 }
Piedmont	225	205	200 }	375	305	200

THE RACE.

Piedmont was the first away, Mimi second, Gray Planet third, Experience Oaks fourth, Buckden fifth. As they passed up in front of the stand Piedmont was leading, Buckden second, Gray Planet third, Experience Oaks fourth, Mimi fifth. Going around the upper turn Piedmont led half a length, Buckden second, a neck ahead of Gray Planet, Experience Oaks close up, with Mimi lapped on her. At the quarter pole Buckden and Piedmont were locked together, half a length in front of Gray Planet, who was two lengths ahead of Experience Oaks, the latter being two lengths ahead of Mimi. Going down the backstretch Buckden showed his head in front for a short time, but was passed by Piedmont, who led him half a length to the half-mile pole, Gray Planet close up, Experience Oaks fourth, Mimi fifth. Going into the lower turn Experience Oaks made strong running, and she soon was in front of the crowd, showing the way into the homestretch by two lengths. The filly had all the others beaten at this point, and she galloped home under a pull six lengths ahead of Buckden, who was second, the latter being one length ahead of Gray Planet, who was one length in advance of Mimi, Piedmont fifth. The time of the mile and an eighth was 1:57¼. Experience Oaks ran on to the starting place, running fast to the end. We did not learn the time of the two miles, but it must have been good.

The Third Race.

FREE HANDICAP—Purse $600; one mile and three quarters.

J. W. Weldon's g. f. Mary Louise, by Lightning, dam by Sovereign (Hannon)	1
Bacon & Holland's br. h. Frank Hampton, by imported Aysgarth, dam by Charley Ball (N. Richardson)	2
A. C. Franklin's b. m. Arizona, by Lexington, dam imported Zone (Shy)	3
Isaac W. Pennock's b. c. by Vandal, dam Margravine (C. Richardson)	4
John Morrissey's ch. h. Defender, by John Morgan, dam Cynconia (Gilpatrick)	5

Time, 3:09.

THE BETTING.

Frank Hampton	$100	305	505	1,020
Mary Louise	110	380	550	900
Defender	60	210	340	600
Arizona	25	100	190	300

THE RACE.

Mary Louise was away first, Frank Hampton second, Defender third, Pennock's colt fourth, Arizona fifth. Going up the fractional track Pennock's colt ran to the front, followed by Defender, the jockeys of both having instructions to make the running strong from the start. As the horses turned out of the shute into the regular track Pennock's colt was leading, Defender second, Frank Hampton third, Mary Louise fourth, Arizona fifth. Pennock's colt led around the lower turn two lengths, Defender second, two lengths ahead of Frank Hampton, who was four lengths ahead of Mary Louise and Arizona. There was no change as the horses came into the homestretch; but as they passed under the string at the stand Pennock's colt was three lengths in front, Defender second, one length ahead of Frank Hampton and Arizona, who were one length ahead of Mary Louise. Going around the upper turn good, strong running commenced and the horses closed up, and they passed around the upper turn one length apart in the order given above. There was no change to the quarter pole. On the backstretch Pennock's colt led half a length, Defender second, half a length ahead of Frank Hampton, Arizona close up, Mary Louise fifth. As they passed the half-mile pole Pennock's colt was one length in front of Defender, the latter led one length ahead of Frank Hampton, who was three lengths in advance of Arizona, the latter one length clear of Mary Louise. Pennock held the lead with great tenacity around the lower turn, Frank Hampton taking second place, Arizona being third, Mary Louise fourth, while Defender, having shot his bolt, retired to the rear. As the horses came into the homestretch a gallant struggle set in. Frank Hampton and Arizona soon beat Pennock's colt and seemed to have the race to themselves, when little Mary Louise, before the others appeared to realize the fact, was up with them, and as they passed under the wire a closer finish has not been seen. Mary Louise won the race by a head, Frank Hampton second, a neck in front of Arizona. Pennock's colt was fourth and Defender fifth. Time, 3:09.

The Races at Saratoga To-Day.

SARATOGA, August 20, 1872.

The races to-morrow will not be of a brilliant character. Three are on the programme, but Harry Bassett and Mary Louise run in one, and that is considered next to a walk over for the champion. The other two races are a hurdle race and a dash of three-quarters of a mile. The hurdle race will have four starters, and their relative value may be got at by the following pool sales:—Blind Tom, $65; Vesuvius, $68; Gayo, $41; O'Donnell, $32.

In the three-quarters of a mile Cape Race was the favorite, selling in the first pool for $280; Piedmont, $270; Ortolan, $205; Fanchon, $155; Eastern Star, $240; Lobelia, $35; Mollie McIntire, $45; Nema, $100; King Henry, $45.

There is no betting on Harry Bassett's race.

HAMPDEN PARK RACES.

Opening of the Fall Meeting of the Trotting Association—Fine Collection of Horses—Large Attendance—Comers Wins the 2:30, $1,200, Race—Splendid Trotting in the 2:26 Trial—Sleepy John Victorious.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., August 20, 1872.

The fall meeting of the Hampden Park Association commenced in this city to-day, at which there was a large attendance of spectators and professional turfmen, New York being well represented. The grounds have been put in fine order, and the stables are full of some of the best horses in the country, which have just closed their engagements at Buffalo and Utica. Previous to and between the heats of the races Gilmore's band, of Boston, performed a fine programme of music.

THE FIRST RACE.

The first race was for horses that never beat 2:30, for a purse of $1,250, for which the entries were as follows:—W. C. Morrison's gray stallion Rival, Northrup S. Martin's cream gelding Mystic, E. G. Stratton's bay mare Kitty Bucke, N. Kelsey's brown mare Swits, J. K. Leavitt's sorrel gelding Starr, G. P. Carpenter's black mare Bram Keeney, D. Mace's gray gelding Marshall, J. J. Bowen's black gelding Comers, W. H. Jarvis' gray gelding Doubtful, M. Carroll's brown gelding Jubilee Lambert, D. M. Fiske's bay mare Charmer, G. M. Camp's black stallion Columbia Chief, S. F. Twichell's gray gelding Steyverson, J. L. Doty's cream gelding Sensation, Tom Foster's gray gelding Billy Platter. In the betting Comers was a favorite at $100 to $40 for Doubtful and $34 for the field.

First Heat.—There were ten starters, and they were given places in the following order:—Kitty Bucke, Swits, Mystic, Charmer, Columbia Chief, Jubilee Lambert, Comars, Stuyverson, Doubtful and Bram Keeney. The send-off on the second trial was a good one, and as they straightened themselves out at the first turn Comers went to the front, followed by Swits, Charmer, Lady Ross and Keeny. Soon after Swits fell back and Charmer broke, losing the second place, which she had taken while making the turn. Keeney went to the second place, Comers leading two lengths to the half; the others were strung out one after the other as they went to the head of the stretch, and Keeney got close to Comers; but Bowen would not let him come nearer, the latter winning under a steady pull in 2:34¼.

Second Heat.—On getting the word Steyverson was a little ahead and so he took a slight lead, but Comers very soon asserted his right to the first place by taking it. Doubtful was in the third place when the favorite led two open lengths to the quarter. Swits, Lambert and Chief were together, with Keeney well up to them. On the back side Mystic broke, and after taking a few jumps proceeded to indulge in a run, which only ended when the mile was completed, it appearing that Mr. Doty could not hold her or did not want to. He ran alongside of Camers for some distance, but the latter did not appear to mind it, only to trot faster. Doubtful went to the second place at the head of the stretch, but Camers won the heat easily in 2:32¾, Mystic being shut out for running.

Third Heat.—On getting the word Steyverson and Doubtful went off together, but Camers went to the front before the first turn was reached; on the back side Doubtful made a break and Swits took the second place, and having got so much he gave Camers a good race for the lead, but the latter had speed to spare and won by an open length in 2:30¼. The following is a SECOND RACE.

The second race was for a purse of $2,500, for horses that never beat 2:26; mile heats, best three in five, in harness, and for which the following entries were made:—J. Campbell's bay stallion H. W. Genet; J. W. Page's chestnut gelding Clarence; G. N. Ferguson's black gelding James H. Burke; M. Roden's bay gelding George; G. Ellis' gray gelding Gray Eddy; William Briggs' bay mare Lady Ross; J. J. Bowens' gray mare Sea Foam, S. H. Dore's bay mare Grand Duchess, D. Mace's bay gelding Sleepy John, J. Murphy's bay gelding Charley Green, T. Foster's bay stallion Dauntless, T. S. Carpenter's bay mare Lydia Thompson. Sleepy John was a favorite, selling for $50 to $35 for Genet, and $46 for the field.

First Heat.—Burke, Lady Ross and George did not appear, the first named having dropped dead while at the Buffalo meeting. The favorite was lucky enough to draw the pole, Grand Duchess outside, the others sandwiched in between, while Scanning Clarence had his sulky broken down, and when a new one had been procured he appeared unsteady, and, with Gray Eddy, received a poor start. As the horses went towards the first turn Sea Foam took the lead, followed by Duchess, Dauntless, Genet, John and the others in the rear. On the back side Duchess and Dauntless changed places, and quit before getting to the half. John shook Genet and soon after did the same by the two D.'s. Mace then sent his horse around the upper turn at a tremendous rate, and although the mare stood in for a while she left her feet half way down the stretch, and John won the heat by a length. Sea Foam did not get to her gait until she crosed the score and was placed third; Genet second. Time, 2:25¾.

Second Heat.—Just after getting the word Green and Genet came together, causing some little excitement, which made Dan Mace pull back very suddenly so that he did not get to his speed until Grand Duchess went to the front by two or three lengths. Genet was also pulled, while Dauntless, who was on the outside, took the second place, Thompson third, and Genet fourth. At the half Duchess had two lengths' advantage, and Mace was in a pocket from which he could not get out until he began to make the last turn, and then it did not avail him anything, for Duchess kept the lead, winning by an open length in 2:26¾; Dauntless second, Genet third.

Third Heat.—As soon as the word was given Duchess and Dauntless had a brush for the lead, ending in a victory for the first-named. Early in the heat it looked as though the favorite had had enough of it, and do the best he could Dan could not persuade John up to the front. It seemed to be Genet's turn, for at the quarter he began to speed and trotted the second quarter very fast, first getting to Duchess' wheel, and afterwards out-trotting her, taking a lead which he never lost during the remainder of the heat, although both Duchess and Dauntless gave him a lively race home. Sea Foam acted as though she wanted to see the stable, and she had her wish gratified, for when Genet ran by an open length she was outside the flag. Time, 2:26¼.

Fourth Heat.—Mace got a good send-off in this heat, and, although he was on the outside of the track, he took the lead before the turn was made, followed by Duchess and Dauntless. At the quarter Genet was the fifth horse, and he could not better his place, while Lydia Thompson took her turn, and at the half-mile pole was second and well up to John. Dauntless was a good third, and at the upper turn got to Thompson's wheel, but the latter shook him off; Gray Eddy and Clarence were in the rear and kept there, John keeping on and winning by a length, Thompson second, and breaking on the stretch. Time, 2:24½.

Fifth Heat.—The betting took another change, John being favorite at $50 to $12 for the field. When they were given the word Thompson showed in front, but it was only for an instant, as John obtained a good send-off, and before the turn was reached, took the lead. At the half he broke for the first time in the race, and Thompson again took the pole, followed by Dauntless. John trotted the third quarter fast, but at the head of the stretch he got into a pocket, and when he pulled out Thompson was far enough ahead to win the heat in 2:20¾ by a short length, Dauntless second, John third.

Sixth Heat.—Genet showed signs of illness in the last heat, and permission was given to draw him, and the same privilege was granted to Dauntless and Green. The New Yorkers stuck to John, and he was a favorite at five to one. He showed the others the way around the course its entire length, although on the homestretch Lydia pressed him so closely that any mistake would have been fatal. He did not make any, however, and won by a length in 2:28; Thompson second, Duchesse third. The following is a

THE JERSEY BIRMINGHAM.

Opening of the Newark Industrial Exhibition.

A Successful Show—The Rink in Its "Best Bib and Tucker"—Music and Speeches—A Choice Collection of Hardware, Software, Stoneware and All Sorts of Wares.

The much-talked of and long looked for Industrial Exhibition, composed exclusively of local manufactures, was formally opened in Newark last night, under auspices most favorable. The Rink, a large, commodious wooden building originally built for skating purposes by one Bechtel, of Milwaukee, and a pair of newly built adjoining buildings were gaily decked off with flags, and were brilliant with gas jets. As a matter to be expected the arrangements in the interior are not complete yet, nor will they probably be for a couple of days, but still there are enough specimens of fine workmanship on hand now to warrant the statement that the exhibition is sure to prove a success as far as the show goes. In the matter of drawing a crowd last night it was also a success. There were present from two thousand to twenty-five hundred persons. An officer of the exhibition in his enthusiasm set the number down at 4,000. The display consists of harness, cutlery, machinery, woodwork and a hundred other articles of general and domestic use. The handsomest thing in the whole building is a soda water fountain, brought from New York. It is a beauty.

THE OPENING EXERCISES.

About eight o'clock the exercises of the opening proper were commenced. After music by the band, more music by the band, a prayer of great fervency, but inaudible to ninety-nine hundredths of those present, by a venerable clergyman, Rev. Dr. A. M. Brinsmade, a retired Presbyterian divine, and more music by the band, the introductory address was delivered by ex-Governor Marcus L. Ward, President of the Exposition Association. As it was with the prayer so it was with the speech—not one person in a hundred present could distinguish a word uttered, owing to the tramping of the crowds up stairs and down stairs and around the crooks and corners of the building. Happily for the history of the enterprise and for the ex-Governor's admirers he had taken the precaution, not only to reduce his ideas to paper, but to have them printed in advance in slips for the use of the press representatives. In the course of his remarks the ex-Governor dwelt at some length on the character of Newark as a manufacturing centre. He said those familiar even with its industries would be astonished at the variety and beauty of the exhibition, and that it was stated that over three hundred different branches of manufactures were carried on in the city, and it was not too much to say that each of the varied list stood in the front rank as to quality. Not only were the wares of Newark sought for largely in our own country, but in some instances they were abroad as well. Nor was Newark wanting in a love for the fine as well as the useful arts. The streets trodden by the mechanic were not unfavorable to the artist. It was not thought enough to produce an article that would sell, but an article also that would reflect credit on the city and the manufacturer, and so command increased business. He closed by urging wise laws, which would foster and protect the home industries of Newark. Then, after a few airs by the band, came General Runyon with his prepared address. As the people still kept circulating and doing everything but what they ought to do—listen to the eloquence of a favorite local orator—and as the General did not copy the example of Mr. Ward and have his speech set in type in advance, the reporters were compelled to strain their auricular powers or wait till the address was concluded and then "boil down" the manuscript. As near as the HERALD representative could catch his words, the General went into an elaborate review of the industrial history of Newark, giving statistical information of interest on the various branches in which its artisans are engaged. In conclusion, through every year of its existence, Newark has added to its importance and reputation as a manufacturing city, until it has attained to its present rank. It will continue to prosper. The bent given to it by the industrious and God-fearing people who laid its foundations it is destined to maintain. The enterprise which we inaugurate to-day marks an era in its progress and is in itself an achievement. It points us to the source of our strength, our self-reliance and appreciation of the value and dignity of labor."

By the few around the General who did hear he was repeatedly applauded. After the address the band played half a dozen pieces of music, which closed the exercises proper. The building was kept open for some hours after, until the crowd dwindled down to a mere few, when the doors were closed on the first night of Newark's big show. The officers and a few invited guests enjoyed a supper at the close.

SUPPOSED WIFE MURDER.

A Woman Supposed To Have Been Kicked to Death by Her Husband—The Latter Arrested.

On Thursday last Dr. Wade, of West Nineteenth street, reported at the Twentieth street police station that a woman named Margaret Cosgrove, aged thirty-five years, was lying in an insensible condition at No. 220 Ninth avenue. He reported the woman to be covered with bruises and contusions all over her person, and was of the opinion, from information obtained of the other inmates of the house and several neighbors, that her husband Philip had assaulted her and left her in her present condition.

Dr. Kemp, Deputy Police Surgeon, was notified of the above facts, and upon visiting the house also became convinced that the husband was the party who had thus brutally assaulted the unfortunate woman. Upon reporting his suspicions at the station house Detective Perkins was detailed to investigate the matter and arrest Cosgrove. He succeeded in capturing him Monday evening, and locked him up until yesterday morning, when he was conveyed before Justice Ledwith, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, on a charge of felonious assault and battery.

The critical condition of Mrs. Cosgrove being explained to the magistrate the prisoner was remanded to the station house to await the result of the injuries. Mrs. Cosgrove remained in an insensible condition until ten minutes after nine o'clock last night, when death put an end to her sufferings. Cosgrove, from the time of his arrest up to the present, stubbornly insists upon being not guilty of having even laid his hands on his wife, although the evidence of the neighbors strongly points to his guilt. The Coroner has been notified of Mrs. Cosgrove's death, and will hold an inquest on her body to-day.

A GROSS OUTRAGE BY NEGROES.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 20, 1872.

The house of Job F. Angell, an old and wealthy citizen of North Providence, was entered by two negroes between twelve and one o'clock this morning. Mr. Angell's daughter, Mrs. Francis M. Brown, of Brooklyn, was first awakened and made the outcry, when one of the negroes beat her in the face shockingly and attempted to choke her to silence. Mrs. Angell, an old lady, heard the alarm, and went to her daughter's assistance, when one of the robbers shot her with a pistol, the ball passing through the breast and through the fleshy part of the arm. Mr. Angell, who is partially a cripple, raised a cry to have his gun brought, when the robbers fled without any plunder. Neither of the ladies is fatally injured.

DR. HOUARD, THE AMERICAN CITIZEN IMPRISONED by Spain, arrived in this city from Cadiz yesterday. His story of Spanish brutality will be read in to-day's HERALD with a sensation of disgust and shame—disgust that it could be carried out by a people pretending to civilization, as the haughty bloodthirsty Spaniards do; shame that it was allowed to endure for nineteen months by a powerful government like that of the United States. Dr. Houard intends presenting his claim against Spain for the loss of his property and business in Cuba, and it will be only common justice for America to insist on its payment.

THE SUCCESS OF THE NEW SHIPPING ACT IN BOSTON.—Landsharks in Puritanical Boston are just as voracious as they are in the metropolis, and accordingly were just as indignant at the prospect of being deprived of their prey by the operations of the new law in regard to shipping and paying off seamen. There, as here, they contended that their rights were invaded by the act, and asserted their intention to prevent its enforcement. It is, therefore, specially gratifying to hear that the government shipping agency is there as entirely successful as here, and the operation of the law eminently satisfactory to the friends of poor Jack. In a little more than a week there have been shipped at the Boston office fifty-six crews, and seventeen crews paid off. The harpies who lived by pandering to the vices and taking advantage of the weakness of the sailor find no opportunity to ply their vocation, and the jolly tars make contracts while sober, able to exercise their judgment, and receive their hard-earned wages under circumstances favorable to making a prudent use of them. For the inception of this beneficent law the sailors are indebted to the Ladies' Seaman's Friends Society, of San Francisco. It was drafted by a lady of that city to counteract the effect of a combination of sailors' boarding house keepers for systematically fleecing the credulous tars. Under its operations "shanghaeing" is effectually prevented, and a sailor's money has a chance to be usefully applied instead of being gobbled from men too drunk to appreciate its value.

New York Politics—The Republican State Convention—An Exciting Contest Before Us.

The republicans of New York, in State Convention, assemble at Utica to-day. The importance to the party of the assemblage and its proceedings can hardly be exaggerated, for the business before this Convention embraces a ticket of Presidential electors, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, a Congressman at large, a Canal Commissioner and a State Prison Inspector, and a platform for our November contest on our national, State and municipal affairs. The Convention will, no doubt, be a harmonious body, inasmuch as the Fenton-Greeley republicans have cut loose from the Grant republicans, and have thrown out the reform banner, seconded by the democracy, under the lead of the liberal coalition Presidential ticket of Greeley and Brown, and inasmuch as the necessities of the administration republicans will admit of no more divisions or dissensions in the party camp.

As the probable candidate of this Convention for Governor, George Opdyke, General John C. Robinson, of Broome, W. H. Robertson, of Westchester, and William A. Wheeler, of Franklin, have been mentioned; General Dix and E. D. Morgan having both declined. Last night Robinson's chances appeared best, and his friends believe he will give strength to their State and their Presidential electoral ticket. We presume that in this view of strengthening the cause of the party on local and national affairs these delegates in council at Utica will bring one of their best men to the front for every position for which they are charged with the selection of the party standard bearer. It appears to be understood that Lyman Tremain will be nominated for Congressman at large against the powerful alliance of democrats and liberal or anti-Grant republicans, and their candidate, who will doubtless be one of their very strongest men. Again, it is surmised that General Dix will be put at the head of the administration ticket of Presidential electors, and that the whole list will be carefully selected with reference to their local and general popularity. In short, it may be safely assumed that in all its nominations this Utica Convention will be remarkably careful to present an acceptable front to the people of this great Commonwealth on State and national affairs for this important State and national contest before us, as they have the personal popularity of Mr. Greeley to contend against and the serious breach in their ranks to consider, and hence must leave no point unguarded if they do not intend to suffer New York to go by default.

Next, the Convention in question will have to consider the platform upon which this double battle, or two battles in one, will have to be fought. The national branch of this platform will, of course, embrace a hearty endorsement of General Grant's administration, the usual stereotyped allusions to his retrenchments of the national expenditures, his reductions of the national debt and of the national taxes, and the establishment in practice of the principles of civil and political equality under his administration, notwithstanding the awkward fact of military law and white oppression in the Southern States, and so on. We may also have, in this connection, some "glittering generalities" on the Alabama claims and the redeeming virtues of arbitration as the proper method of settling international disputes; and we may have a word or two for "Buncombe" on civil service reform, though we do not expect much vain boasting of the distinguished achievements of the administration in reference to either Spain, Cuba or Mexico. It will suffice that our national affairs in this Republican State Convention will put its best foot foremost for General Grant, and will leave no stone unturned calculated to weaken Mr. Greeley as the Presidential champion of the anti-administration republicans and their democratic allies.

But on our State and city affairs, and on the paramount local question of city reform, we shall look with the most lively interest for the declarations and the promises of this Utica Convention. It will be curious to observe what can be said about legislative and municipal reform by a party which last fall elected a State Senate whose Clerk was turned out of office for corrupt practices, and one of whose members, after being convicted of having received money favors from the Tammany and Erie Rings amounting to many thousands of dollars while holding a seat in the State Senate, was yet suffered to retain the position of Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. We shall probably learn something from the Convention about the threat made by Senator Tweed that if the republican Senators dared to vote for his expulsion from that body he would prove that he had purchased a majority of them time and again, and shall at last discover whether this was the reason their pledge to expel him was not redeemed. We may also expect to receive some explanation of the defeat of the reform measures brought before the Legislature after the reformers had succeeded in organizing the Assembly as they desired, and while they had more than a four-fifths majority in both branches of the Legislature and were thus in a position to override any Executive veto and to crush out all opposition. It is necessary, too, that the Convention should furnish the people with some information in regard to the suits against the Tammany officials, and as to why they have not been more vigorously prosecuted. It is true a State officer recently sought to explain the singular delay by the statement that it was not desirable to try the criminal indictments against the dishonest officials and their fellow conspirators before Judge Cardoza or Judge Barnard; but as these Judges have not been on the bench for some time, and as certainly one, if not two, terms of the Oyer and Terminer have been presided over by Judge Ingraham, the excuse is scarcely valid. It will be well for the Convention to explain why these cases were not moved at the last term of the Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Ingraham, and to pronounce strongly in favor of their trial the first week of the October term before Judge Brady, in view of the fact that some unpleasant rumors of a compromise and alliance with the old Tammany leaders in this city in the approaching election are afloat on the air. If these rumors are weak inventions of the enemy it will be necessary to prove them to be such, for the people will not forget that for some reason or another many republicans who made such loud professions in favor of reform before the last election proved false to their pledges after election, and they will require something more than words to induce them to put their faith in political reformers hereafter. A denunciation of the Senate and Assembly of last year, a protest against the renomination of any republican Assemblyman who was at Albany last winter, a request to all the republican Senators who hold over another year to resign their seats and suffer a new Senatorial election to take place this, and little short of it, will satisfy the people that the republican party, as now constituted, is not responsible for the failure of the reform demanded by the people last November, and is not ready to again betray the cause it then advocated. Let the Republican Convention do this, and it may again stand before the people as the champion of honest government. After the experience of last winter it will be idle for the republicans to attempt to set aside this reform issue by the mere reiteration of the cry of "Tammany! Tammany!" against an opposition party headed by such democrats as Belmont, Tilden and Schell.

In its action on this and on all other matters, the Convention must not lose sight of the fact that it is admitted by the republicans that the New York battle of last November will not be the battle of this coming November; that all the conditions and the issues between the belligerent forces are changed, and that there are no precedents and no election returns by which we can measure or anticipate the results of our coming election. The bolt of the liberal or anti-Grant republicans from the administration camps, and the union of the democrats with them on their Cincinnati candidates and resolutions, give us a new opposition departure and a new contest in this State and throughout the Union to which the figures of none of our past elections will apply. The republicans at Utica know that their party in this State is weakened by the loss of Mr. Greeley and his numerous republican followers; but they do not know that General Grant has been strengthened, or will be, by democratic Bourbon reinforcements, though his party leaders and journals profess to believe that their democratic recruits will outnumber their republican deserters.

Mr. Freeman Clarke, the able and clear-headed republican Congressman from our Twenty-eighth district, has expressed the opinion to a HERALD correspondent that the November result in this State will depend almost entirely upon the State ticket; that the republican party is just now in such a condition that it will require the utmost caution and good judgment to prevent a serious break, because all the republicans of the State are by no means of the same mind about certain matters with which the administration has had everything to do. Referring to the split between Senators Conkling and Fenton, Mr. Clarke further expresses the opinion that, from the present outlook, "if General Grant does not carry New York he will have a tight pull of it." This idea will, no doubt, so impress itself upon this Utica Convention as to compel it to do the very best that it can do in candidates and principles, national and local, to secure the State. We know, on the other hand, that, in view of the closeness of the contest in other States, New York may turn the balance one side or the other; and we have thus the impelling motive on both sides for the most exciting and desperate contest we shall have had in New York since the closely contested and doubtful battle of 1844 between James K. Polk and Henry Clay.

In the interval to November we shall have the Maine election and the Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Nebraska State elections, which will go far to determine or to modify the results in New York. In the meantime the organization of our State contest between the opposing parties will draw the lines closely between them. The republicans of Utica open the ball to-day, and the democrats and liberal republicans will meet to give them battle on the 4th of September at Syracuse; and we now await the candidates and the platform of the Utica Convention.

The Question of Bread in the Irish Metropolis.

From Ireland we have news of the sudden presentation of a fresh social difficulty in the shape of an agitation for bread in the metropolis. The journeymen bakers of Dublin have gone out on strike for higher wages. The masters refuse to comply with their demands, and hence the daily production of the supply of the staff of life has ceased. This fact has troubled the stomachs of the people vastly, and the fair ladies of the ancient and renowned municipality have become deeply irritated under the infliction. Good humored and kind by nature, the Dublin women sympathize with the "boys who are in trouble," and demand that the bosses shall pay them just what they ask, or, at least, "trate the poor cratures fairly." In the meantime the children are crying for a "bit of loaf," and the family glee of the tea-kettle sounds sadly through the cellars of the Liberty. Attacks on the bread shops are feared. This is just where the serious aspect of the news comes in. The journeymen bakers of Dublin possess, as a rule, very light hearts with light pockets, but they manage to get along fairly. Combination and riot have ever ended badly for the leaders of such movements in Ireland. The action has rarely originated in Ireland, but its exciting elements have been imported frequently and have often become foreign nuisances in the land. Sydney Smith's advice to the Irish people—"Erin-go-Bragh!" Nonsense; let the cry be, "Erin-go-bread-and cheese! Erin-go-pantaloons without holes in them!" may be completely vindicated in Dublin.

TWO PRINCES AMONG US AT THE PRESENT TIME indicate that the Great Republic, with its marvellous growth and progress, its vastness and other attractions to the traveller will soon be much more visited by the titled and wealthy of other lands. Prince Augustus of Coburg-Gotha, son-in-law of Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, trod the soil of the United States yesterday for the first time. In another part of the HERALD will be found an interesting interview with that royal personage which will gratify many in its announcement of Brazilian friendliness to our nation. His brother, Prince Philip of Coburg-Gotha, arrived from Europe yesterday, and although the latter has travelled previously through the Union, he will accompany his brother in an extended tour over the West.

The Irish Riots in Belfast.

A series of cable telegrams, dated in Dublin and London, enables us to report in the columns of the HERALD to-day the progress of the Irish riots in Belfast during the hours which intervened from the date of the latest despatches on Monday to the moment of five o'clock yesterday evening, and also to present to our readers the efforts which were made by the authorities for the suppression of the lawless movement. The chronicle contains, of course, an account of the scenes which were witnessed during the night from midnight of the 19th to the morning of the 20th instant. The record has a variable aspect, particularly when it is read in the light of morality and with a due sense of respect for social order and its maintenance. We behold in it the savage instinct of the uneducated and abandoned prompting a demoralized fraction of an otherwise respectable and decorous community to the commission of the most outrageous acts of violence against property and even against life itself. We see that the exciting cause of this action was a desire for public plunder; an unreasoning wish to subject the savings and household means of their more industrious neighbors to the seizure and subdivision rules of an extemporized communism which was presented to the hearts and eyes of a half-drunken mob under the attractive garb of religion, stitched up here and there with the warp of extra loyalty to the Crown and constitution. Primed and inspired from these sources, and with such motives, the Belfast rioters proceeded to plunder stores, to sack and gut dwellings, to display and use loaded firearms in the thoroughfares and to indulge in a regular Donnybrook Fair saturnalia, with the difference, however, that all the amusing and playful national traits of the time-honored market festival were wanting and apparently forgotten. There was no "going into a tent to spend half a crown," and then meeting a friend and "for love knock him down," in this Belfast fray. It was dark in its inception and entirely foreign to the Irish character in its mode of execution. The municipal authorities of Belfast stood paralyzed for a moment in face of it. They did not recognize it as an offshoot of the old factions fight stock, nor did they understand how it could result from the profession or practice of religion in a town where the temples of Presbyterians, Protestants, Roman Catholics, Methodists, even of Arians, range in the peace-inspiring beauty of modern architecture almost side by side, and where the hierarchs, presbyters and preachers of all these different Christian denominations meet daily on terms of perfect equality and with a genuine, friendly, Irish greeting of salutation. Hence the municipality did not know, apparently, what to do. That grand curator of citizen interests, the sword, came to their relief. Martial law was proclaimed. The rioters heard the sound of the voice of order. They could not afford to despise it. They commenced to recede from their position in face of the military, and it is quite evident from the news this morning that the Irish riots in Belfast have been extinguished.

An almost ridiculous side of the story is shown in the small number of persons who have been injured, some three or four only being in the hospitals. Now will come the secondary consequences—arrests, committals to jail, bails, bonds, trials, judicial sentences and the penalties. Then Belfast will be peaceable again, and it may be that after the next general election her people will enjoy repose from the debauching efforts her local and itinerant politicians.

Fear of More Revolutionary Trouble in Spain.

The telegraphic news from Madrid represents more revolutionary trouble brewing in Spain. The Cabinet Ministers and others have received warning of a probable outbreak of the partisans of ex-Queen Isabella. It is thought that this may lead also to renewed activity of the Carlists. The apprehension is sufficiently alarming to cause active preparations on the part of the government to meet the threatened outbreak. A local disturbance had occurred at Pampeluna between Carlists and liberals, when an attempt was made to assassinate the Mayor of that city. It is evident that Spain is still resting on a political volcano. Partisan revolutionary spirit, though apparently suppressed for a time, exists with all the intensity of the Spanish nature. The different monarchical claimants look upon the soil and people of Spain as their rightful property, just as a man does the cattle on his estate. These royal aspirants and intriguers have no patriotism. They want power and the revenues of the country only, and to obtain these would plunge Spain in revolution and slaughter the people like cattle. They do not seem to comprehend the progressive spirit of the age which is leading the nations to recognize the principle that governments must be based upon the will of the governed. The partisans of monarchy make a great outcry if the people rise to overthrow despotism and establish self-government, but have little to say when royalist scoundrels plunge a country into the horrors of civil war. Of all the parties in Spain the liberal republican party, of which Castelar is a distinguished representative, is the most respectable and most moderate. Looking at the conflicting elements of revolution in that country, we fear it has yet to go through a fearful ordeal. If the republicans behave wisely they may in the end overcome all the royalist factions, make Spain a republic and lay the foundation of a great future for their country.

PIUS THE NINTH AND THE ITALIAN ROYALTY.—A despatch from the Holy City states that Monsignor de Mérode, Grand Almoner to Pope Pius the Ninth, has been despatched to Brussels commissioned to make arrangements for the reception of the Pontiff in Belgium. Intelligence of this character has been conveyed to the world frequently, at intervals, since the occupation of Rome by the Italians was completed by the entry of His Majesty Victor Emmanuel to the capital of the consolidated nation. The Pope remains in the Vatican notwithstanding. It may be that he will suddenly fly from the Pontifical residence. We cannot see what good would come to the cause of the Church from such an event, and it is almost certain that Belgium would be deeply, if not dangerously, excited by the advent of the illustrious ecclesiastic to her soil in the character of a refugee from the centre of religious unity.

The Louisville Straight-Outs—Who Will Suffer from the Nomination of Charles O'Conor?

The letter of our Louisville correspondent, published to-day, gives an interesting account of an interview with Colonel Blanton Duncan, the moving spirit of the straight-out Bourbon Convention about to be held at Louisville for the nomination of Charles O'Conor as the candidate of the still unterrified democracy for President of the United States, and for the adoption of a platform on which all who are unwilling to vote for the liberal republican candidates can plant themselves and take part in the contest. Our correspondent finds Colonel Duncan full of energy and hope, loaded down with correspondence from old-line democrats, and strong in the faith that his pet Convention is going to be a great success. The responses pouring in from all States, and the earnest tone of the letters, many of which were examined by our correspondent, convince him that a strong undercurrent is running in favor of the Louisville movement; that it is not being laughed at by the whole people, and that it is very probable the Duncan raid may draw off enough of the democratic forces from the liberal republican and democratic coalition to defeat Greeley. Colonel Duncan kindly furnishes extracts from these letters, and hence we are the better able to judge of the temper of the writers and to form an intelligent idea of the effect the movement is likely to have on the prospects of the two real candidates actually in the fight.

We expressed the belief in a former notice of this straight-out convention strategy that it might in the end be found to be more damaging to those who have helped it to a success than to their opponents. This belief is strengthened by the tone of most of the letters in Colonel Duncan's liberal collection, from which we have been favored with quotations, and we suppose these are fair specimens of the whole correspondence. In nearly every instance the writer, in his energy, makes it apparent that, while he desires a strict party ticket to vote for, he would, under no conceivable circumstances, support Greeley, but if driven to choose between the two candidates should prefer Grant. We give Colonel Duncan credit for full sincerity when he declares his conviction that if the Bourbons succeed in getting eight hundred and fifty thousand votes it will be "enough to beat Greeley to smash;" but we would remind him that if these votes were cast for President Grant instead of being thrown away on Charles O'Conor they would count exactly double, or seventeen hundred thousand, and make the result he desires all the more certain. In order to convince him and all who are looking to this Bourbon movement only as a means of defeating the liberal republican candidates, we quote from Colonel Duncan's correspondents. The first is from an old farmer of Illinois, who says:—"We democrats in this part of the country cannot support that life-long abolitionist, Horace Greeley, for President of the United States. We think General Grant the best man of the two, but we want a straight ticket to vote for, and we hope the Louisville Convention will put out a good democrat." Well, if a "good democrat" should not be in the field it is evident that this Illinois farmer and his friends would vote for President Grant, and not for Greeley; so, as far as they are concerned, the Louisville Convention would damage the party that has been looking to it for aid. A letter from the editor of a North Carolina paper, published at Charlotte, states that the conservatives failed to elect their Governor because "five thousand democrats refused to vote with the party endorsing Greeley." These five thousand votes, then, would be given to Grant in the Presidential election, and not to Greeley, if a straight-out democratic ticket should not be in nomination. A citizen of Douglas county, Illinois, writes that the feeling among his friends is "one of intense disgust with the action of the Baltimore Convention," and hence they would hail with delight the nomination of Bourbon candidates. A Salem (Mass.) democrat is strong in his desire for straight-out nominations. "Present a straight democratic ticket to the country," he says. "Grant is bad enough, but Greeley is the scum of all rascality—the most infernal liar, the most dangerous cuss," &c. It is clear who our Salem friend would vote for if he could not give his vote to Charles O'Conor. A Mississippi lawyer "wants the record of Greeley," and finds plenty of citizens "who cannot and will not support Greeley." A gentleman from Culpepper, Va., cannot conceive how any democrat can endorse Greeley, and says, "As for myself, I will not vote for him." He would no doubt prefer Grant as a choice of evils.

Some of Colonel Duncan's correspondents are yet more emphatic. "I was in the Confederate service four years, a major," writes a Professor of Latin in a Missouri college, "and I'll be ——— if I vote for any such man as Horace Greeley." He would vote for Grant first, in the absence of a strongly flavored democrat. A red-hot Kentuckian is equally firm in his resolve never to support Greeley, and a Nebraska unterrified writes in bad English to the same effect. Now it seems evident that a very large majority of these straight-outs are so bitterly opposed to Greeley that unless supplied with a safety-valve in the shape of a Bourbon ticket they would burst right out in favor of Grant. This is precisely what they ought to do. The Louisville movement is a mere farce so far as a serious nomination of candidates with any view of success is concerned. No person pretends that it is anything more than a diversion, and the only question is as to which side it will help. The issue is fairly made between Grant and Greeley, and there is no reason why any other candidates should be in the field. Democrats who are convinced that Greeley is not a fit person to fill the office of President should insure his defeat by voting for General Grant, instead of risking his election by throwing away their ballots on a third candidate. The whole democratic organization and the whole democratic press have joined the liberal movement, and it is evident that the contest between Grant and Greeley is to be a close one. The effort to make any important break in the democratic ranks will be a failure, but individuals are at liberty to vote as their convictions prompt, especially at a time when old party lines are so completely obliterated. A third ticket is only a subterfuge, and no man in this contest should hesitate to take a decided position and to vote directly for President Grant if he believes his election necessary for the welfare of the nation.

OBITUARY.

Captain Henry K. Davenport, U. S. N.

A despatch received at the Navy Department from Minister Washburne at Paris, dated August 9, announces the death of this gallant officer as occurring at Carlsbad, in Bohemia, on the 8th inst. Captain Davenport was in command of the United States steamer Congress, on the European station, and the announcement of his being taken with severe illness was reported from Southampton some months since. It was thought advisable to remove the patient to Carlsbad, where a course of the waters, it was hoped, would effect a recovery. Captain Davenport's system, however, could not rally, and he sank gradually until the end came. Mr. Davenport was born at Savannah, Ga., in 1820, and entered the naval service as a midshipman on the 19th of February, 1838, making a total of over thirty-four years' service of his country. At the breaking out of the war he ranked as lieutenant, and was then serving on board the steam sloop Susquehanna. Unlike so many of his fellow officers of Southern birth Mr. Davenport remained true to his allegiance, and exhibited throughout the war the highest qualities as a naval officer. During a portion of the conflict he commanded a squadron of gunboats on the Mississippi, with the rank of commander, and was placed in command of the Lancaster (second rate) before the close of the war. In 1866 he was appointed Navigation and Equipment Officer at the Washington Navy Yard, and afterwards on ordnance and specific duty at the Navy Department, where he remained until ordered on active service in command of the Congress (second rate) in 1871. In 1868 he was promoted to the grade of captain. The Congress, under his command, first accompanied Captain Hall's Polar Expedition to Greenland, where the little Polaris was finally equipped for its perilous voyage. The Congress then returned to New York and became the flagship of Vice Admiral Rowan in the squadron which welcomed the Archduke Alexis to America in November last. Captain Davenport's last feat at sea was convoying the Cuban filibuster Hornet from Port au Prince to the United States, when he sailed for Europe to join the squadron under the command of Rear Admiral Alden. In the death of Captain Davenport the naval service loses an able and distinguished officer. In Washington circles and elsewhere his demise will be regretted by a large circle of friends as that of a genial and refined gentleman. He was married to a Washington lady, a Miss Graham. His eldest son, R. C. Davenport, is an ensign in the navy.

He was universally esteemed by foreigners as well as natives, and ranked as a true patriot of acknowledged ability.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Rear Admiral Joseph T. Green assumed command of the North Atlantic Squadron yesterday, and raised his flag upon the flagship of the squadron, the Worcester, lying off the Boston Navy Yard. The flag was saluted by Rear Admiral Steedman, in command of this station, with thirteen guns, to which the Worcester replied with a similar salute. The Worcester will probably sail next week for the headquarters of the North Atlantic Squadron.

The Pensacola was at Callao on July 25th.

Lieutenant Commander Henry Lee Johnson, Lieutenant Henry Wheeler and Master Charles Seymour have been ordered to torpedo duty.

Captain Alexander H. Rhind has been ordered to command the Congress in the place of Captain Davenport, deceased. He will soon take passage to join his vessel.

Paymaster Tuttle, of the Lackawanna, has been detailed as astronomer of the surveying force in the Pacific under the command of Commodore Skerrett. The object of the expedition is the surveying of such parts of the Pacific as is requisite to make a perfect chart for the use of ships.

FIRE IN THOMPSON STREET.

Last night fire was discovered in the basement of the three story brick building, 102 Thompson street, the first floor of which is occupied by Frederick Figge & Bro., as a lard establishment, causing a loss to stock of $500; insured in the Ætna of Hartford for $2,000. The second floor occupied by John McCarten as a laundry, was damaged $200 on stock; insured in the Springfield, Pacific and St. Nicholas for $2,000 each. Several parties who had goods on this floor sustained a joint loss of $300; fully insured. The building is owned by Mr. H. A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR AT STATEN ISLAND.

Last Sunday three residents of New York, named respectively John Still and Messrs. Van Sant, uncle and nephew, engaged a cat-rigged boat at Bay Ridge and sailed over to Staten Island. Upon her arrival at the lower landing, Staten Island, Mr. Still, whose father is engaged in the Seventh Ward Bank, while reaching forward in the boat to obtain a drink of whiskey out of a demijohn, fell overboard to rise no more. Yesterday Mr. Henriquez, of 49 Broad street, paid a visit to the Chief of Police of Staten Island, Captain Holbrook, and informed him that young Van Sant, aged twenty-one of 221 South street, had not returned to his home since Monday. Captain Holbrook commenced an investigation of the affair, and it is hoped that a solution may speedily be arrived at.

A Bread Supply Question in Dublin and Woful Agitation Among the Women.

TELEGRAMS TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

LONDON, August 20, 1872.

Correspondents in Ireland, dating in Belfast and Dublin, furnish the following reports of the progress of the party riots in the first named town during the period from the evening of Monday, the 19th inst., and during the night to Tuesday morning, and thence to evening to-day:—

SCENES OF TUMULT AND ACTS OF PLUNDER.

A despatch which reached London from Dublin last night, 19th inst., reported that the Belfast mob, on Monday, attacked three large warehouses and made a complete wreck of the interior of the buildings, carrying off every portable article and demolishing other merchandise.

In the streets the rioting continued without abatement, despite a warning proclamation from the Mayor and magistrates of the municipality.

The fighting was kept up by parties of rioters in various quarters with stones, bludgeons and firearms.

GENERAL ALARM OF THE WELL-DISPOSED AND INDUSTRIOUS.

All the stores were closed, and business entirely suspended.

Additional troops were sent for, and were expected to reach Belfast next morning, Tuesday.

THE MAGISTRACY MOVING FOR THE RESTORATION OF ORDER.

The magistrates of Belfast began on Monday to swear in special constables to assist in suppressing the disturbances.

A proclamation was issued by the Mayor of the town authorizing the troops holding the streets to fire upon all riotous assemblages offering resistance.

DEFIANT OF AUTHORITY.

A despatch received from Dublin last night reported "no cessation of the rioting at Belfast."

MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED.

The civic magistrates and borough representatives, having become convinced of their own inability to restore order, surrendered the control of the city into the hands of the military, thus practically establishing martial law.

The commanding officer of the Queen's troops issued a proclamation warning all quietly disposed citizens to remain in their houses, and stating that "every person found on the streets would be looked upon as a rioter and treated accordingly." All public houses received orders to close their doors and not to reopen them until permitted by the authorities.

The Net Result as It Was Seen on Tuesday.

LONDON, August 20—2 P. M.

A despatch from Belfast to-day (Tuesday) states that between six o'clock last evening and eleven o'clock this morning only two wounded rioters were received in the hospital.

THE CHOLER OF THE CONTESTANTS COOLING OFF.

The telegram from Belfast from which I have just quoted reports, in addition, that several fights occurred this morning, but they were not of as serious a character as those of yesterday.

SPASMODIC EFFORTS OF THE WOULD-BE BULLIES.

A despatch from Belfast, at half-past three o'clock this afternoon, says that at that hour the town was comparatively quiet. The mob had made several efforts during the day to fire buildings and some of the rioters were caught in the act.

Hope of Plunder the Inciting Motive to Violence.

LONDON, August 20—5 P. M.

A despatch from Belfast this afternoon says the sole object of the rioters in renewing the disorder to-day was plunder.

Several houses have been attacked to-day and wrecked.

CONSEQUENCES OF THE ROBBER UNDERTAKING.

In every street of the town of Belfast there are evidences of the terrific character of the conflict that has been raging there during the past few days.

THE MEANS OF CURE AND PLAN OF RECUPERATION.

Reinforcements for the troops now in Belfast continue to arrive in Ireland, but the railway facilities are insufficient to promptly convey all the soldiers destined for service in the town from Dublin and the other points of march.

It is the intention of the military authorities to resort to extreme measures to suppress the disorders.

The government of the Belfast municipality has been temporarily vested in four magistrates, with ample military reserves.

She was in Court yesterday and vehemently denied ever having been divorced from Byrne, claiming that she left him on account of her religion, and married Stoepel under the impression that Byrne had obtained a divorce from her.

Mr. Carpenter, an executor under the will, denies that she was the legal wife of the deceased, and claims that the debts due will absorb nearly the entire estate.

DARING JAIL BREAKERS.

CHICAGO, Ill., August 20, 1872.

A bold escape from the County Jail was made between eleven and twelve o'clock last night, by four young men, three of whom were awaiting trial for robbery and the other serving out a two years' term for attempting to kill a policeman. The prisoners had been supplied by friends outside with revolvers. One of them, who was allowed the privilege of the corridors, obtained possession of the cell keys while the Deputy Jailer in charge was sitting outside the jail and liberated his friends. When the jailer came in he was confronted by the four men, who pointed their cocked revolvers at his head and demanded the key of the outer door. Resistance was useless and the jailer gave up the key and the prisoners unlocked the door and walked off. They are all well known to the police and will probably be recaptured.

CHICAGO WHEAT CORNER.

Excitement and Tumult Among the Grain Dealers.

REPORTED FAILURES.

Large "Margins" Called In by Interested Parties.

CHICAGO, August 20, 1872.

J. B. Lyon & Co., who were originators and principal managers of the wheat corner, have failed. The names of some twenty other individuals and firms are reported as unable to meet their obligations; but many of these, it is asserted by parties in a position to know, will be able to meet all liabilities as soon as they can get the matters in shape, hence an injustice might be done to solvent parties by publishing the list. At least twelve or fifteen firms have refused or been unable to put up margins, or so far as to settle differences; but matters are still in such confusion that it is difficult to ascertain positively who these parties are.

A prominent operator who has been, during the greater part of the time since the corner was established, a constant seller of wheat, yesterday afternoon called for margins to the amount of $100,000 from parties to whom he had sold. The total amount put up on the call was only $2,500. The losses of this operator will aggregate not less than $100,000, and this notwithstanding the fact that he was on the other side from the managers of the corner, and but for this failure to meet their obligations would have been largely ahead. There is an exceedingly bitter feeling among many members of the Board of Trade at the manner in which the Ring have conducted their business, as it is alleged that they drew many unsuspecting brokers to a financial ruin by inducing them to buy grain for them, representing, even after prices had dropped twenty-five cents per bushel, that they were still able and determined to carry the corner through the month and had allowed the prices to drop purposely.

A leading and thoroughly reliable merchant asserts that one leading member of the Ring came to him this morning and assured him that he had not failed nor was likely to, and wanted him to buy 100,000 bushels of wheat for them to-day. He at first consented, but immediately reconsidered the matter and refused, thereby saving himself $10,000.

Among the parties positively stated to have failed is Hugh Maher, whose recent irregularities in connection with the Iowa elevator have been the subject of much comment.

The market this afternoon on open board showed considerable firmness, and quite a number of buyers made their appearance. Prices advanced 2 a 3 cents; closed steady at $1 15 cash or seller August and $1 14 seller September. The receipts were again large to-day, 570 cars being inspected.

TERRIFIC STORM IN PENNSYLVANIA.

A Church Struck by Lightning and the Steeple Destroyed.

CATASAUQUA, Pa., August 20, 1872.

One of the fiercest thunder storms that have ever been known occurred in this neighborhood this afternoon, hurling destruction in every direction. The splendid Catholic Church of St. Lawrence had its steeple entirely destroyed and the roof damaged. The rectory had a very narrow escape. The church was first struck at four o'clock P. M. The storm still rages unabated (half-past six P. M.), with a fearful rain.

A FATAL HURRICANE NEAR WAWARSING.

KINGSTON, N. Y., August 20, 1872.

A terrific hurricane swept over a portion of the town of Wawarsing on Friday, between three and four o'clock P. M., taking a narrow strip near Lackawack. It mowed down all before it, trees, fences and buildings being taken up and carried away like feathers. The barn of W. H. Wager was struck and completely demolished. Three boys taking shelter from the storm were in it at the time, and one named John Cove was killed by the falling building. He was heard to say, "I am hurt," and died immediately. The other lads escaped uninjured. Other very extensive damage was done, barns and outhouses being blown over and many tons of hay and grain were destroyed. The typhoon passed so near Wager's house that a pear tree shading it was twisted from its roots and carried a considerable distance. A sleigh was lifted by the wind, the iron work was bent and twisted as if by herculean hands and the box carried half a mile. The hurricane passed towards Cape Pond, in a southerly direction, causing a large amount of damage.

AN ALLEGED KU KLUX MURDER.

ST. LOUIS, August 20, 1872.

Advices from Southeast Missouri state that Marion Weeks, the Postmaster at Rice Hill, Reynolds county, was shot and killed by an unknown party on Saturday last while watering his horse in Black River. The assassin was concealed in the brush on the bank of the river. It is alleged this is another Ku Klux case, it being asserted that Weeks was murdered because he had given information to United States Commissioner Sewort, at Ironton, regarding certain persons implicated in the whipping of Rev. Mr. Callahan some weeks ago. No arrests have yet been made.

MACE AND O'BALDWIN FIGHT.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 20, 1872.

A large crowd of sporting men left by the forty minutes past eleven o'clock train to-night on the Pennsylvania Railroad for Pittsburg, from which place they will cross into Virginia, where the fight between Mace and O'Baldwin will take place. Ropes and all the necessary apparatus went with the party.

THE COLD SPRING RACES.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., August 20, 1872.

This was the first day of the Cold Spring races. The weather was extremely warm and the attendance fair. The first race was for trotting horses that had never beaten 2:30; $500 to first, $250 to second. St. Elmo won, beating General Howard. Greenwich was distanced in the third heat.

Time, 2:33½—2:35½—2:32¾.

The second race was for running horses, free to all, mile heats, best three in five. The following is the result:—

Fairfield	1	1	1
Conners	3	2	2
Protection	2	3	3

Time, 1:51—1:49¼—1:47¾.

MORE PARIS GREEN.

Coroner Keenan yesterday held an inquest at 324 East Twenty-sixth street over the remains of Mrs. Mary Leonard, twenty-nine years of age, and born in Ireland, who committed suicide by taking a dose of Paris green while laboring under temporary aberration of mind. Some weeks ago deceased lost $750, which she supposed was stolen from her, and such was her trouble of mind in consequence that reason seemed to be partially dethroned. Mrs. Leonard had threatened to her cousin, Elizabeth McMahon, that she would not live, and later, during the absence of her husband, Mrs. Leonard swallowed a dose of Paris green. Medical aid was summoned, but proved of no avail, and death subsequently ensued.

UTICA REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

An Immense Crowd of Administration Supporters "Pent Up."

SPECULATIONS BEFORE THE FIGHT.

Gubernatorial Candidates—The Three Ex's, Morgan, Opdyke and Dix.

General Dix Formally Withdraws His Name.

UTICA, N. Y., August 20, 1872.

Utica is crowded to-night. From all parts of the State radical republican delegates have arrived, to be present at the Convention to-morrow, which will nominate candidates for State officers. These are:—First, Governor and Lieutenant Governor; Congressman at large, Canal Commissioner, State Prison Inspector and a Presidential electoral ticket for the State. The excitement over the Gubernatorial contest is simply immense—not as regards any possible conflict on a choice, for conflict there will be none, but from the doubt which prevails as to who is the coming man. If the knowing ones were but just to reveal and come out with the fact who the preordained is, it would put an end to all the bothering calculations on which all not in the secret are intent. The lower floors of the political headquarters—Baggs' Hotel—are jammed with delegates, divided into knots and crowds, discussing the all-absorbing problem whether the choice of leaders of the Convention shall be ex-Governor Morgan, ex-Mayor Opdyke or ex-Secretary of the Treasury General Dix. There are Ex's enough to pick and choose from. Go from knot to knot of these political wiseacres and you retire from each with a Tantalus-like confusion of ideas as to which of the three named candidates is the favorite; for, strange to say, there appears to be

NO FAVORITE AMONG THEM,

but a sort of triple "Hobson's choice." That is, if they don't get Morgan, who, perhaps, has the most backers, they will be content with Opdyke, and in the event of neither of these being the choice of the leaders after the caucus had among them, they will put up with Dix. Now as to the popularity of each of these with the rank and file, it runs thus:—Admitting the undertow that renders a decidedly expressed opinion in favor of any of them a dangerous experiment for the federal office-holders, either present or prospective, and who, in fact, compose the majority of the delegations," in the first place, Morgan is the most popular because he appears to be the favorite with the leaders. His great backer is Thurlow Weed, who is still as eager to breast the political billows as ever. Cæsar was the billows of the Tiber; but Thurlow has a

SECOND CHOICE IN GENERAL DIX.

Now, as against his first choice, Morgan, it is secretly asserted that in the event of his nomination and election Thurlow will be the power behind the throne, and that one will go back again to the days of the old Albany Regency, and that all the federal patronage throughout the State, and your Custom House especially, would be at his disposal. This patronage is a terrible stumbling block, and is also the prize to be won in the gubernatorial race, and all who have an office to win or one to lose keep that main chance in view when advocating or opposing the pretensions of any candidate. Roscoe Conkling, however, is secretly adverse to Morgan, knowing full well, as he does, that Morgan would be able to compensate himself for all the jealousies and disappointments he has felt in as a dispenser of patronage for the last few years. There is, therefore, strong, but very unostentatious opposition to Morgan's nomination; but, as I said before, or insinuated, he left his name with his own consent to be presented to the Convention, and that body will "crook the pregnant hinges of the knee, where thrift may follow fawning." At this moment it is said that Thurlow and those whom he deigns to take into his counsel has telegraphed to Morgan to know his views. Now, what should be Morgan's objection? It is said to be this, that as Chairman of the Republican General Committee he has the handling of large amounts of election funds, and in the event of his accepting a nomination it might be charged against him that from these he would contribute largely to ensure his own success. So much for Morgan.

AS TO DIX.

these straight-out radicals don't want him—an old-time democrat, and now at best but a liberal republican—and it would be like going into the camp of the enemy to get a leader. One thing is certain, the New York or Brooklyn delegation won't have him, while the vacillating county delegations have not the backbone to stand for him, though he would, perhaps, be the most acceptable of the three to them. He has some persons on the New York delegation like John H. Anthon, but nothing like enough to sustain a motion in his favor. Now, as to Opdyke. He stands, perhaps, highest of all with the city delegation—that is, with the Custom House and the revenue cliques, both on your side and the other side of the river. He is a true Fenton in the manner of his suave dealing with applicants for office, and to-day Tom Murphy's files in the Custom House would show more rejected applications for office signed by him for his friend this and his good republican friend that, than any score of men supposed to have equal influence in that direction. Surely if he was Governor he would remember all those old friends of his. Judge Robertson is out of the race; he can lay the flattering unction to his soul that he is of too much importance to the party in the Senate to remove him for the present, even to make him Governor.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

The only person at all talked about is A. B. Cornell. If he should get the nomination it will be as a citizen of Livingston county, he resigning Surveyor of the Port.

FOR CONGRESSMAN AT LARGE

Lyman Tremain, it is understood, will be unanimously nominated. Roscoe Conkling is on the fence. That is, he is sick, which means too indisposed to take any active part one way or the other in the contest which wages so near his own door, and in which, too, he is so largely interested.

EXCITEMENT INCREASES WITH FRESH ARRIVALS.

Tom Murphy, Opdyke, Barlow, General Arthur, John H. Anthon, Charles Spencer, Judge Robertson, Postmaster Jones and the full New York and Brooklyn delegation are all present. Everything now depends upon Morgan's reply to Thurlow Weed, whether he will accept the nomination. H. B. Claflin, who was favorably spoken of, has positively declined.

I might go on interminably giving you the moves on the political chessboard here, but that no positive result would or could be reached thereby.

THE LATEST RUMOR

in the lobby is that Morgan has declined, preferring to serve the party in his present position of Chairman of the Republican National Committee. A dinner caucus is now being held at Senator Conkling's, at which Opdyke, Cornell, Arthur and others are present. Thurlow Weed is now pressing hard for Dix, but meets with little encouragement. Judge Robertson is very popular, and moves among the masses, chatting freely and pleasantly upon his prospects whenever the subject is broached. A. H. Wheeler is also spoken of, but, it would appear, only to kill time; for, as I said before, the Convention will nominate the man whom the powers that be may present to-morrow. There has not been one single caucus held by any delegation. Indeed, they are all at sea, helplessly drifting about, waiting to be towed ashore to-morrow by the leaders and then to start for home. So far as the delegates are concerned in having an independent voice and urging the claims of a candidate of their choice, it will be the greatest farce of a convention that was ever held in the State.

General Dix Withdraws.

UTICA, August 20—Midnight.

Affairs political stand here now as follows:—General Dix has written a letter withdrawing his name from the canvass. That disposes of him. Senator Morgan has made no sign as yet, and should his delegation not receive a formal declination his name will be presented to the Convention and he be unanimously nominated. Should he, however, decline at the last moment the contest will be narrowed down as between State Senator Robertson and ex-Mayor Opdyke. The Robertson stock has gone up wonderfully to-night, and after all there may be some warm work for the Convention tomorrow.

UNION SOLDERS' CONVENTION.

UTICA, N. Y., August 20, 1872.

The Soldiers' Convention met in the Utica Opera House at eight P. M. On motion Colonel William Bullard, of New York, was chosen temporary chairman. On taking the chair Colonel Bullard addressed the Convention at some length, thanking the Convention for the honor conferred upon him, and declared it to be the duty of the soldiers of the Union army to stand by their old commander, and to never agree to shake hands with the rebels over the chasm until they were willing to be loyal. He then referred to the disaffection in the republican party, and said there was no such disaffection among the soldiers. The address was received with much enthusiasm, and when the name of General Grant was mentioned the entire Convention rose to its feet and cheered lustily. Colonel A. D. Ketchum and Colonel L. D. Dudley were chosen temporary secretaries, and a Committee on Credentials was on motion appointed. A resolution was offered to appoint a Committee on Permanent Officers of the Convention and a plan for permanent organization—to consist of eight, one from each Judicial district.

A member moved to make the committee consist of one from each Congressional district. A discussion ensued, and it being intimated that there were not enough delegates present to select one from each Congressional district, the Chairman stated that the late trains had brought in a large number of delegates. Finally the question was put on increasing the committee to one from each Congressional district, and it was carried.

On motion of Colonel Murray a committee of eight to report resolutions, was adopted.

The Committee on Credentials then reported, the when it was stated that forty-one out of the sixty-one counties of the State were represented.

On motion it was then decided to leave the choice of permanent chairman to the Convention, and Major General George H. Sharpe, of New York, was chosen.

General Sharpe then addressed the Convention at much length, pointing out the duty of the soldiers of the Union in the coming crisis, involving the honor of their old commander and the welfare of their country.

The following despatch was read dated Saratoga, August 20, 1872:—

To the PRESIDENT OF THE VETERANS' CONVENTION, care L. D. Dudley, Baggs Hotel:—

Kind greetings to our old comrades, and very sorry not to be able to be with you to-day. I wish you a happy reunion, and feel sure that the action of your Convention will be patriotic and wise. Yours in fidelity to the old flag.

A. E. BURNSIDE.

The Committee on Permanent Organizations was then named by the delegates from each Congressional district. General Charles H. Van Wyck was then introduced to the Convention by the Chairman, and he proceeded to speak of the political situation and the duty of the soldier. He criticised the new organization, which, he said, was sometimes called the democratic party. They want nothing said about the past. That was all very well. The man who steals, the incendiary, want nothing said about what they have done; but we cannot live and progress unless we look back at our history. The speaker proceeded at length to discuss the history of the democratic party and criticised the conduct of that portion of the republican party calling themselves liberal republicans in leaving the party with which they had acted to perpetuate the Union.

This speech excited the greatest enthusiasm and at its close three hearty cheers were given and a band of music played "Hail Columbia" and the "Star Spangled Banner."

The Committee on Resolutions then reported as follows:—

Whereas in 1868 the people of the United States, grateful to the distinguished soldier whose patriotism and generalship had brought peace to the country and discomfiture to her enemies, confident of his ability to preside over the nation in civil affairs as he had nobly led in our struggling against the rebellion, elected Ulysses S. Grant to the Presidency of the Republic;

Whereas a convention of the people with remarkable unanimity and enthusiasm, have placed the name of General Grant again in nomination for President of the United States; and, whereas we find marshalled on the side of an old commander in the present political contest, the hosts who were true to the country in her darkest hours contributing their means, their sympathies and their prayers; who never bowed the knee to the rebel power, nor in weakness and faint-heartedness trifled with the national honor while patriots were battling at the front to defend it; who know that eternal vigilance alone can preserve us from the restoration of rebels to power and place.

Resolved, That we have no sympathy with that political party which has among its most earnest supporters the Tammany democracy and the Ku Klux Klan; that we discover, in the present remarkable alliance between the enemies of republican institutions and the followers of Horace Greeley an attempt to wrest the government from the control of men of tried and undoubted loyalty.

Resolved, That we heartily approve of the nominees of the republican party for President and Vice President of the United States, and pledge to them our most earnest support. We believe that the man who led us to victory and the one who watched over us from his place as chairman of the Senate Military Committee and so carefully guarded our interests, are the best men to rely on for justice to our maimed comrades and the widows and orphans of those who sacrificed their lives in our late struggle for the preservation of the Union.

Resolved, That we are in full sympathy and harmony with the Republican State Convention about to assemble, and hereby pledge ourselves to give to the ticket it may nominate the same earnest support we gave to our imperilled country in her hour of danger.

Resolved, That we heartily approve of the proposition to establish a Soldiers' Home in this State, wherein the weary, worn and broken-down soldier may find a resting place in his declining years; and that we pledge our earnest support to measures looking to an appropriation by the State through which the Home may be fully and permanently established.

Resolved, That the Soldiers' and Sailors' organizations for each Congressional district are hereby requested to appoint three special delegates or representatives to the Pittsburg Convention, to be held on the 17th of September, and all the soldiers and sailors of the State are requested to attend that Convention in a body.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

General Stewart L. Woodford was then introduced to the Convention, and was received with three hearty cheers. General WOODFORD addressed the Convention. He said that on this occasion the soldiers ought to be here and nowhere else. As for the reconciliation so much spoken of, he said the soldiers of the Union wanted it and would struggle for it, but they wanted it based on justice, so that it might be lasting. He said the honor of their old commander had been assailed, and then proceeded to speak of the character of General Grant, alluding to a number of instances of his honor and unselfishness—his honorable action in returning to General Sherman his protest against his (Grant's) action, and his acknowledgment to Thomas after he had moved out from Nashville that he (Thomas) was right and he (Grant) was wrong. The speaker then proceeded to speak of the duty of the soldiers, and declared that they would now again fight it out on the line they had adopted.

The Committee on Permanent Organization of the Convention reported a number of vice presidents and also a number of secretaries, which report was agreed to. Also a resolution that a State Central Committee be appointed, to consist of one from each Congressional district, to have entire charge of the State organization, which was agreed to. The districts were, on motion, filled as far as it was possible to-night, as follows:—

Second, William A. Rowan; Third, E. C. Robinson; Fifth, Captain John E. Dowley; Sixth, Captain Chester D. Southworth; Seventh, General James C. Pinckney; Eighth, Major William H. Corsa; Ninth, Colonel George F. Hopper; Tenth, Colonel A. P. Ketchum; Twelfth, Captain J. T. Mater; Fourteenth, General George H. Sharpe; Fifteenth, Major Robert K. Oliver; Nineteenth, Colonel D. F. Ritchie; Twentieth, Captain Fox; Twenty-first, General J. E. Curtis; Twenty-second, John Beatie; Twenty-fourth, Captain John E. North; Twenty-seventh, Captain E. B. Geer; Twenty-ninth, Captain Henry R. Curtiss; Thirtieth, Samuel W. Brazier; Thirty-first, Captain William J. Morgan.

E. Delafield Smith was then called on and addressed the Convention at some length, chiefly on the recognition due the soldiers who fought for the perpetuation of the Union. He said that they were now called on to forget the great battles of the rebellion, and said, moreover, that whenever they were forgotten then Horace Greeley would be elected President and not till then.

The Convention then adjourned.

SENATOR CONKLING SERENADED.

After the Convention of the State Soldiers and Sailors had adjourned, the delegates, in company with many outsiders, proceeded to serenade Senator Conkling and the Hon. Ellis H. Roberts, member of Congress for this district. Each responded in short speeches, acknowledging the compliment, and alluded briefly to the national topics.

After the serenade guns were fired and great enthusiasm was manifested throughout the city.

VERMONT.

MONTPELIER, Vt., August 20, 1872.

The democrats and liberals met in joint convention to-day and nominated a mixed county ticket, with Homer Hatton, democrat, and C. W. H. Dwinnell, liberal republican, for State Senators. A proposition to maintain a distinct democratic organization was ignored, so the coalition is thorough and complete. The liberal republican strength in the State is estimated at about five thousand, and daily increasing. A. P. Gardner, democratic candidate for Governor, addressed the Convention this afternoon.

CONNECTICUT.

Meeting of the Republican State Convention To-day.

HARTFORD, Conn., August 20, 1872.

The Republican State Convention, for the nomination of an electoral ticket meets in this city tomorrow. A large number of delegates are already in the city. Among the names suggested for electors are Austin Dunham, of Hartford; Henry Farnham, of New Haven; Charles Benedict, of Waterbury; Henry P. Haven, of New London, and Lozeno Blackstone, of Norwich.

LOUISIANA POLITICS.

NEW ORLEANS, La., August 20, 1872.

James Lewis (colored), for Congressman at large, and Dr. Worrell, for Presidential Elector of the Second district, have been placed on the ticket of the Pinchback republicans by the Executive Committee, vice Judge Dibble and W. R. Fish, who have declined. Lewis is the nominee of the Custom House party for the same office.

GEORGIA DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

ATLANTA, Ga., August 20, 1872.

The straight Democratic Convention was held here to-day. Twenty-two counties out of 136 were represented. Delegates were appointed to the Louisville Convention and Charles O'Conor, of New York, was declared the preference of the Convention for President.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The Republican State Nominating Convention.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 20, 1872.

The city is crowded with delegates to the Republican State Nominating Convention, which meets to-morrow in the Senate chamber of the new State House. The officers to be nominated are Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Comptroller General, Attorney General, Superintendent of Education, Congressman at Large and seven electors for President and Vice President of the United States. A large majority of the delegates are negroes, and nearly every white republican in South Carolina is present. It was generally believed that the negroes desired some sort of reformation in the State government; but to-day I find that nearly every delegate came here as a matter of speculation to vote for the highest bidder. This is done openly, without any attempt whatever to hide their villany, and it was not uncommon to hear negroes ask each other on the streets who was offering the most money. The main interest of the Convention centres on the nomination for Governor, for which the two prominent candidates are Attorney General Chamberlain and Speaker Moses, of the House of Representatives. The former is a candidate of that has swindled the State over ten millions of dollars, and the latter is a candidate of the Legislative corruptionists and Blue Ridge Railroad ring. In the event of the nomination of either of these candidates the white people see no relief from the fraudulent debt and heavy taxation by which they are now encumbered, and they recognize in the election of either a continuation of the old ring operations under a new name. Chamberlain is now a member of the Financial Board, and in common with Scott and the Treasurer is equally responsible for the over issue, of bonds, and Moses is regarded as still more infamously concerned in the swindles than Chamberlain. It is stated that the administration at Washington favors a reform ticket, which would be successful in overthrowing the thieving ring that now has control of the State, but this is an impossibility, as the ring spend their money lavishly and will still control the State. Another feature is that suits are about to be instituted against Scott and others in the courts here, and if some of the ring are not in power it is more than probable they will terminate their careers in the State Penitentiary.

THE NEW YORK FINANCIAL RING,

GENERAL GRANT,

it is said, desired the nomination either of Judge Orr, United States District Attorney Corbin or Reuben Tomlinson, all of whom are republicans of good standing, who possess the confidence of the taxpayers of the State; but the ring has proved too powerful, and to-night it is confidently asserted that Chamberlain will be the nominee. It is possible that the supporters of the defeated candidate may bolt the nomination and by forming a coalition with the white people and the liberal republicans nominate a good State ticket with a prospect of carrying the State on the 19th of October. In such a contingency it would not surprise anybody if South Carolina would go for Greeley in November. With the administration ticket now almost certain to be nominated this State will be a heavy load for General Grant in the Presidential canvass. Comptroller General Neagle, who has amassed immense wealth here, furnishes the funds for the Chamberlain party, while John J. Patterson, of Pennsylvania, President of the Blue Ridge Railroad, is said to be paying out liberally for Moses. I do not believe there ever was witnessed such as is openly practised here by the non-taxpayers upon the taxpaying portion of the community. Senator Sawyer arrived here to-day, fresh from the Cabinet at Washington, and I learn to-night that he represents the President as condemning a bolt in any consideration, even for the sake of reform. In accordance with this advice a consolidation upon Chamberlain by the hitherto reform republican elements is feared. The whites are sadly disappointed, as they had been led to hope by Orr, Corbin and others, who claim to represent the administration, that Grant had determined to rid the State of the corrupt Scott-Chamberlain-Kempton ring.

OHIO.

An Immense Gathering of Grant Republicans—Speeches by Governor Noyes and Others—Opening of the Campaign on the Western Reserve.

CLEVELAND, August 20, 1872.

By arrangement of the Republican Central Committee the campaign in Ohio opened at several of the most important points to-day. The meeting held in this city to-night was a monster affair. Governor E. F. Noyes was the principal speaker. He spoke for nearly two hours, touching upon all the important issues of the day. He was listened to with the closest attention, and his arguments were apparently received with the greatest favor by all parties.

While he was speaking the Grant Boys in Blue, the Tanners and other organizations of republicans marched into the square where the speaking was going on, with torches, transparencies and banners, to the number of 2,000. Although several of the wards were not organized, the lowest estimate of the number at the meeting was 15,000, and the enthusiasm for Grant and Wilson was greater than has ever been known in this city at so early a day in any Presidential campaign. Speeches were also made by James M. Root, Mr. Hart and J. C. Lee.

Governor Noyes was serenaded at his hotel by the Grant Boys in Blue, and in response to a call made a few remarks, in which he predicted Ohio would give 40,000 majority for Grant.

The commencement of the Grant campaign opens on the Western Reserve in the most auspicious and enthusiastic manner.

SUICIDE OF A MINISTER.

DON'T LET THE OLD PARTY DIE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 17, 1872.

I am going to tell the story of the "straight out" movement. I am going to show its present standing and its real strength, and when this is told the people of the country may take the facts and the fancies and the fallacies and from the heap figure out for themselves whether or not the thing is an idle fancy of foolish politicians or an honest effort of earnest democrats or a league with Grant, and whether or not the September Convention is to be a success.

THE BOURBON HEADQUARTERS

Notwithstanding all that has been said about eccentricity and instability and chimerical vauntings it cannot be denied that Blanton Duncan is the recognized head and front of the offending movement, and that he has sounded the watchword and raised the banner around which the discontented are rallying.

COLONEL DUNCAN

is the Chairman of the National Bourbon Executive Committee, with headquarters at Louisville. I called yesterday at the interesting spot and had a long talk with the man who is just now undoubtedly attracting much of the attention of the liberal leaders and not a little from the other side. The Bourbon headquarters are established in the private study of Colonel Duncan's elegant Fourth street residence. He himself is one of the most princely gentlemen of the place, and his mansion is furnished with all the comforts of taste and the most refined culture. He is the possessor of immense estates, which were confiscated by the federal government when he abandoned all and went into the confederacy but which have been restored to him since the close of the war by an act of Congress. I found the Colonel in his study lounging in an easy chair with his body three fourths of the way under his writing desk, busily wading through a mass of correspondence from all parts of the country relating to the political situation and the situation of the "straight out" movement in particular. He received me cordially as he would an old friend, and got up to place me one of the most comfortable chairs in the room except his own. He was in the middle of a letter to Senator Bayard, and asked me to amuse myself among a file of exchanges that lay on the table until he would finish his writing.

A PENCIL SKETCH OF HIM.

Colonel Duncan is a little over six feet high in his slippers, is somewhat swaggering in his gait and wears his clothes loose and comfortable. He is a portly blonde, with a clever face, and is just turning his first half-century. His forehead is high and his face physiognomically fine, rather large bluish gray eyes, a well set Roman nose that is neither large nor small, a well cut mouth and a full beard that does not look full because it is naturally light and sparse and is studded with gray and is not worn long. His general appearance lacks a little of being imposing and his talk is free, decided and self confident. He is inexorable with those who differ with him in matters of mere opinion and states his own opinions for facts. In physical energy he has few superiors and once thoroughly interested in a cause, as he is in the Bourbon movement, he is one of its most indefatigable workers.

Such is a bird's-eye view of Colonel Blanton Duncan.

THE INTERVIEW.

"Well, sir," said Mr. Duncan, signing his name to the letter with a vigorous flourish at the end of the word "Chairman," "I am at your service now."

CORRESPONDENT—Colonel, I believe you are recognized as the leader of the Bourbon movement.

Colonel DUNCAN (interposing, with a smile of endorsement at the compliment)—Yes, sir.

CORRESPONDENT—Your movements have commenced to attract the greater part of the attention of the Greeley organs, I believe, Colonel.

Colonel DUNCAN—Yes, sir (with another smile), yes sir they have been calling me "pig headed," "obstinate ass," "mendacious defamer," etc., but they are beginning to be scared. They thought they were safe; they didn't believe anybody would dare set the house on fire—they didn't believe I would set the house on fire. But they were mistaken; now they see it beginning to tumble in and they are frightened. They find that it won't do to ignore me any longer.

THE BOURBON CORRESPONDENCE

CORRESPONDENT—I have called, Colonel, for the purpose of obtaining from you some facts concerning the situation, the expectations and the prospects of your party.

Colonel DUNCAN—Well, I don't know what I can give you. The country is alive with the subject, and names are pouring in here every day by the bushel. Every State in the Union except California, Nevada, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island, has responded to my circular and some of them will send tremendous delegations. There will be the biggest and most enthusiastic Convention here in September, sir, that has ever been held in this country. They don't believe it, but it is so, sir; and you'll find it so. See here the letters that have come to day. (Here he jumped out of his comfortable chair and, going to a cabinet, took down out of a pigeonhole labelled "Fresh" a great packet of papers which he dumped vigorously on the broad table in front of me. The fall jostled them out over a square yard, and they covered it all.) This is only one day's lot of them, remember. Examine them yourself and you'll find out more than I can tell you about the Bourbon movement, as they call it.

I commenced to examine them, the Colonel keeping up a running and enthusiastic talk at the same time that he picked out for me the most important ones and the ones from the most distinguished public men.

A FORMIDABLE LIST OF NAMES.

The Colonel also showed me a book wherein he had inserted the names of all who had written to him declaring themselves in favor of a straight-out nomination. It was a formidable, and, to me I must say, a surprising list. He had them divided off into States. Texas seemed to take the lead, then New York, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Georgia, Minnesota, Wisconsin and others followed, the ones named having the longest lists.

OMINOUS LETTERS.

For the sake of having actual facts I will give you some of the letters that I read. The names are withheld by request, but I can vouch for the genuineness of the matter. A vein of doubt and timidity seemed to run through the whole of them, and the question "Will there be a convention?" was often asked. I give these letters to show that there is a deal of discontent and disruption after all and that the "silent undercurrent" that has been talked of is no myth. It is a dangerous discontent that these letters breathe. It is ominous and it is numerous enough, one must confess, to justify and encourage the Bourbon leaders. There are many hearty letters from the South.

ILLINOIS

Here is one from an old farmer near Chesterfield, Ill. It was written in a rustic hand and bore the evidence of earnestness and honesty on its face —

We democrats in this part of the country cannot support that life long abolitionist Horace Greeley for President of the United States. We think General Grant the best man of the two, but we want a straight ticket to vote for, and we hope that the Louisville Convention will put out a good democrat. For my part I shall do all I can to make the Louisville Convention a grand success. I think if we get out a good democrat that most if not all the genuine democrats will drop Greeley and come back to first principles. Don't let our party die yet. It would be too bad to surrender to Greeley.

WHY THEY FAILED IN NORTH CAROLINA

The editor of the Charlotte (North Carolina) Bulletin writes that the conservatives failed to carry that State because five thousand democrats refused to vote with the party indorsing Greeley.

MR. CHARLES REEMELIN

of Ohio, who has been claimed by both the Grant and Greeley parties, is for neither and will support the September movement, though he will not attend the convention.

W. T. WILLEY,

a son of the West Virginia Senator and the only delegate at Baltimore whose voice was heard saying "no," writes repudiating the whole thing and saying that he is anxious to do anything in his power to aid the straight out democratic movement.

THE TIMID DOUBTERS

The following letter is one among a number showing that there is really a doubting undercurrent that is only waiting to be heard and to be led. It is from Taylorville, Ill. —

COLONEL BLANTON DUNCAN —

DEAR SIR—In the Missouri Democrat of the 7th inst. there is an article purporting to be a call for a Convention of true democrats for the purpose of nominating a President on a democratic ticket, to be held at Louisville, Ky., September 3, asking of the democrats that they appoint delegates to that Convention. Quite a controversy arose here as to the genuineness of the call, the democrats (that is, Greeley democrats) denying it, while we claim that it is genuine. Please write to me and state whether there is such a call, dated Louisville, Ky., August, 1872, and signed by Blanton Duncan, Chairman, and much oblige.

"THE UNTERRIFIED OF EGYPT."

A letter from Southern Illinois signed by a number who call themselves "The Unterrified of Egypt" says that they want a straight out ticket.

INTENSE DISGUST

A letter from one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Douglas county, Illinois, says that the feeling there is one of intense disgust with the action of the Baltimore Convention. And that the nomination of a straight out democrat would be hailed with delight by the mass of the democratic party here.

MICHIGAN.

Colonel William M. Ferry, of Michigan, a brother of the Senator, and who has always been a democrat, closes a long and serious letter as follows —

In the belief that an opportunity will be afforded by the action of the Louisville Convention for democrats throughout the Union to vote as democrats and maintain their integrity, I am, &c.

There are many other earnest letters from Michigan.

A VICIOUS BOURBON

from Salem, Miss., writes this way in a great sprawling hand —

I want a straight democratic ticket to the country. I can't touch but Greeley is the scum of all rascality—the most infernal liar, the most dangerous man, and whose administration would be ruinous to the interest of all the issues of the day, whose whole career in life has been one of hatred to the democratic party and its policy and measures and who will cheat them as he has every party that has had anything to do with him. ... There are plenty of straight dems here and in Marblehead and hope to have a chance to vote a true dem.

CONNECTICUT

A New Haven (Conn.) letter asks for a large package of circulars and promises delegates.

AN OLD EDITOR OF TEXAS

Texas is one among the strongest States and a gentleman—an old editor—writes from Whitesboro as follows —

DEAR SIR—Being in full accord and sympathy with the movement to preserve the organization and integrity of the democratic party, I address you as the accredited leader of the movement of the nation by whom this purpose is to be accomplished.

I regard it as almost impossible now to send a delegation to the Convention which assembles in your city on the 2d proximo, but can assure you that if your Convention should nominate a candidate worthy, capable and honest, Texas will give him a majority greater than any State in the Union in proportion to population.

In Texas, as in other States, we got started wrong. The Greeley movement was started by designing, ambitious men who were shrewd enough to engage the co-operation of influential good men. This, coupled with the fact that the people did not dream of so grave a fraud being practised upon them at our State Convention or at Baltimore, accounts for the very strange part Texas has borne in this very unnatural alliance with the enemies of democracy and the South.

In this fanatical rush with anything to beat Grant the press of the State was carried down with the current, which leaves the people without any medium through which to express their utter contempt for this unholy alliance, while the intolerance of the press and the leading Greeley democrats will soon drive them to resistance and defiance.

So you may rest assured that if Louisville gives us a ticket our press and candidates of the Greeley and Brown combination must either alter their creed, quit the field or suffer an ignominious defeat.

And in designating our candidates we shall need no nominating conventions. We will nominate them in the harvest field, in the shops and at the desks, and can beat Grant and Greeley both together.

I have a little political experience in Texas and at one time edited the leading journal of the State and therefore claim to know something of the sentiments of the people.

I wish your movement the greatest success, and if my humble help can be made available let me know how to bestow it. Very truly, &c.

MINNESOTA.

A candid letter from Minnesota says that the democratic press there is committed to Greeley and the leading politicians have carried off the mass of the people, but there are still some stanch democrats who stick to the faith and many who would return to it if they had a certain sounding bugle and a rallying point.

Another letter from Winnebago says a large portion of the democrats there will be with the movement as soon as it gets fairly in motion. "In this vicinity they are wholly dissatisfied with the present position. We desire somebody to vote for this Fall other than is now before the people."

MISSISSIPPI

COLONEL BLANTON DUNCAN —

DEAR SIR—We will hold a district convention at West Point, in Colfax county, on the 24th inst. We hope to have a full convention of good and true men. I think this district will be well represented at the Louisville Convention. The people are with us in our opinion, and only await an organization to attach themselves to it. But we can only succeed on a platform of sound principles with a good and reliable standard bearer. Send me prospectus of your paper and I will get a list of subscribers. Please send campaign documents. We want the record of Greeley, and especially his endorsement of General Butler's order No. 28. I have recently been in several counties in this district, and everywhere I find plenty of our best citizens who tell me that they cannot and will not support Greeley, and nowhere do I find any enthusiasm whatever for him. It is impossible for our people to support Greeley when they consider his record. Yours, &c.

VIRGINIA

A letter from Culpepper, Va., says —

I feel inclined to favor your plan, especially since having read your highly patriotic circular. How any life long democrat can now endorse Horace Greeley is beyond my comprehension. As for myself I will not vote for him, and many of my friends entertain the same opinion. Give us one of our own party.

MISSOURI

Here is a letter from a rather profane Professor of Latin in a Missouri college —

DEAR SIR—Can I do anything to aid you in the good cause in this region? Our democrats are supporting Greeley because they have no one else to vote for (or at least they think so). I was in the Confederate service four years a major, and I'll be damned if I vote for any such man as Horace Greeley. Missouri is not lost. Gratz Brown is not very popular here, as he is a regular drunkard. If we could only get up some good independent move it would do much good. Let me hear from you. Yours, truly,

A CONTRIBUTION

One earnest individual sends a dollar "to help along the good cause."

EXCESSIVELY SO

A Kentucky red hot writes that under no consideration will he support Greeley or any other ticket that endorses the several so called constitutional amendments, and that he will "work of nights" to get money enough to pay his expenses to the Louisville Convention.

A REGULAR STRAIGHT OUT

An unpunctuated individual writes from Nebraska as follows —

Mr Col blandon duncan chairman of the committee louisville kentucky dear sir being a democrat and a subscriber of the Neo York Dey book sir i cannot surport H Greeley & thar is plenty of Democrat here that wont go to the Election a tal if we Democrats Dont git a strait out & out ticket sir I am a tennessean and shoultered my musket in the cos of Freedom & right & fought 4 year for Davis & Company & will give you a few Names & you can Organize our County Now I will give you the names of a few good democrats

(He then gives a good long list of names)

Yours trooley

NEW YORK CITY.

A Bourbon Wall street merchant writes a long letter, hoping, for the sake of the preservation of principle in America, that the Louisville Convention will name the next President.

A New York "Attorney and Counsellor at Law" writes that he does not mingle much in politics and consequently is sorry to say that he is not well posted in the present crisis, but thinks "the Greeley tide has reached its full flood."

GEORGIA CERTAIN

A letter from Senator Bayard, of Delaware, encloses a despatch as follows —

ATLANTA, Ga., August 12, 1872.

We can carry Georgia with Charles O'Conor. Will he accept Louisville nomination? Large straight out meeting to-morrow. Answer at once.

(Signed by a number of prominent Georgians.)

To which Senator Bayard says he replied as follows —

I am informed and believe he will.

WHY THE THING HAS BEEN KEPT SO QUIET

"Why, Colonel," I ventured to ask, "have you been keeping this matter so quiet? Don't you believe, from the general run of all these letters, that the people are held back by doubts of its strength, and that if you were to keep the real facts before the country it would give your cause character and force?"

Colonel DUNCAN—Yes, that is so; but we have thought it best to work away quietly and let the September Convention come like a clap of thunder upon the country.

CORRESPONDENT—But don't you think the publication of the facts now would assure the timid and strengthen that Convention?

Colonel DUNCAN—Yes, you are right about that, but we are strong enough already to make the movement a success, and our policy is to take the country by storm and sweep it with a whirlwind of enthusiasm. Besides, we are hampered now by the

WANT OF A PRESS

The democratic organs have all gone over to Greeley, but after the Convention campaign papers will spring up all over the country. I have already received advices of campaign papers to be started in different sections, and they say that if we make a good nomination a new and unsubsidized press will spring up fresh from the people, promulgating the ideas and speaking the wishes of the people, and will prove a powerful and crushing foe to the present rat running and wishy washy concern that has sold itself for pottage. Some of the papers have begun to see it, and those that have sense enough are beginning to tone down already.

HIRES AN AMANUENSIS

At this moment the door bell rang and a rather gawky squint eyed young fellow was shown in, and after being catechized by Colonel Duncan and announcing that he had done some copying once in the County Clerk's office, was employed as an amanuensis to the Chairman of the Bourbon National Executive Committee. After being instructed to return at eight o'clock next morning, and be expected to write steadily from that time until five in the afternoon, he retired.

"My correspondence is increasing so rapidly," remarked the Colonel, "that I find the employment of an amanuensis absolutely necessary."

THE AFTERNOON MAIL

Just then the bell rang again and the servant girl going to the front door returned with her arms full of letters and papers.

"This is my afternoon mail," said the Colonel.

He then went to work tearing open the wrappers while I dived again into the already examined pile of letters that lay spread out before me on the table.

"Ho! ho!" suddenly exclaimed the Colonel, rearing back and throwing his legs up across his desk. "Here is one from Vermont."

CORRESPONDENT—Ah!

He then proceeded to read it, saying at the same time, "There are devilish few democrats up there in Vermont, but what there are are mighty good ones."

He handed me the letter to read. It was from an influential local politician, who declared himself heartily for a straight out nomination and gave the names of a number of Bourbons in the State who might be relied on as correspondents. This reduced the number of States which had not responded to five, and Colonel Duncan, turning to his list book, found a blank page, made a vociferous "V" and then wrote down "Vermont," to which he appended the list of names which the letter contained.

HE IS NOT THE CONVENTION

He then resumed the undoing of the mail. Presently he gave vent to something which was half grunt and half laugh, and when I dropped my letter and looked up he smiled a broad smile and said —

"Many of these fellows write to me making suggestions as if I was the Convention. I always have to write back explaining that the Convention will make its own rules. They want to leave it all to me."

TRYING TO CONVERT HIM

Presently he gave vent to the same kind of sound again and handed me a pamphlet with this title —

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY,
THE
AND NATIONAL PROGRESS.

"Them fellows think they can convert me," he said with a laugh. "They do. Always sending me such as this. I think they can convert me."

The next letter was from a Texas town and contained a list of the names of seventeen democrats who would support the September Convention.

"There," he said, "you see there are seventeen from one town. That is seventeen. Sometimes there are a thousand, but suppose there are only seventeen in every town, that makes 850,000 democrats in the country—enough to beat Greeley to smash." And he took his list book, hunted out the "Texas" pages and put down the seventeen names.

"But," ventured the correspondent, "Colonel, if you do beat Greeley with your 850,000 votes you don't elect your nominee, you simply elect Grant."

Colonel DUNCAN—No, you don't understand us at all. We only want to show that it is impossible for them to elect Greeley and then the democrats will all come back to us.

(Colonel Duncan firmly believes that the united democratic party of the country is able to elect its candidate without the aid of any outside votes.)

"We have beat them already," said the Colonel. "Why, Phil Doern said to me the other day—(Phil Doern is the proprietor of the Louisville Anzeiger, the German democratic organ of the State)—that they were beat and that I had done it. And he is right. If I had not made the break they would have gone on and had a nice easy time. But I set the house on fire, you see, and now see them come tumbling in. They didn't think anybody would do it, but they were mistaken."

HIS INTIMACY WITH NAPOLEON

At this juncture the conversation flew off at a tangent and landed plump on the other side of the Atlantic. He reached a photograph of the ex-Emperor Napoleon with the royal autograph, which he said I might mention. It would give spice and variety, he thought, to my letter.

"You see," he said, "I have a right to be at the head of a great political movement. I associate with the crowned heads and the royal hidalgos." Here he got down a photograph of the Grand Duke Alexis which the royal Muscovite had presented personally to a member of his family.

THE FIRST GUN

The Colonel, leaving me to admire the crowned head and the royal hidalgo, plunged again into the mass of correspondence that still lay a foot deep upon his desk.

Presently he pulled out from the heap an imposing document, which he eagerly opened and devoured with such exclamations during the process as "a ha, a hee, a ho, a hoo," and various other expressions that might have been classed among the dialects of the Unyanyembe. When he had got to the end of the document he went back to the first of his exclamations and hurriedly repeated them in an excited manner. He then turned to me and, holding the ponderous paper aloft, triumphantly exclaimed —

"Here's the first gun! Boom she goes!"

"What is it, Colonel?"

"The first gun, sir. Gee—boom."

He explained in a way that the science of chirography would be vain to attempt to express that it was the proceedings and resolutions of a meeting of the straight-out democrats of Trimble county, Kentucky.

"These resolutions are strong," he said, "and it would be well to get them into your letter to the HERALD. They are the first gun."

Whereas the Baltimore Convention, in adopting a platform, abandoned the principles of the democratic party and accepted such as are conflicting and irreconcilable with them; therefore be it

Resolved, That we democrats of Trimble county do declare and say that as the Baltimore Convention abandoned the true principles of the democratic party the acts of said Convention are not binding on us as the action of the democratic party.

Resolved, That we hold to the doctrine of State rights and a strict construction of the federal constitution, believing their recognition to be indispensable to the maintenance of free political institutions and the perpetuation of popular liberty in this country.

Resolved, That we will make no quarrel with our friends who have deserted us, but will cling to the time honored principles of the democratic party.

The following named gentlemen were appointed as delegates to attend the Convention to be held in Louisville on the 3d of September next:—C. C. Holmes, James Gill, F. A. Adams, Jacob Hawkins, Jacob Zeager, J. Y. Newark, J. W. McCain and A. W. Bartlett, and all other democrats of the county opposed to Grant and Greeley.

The meeting was largely attended and was composed of some of the sturdiest and most influential citizens of the county.

The Colonel was a good while in getting over his delight at having the first gun fired, and he read the resolutions over and over again, often breaking forth in some exuberant comment.

"These are strong resolutions," he exclaimed again emphatically. "Ha, ha, ha. How Dawson will feel sorry when he sees this, the jackass." (Dawson is the editor of the Louisville Ledger, once the organ of the Bourbons, but now gone over to Greeley.) "How sorry he'll feel when he sees this!" said the Colonel, half mumbling to himself. "I told him at Baltimore not to go over, to stay on the fence awhile. Now he'll be sorry he didn't take my advice. Compels me to start a paper, too, the jackass. Spend my money too. I knew he'd be sorry for it."

"'And all other democrats in the county opposed to Grant and Greeley,'" laughed the Colonel as he read over the resolutions again exultingly.

SOME ADVICE ABOUT BETTING

"If you have any money to bet," said the Colonel, turning to me suddenly, "bet it against Greeley. I have already bet $2,500, all I had to spare. It's a sure thing though. I'm betting on four aces. You mustn't bet on Grant, you know, but bet against Greeley. You'll win it then sure."

THE SEPTEMBER CONVENTION

Coming back to the subject of the September Convention, the Colonel reiterated that it would undoubtedly be the grandest affair of the kind ever held in this country. He intended to see to the arrangements himself personally, and those who are aware of his indomitable energy will be satisfied that if he does take hold of that branch of the affair the arrangements will be complete and ample, and that there will be nothing wanting.

"All the correspondents are coming," he said. "They will crowd around me too. They all know me."

WHO WILL BE NOMINATED

It is generally understood among the leaders of the movement that Mr. Charles O'Conor, of New York, is to be the nominee. It is known that he is willing to accept. Colonel Duncan says the Vice President has not been decided upon yet, and there is no telling who it will be. I would like to make the humble suggestion that it is nothing but just and right that Colonel Duncan himself should receive that recognition of his really earnest and untiring services in the Bourbon cause.

CONCLUSION

And now my story is told. It is comprised of a deal of the ludicrous and the chimerical with a very alien admixture of serious and certain fact, it is true, but, as you see, my impressions of this semi serious symposiac have been obtained from a comfortable seat overlooking the very limb of the tree upon which hangs the nest in which this Bourbon egg is being hatched. I have endeavored to give what I have seen as I found it and, as I promised in the outset, have given the barren, unvarnished facts, and leave the country and the liberal party to make up their mind as to the real importance and the prospective strength of the September movement. One thing is certain, it is not being laughed at by the whole people. There is a strong element that is undercurrent, which, being unable to comprehend and cope with the new, prefers to stand by that which is old and has been tried, and which has been handed down to them from the fathers with their endorsement of its righteousness. There are few intelligent men who believe that Mr. Blanton Duncan's movement is strong enough to accomplish what he claims for it. It has strength, but that strength is only capable of defeating Greeley. It cannot defeat Grant, except possibly by co-operating with Greeley. This from its very nature is impossible.

A Nimrod Prince and His Exploits in the Killing of Bears, Crocodiles, Ostriches, Wild Boars and the Projected Tiger-Shooting in British India.

Yesterday morning at six o'clock the Prince Augustus Coburg, son-in-law of Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, left the steamer North America, in which he had arrived a few hours previously from Rio Janeiro. Numerous and cordial were the handshakings which took place ere the handsome young Duke had left the deck and taken a carriage in company with Herr Carl Fleischmann, a tutor, his only attendant, and who is about to leave shortly for Europe. In person the Duke is tall and of a commanding presence. His features are regular and well formed. He wears a blonde beard and mustache, and the general impression formed upon seeing him is that he is possessed with great firmness combined with great good nature. Quickly the carriage rolled over some of the narrow streets leading from the North River to Fifth avenue, which must have reminded him, by the jolting produced, of travelling through some of his Brazilian ravines. As the last whoop of the retreating milkman was heard in the neighborhood of the Brevoort House the Duke alighted, and with an elastic step was seen under the portals of the hotel, and a few seconds later had inscribed his name in the hotel register. A substantial breakfast followed, after which our royal visitor started alone on an exploring expedition away up to the Central Park, walking the whole time at rapid pace in spite of the sun's almost tropical rays, and a casual observer might have thought him to be engaged, to quote a well known expression, "in taking it out of himself." After a long walk he returned from the Park, passing down Broadway, gazing with interest at the magnificent stores which are to be seen at either side. Arriving at his hotel once more he entered his sitting room, lit a cigar and commenced to read the HERALD. While reading the history of his life, his pedigree, his services in the Brazilian navy and such collateral matter, his meditations were interrupted by receiving the card of the writer. The colored boy who had carried the piece of pasteboard soon returned and said that he would be glad to see the HERALD'S representative. Thinking perhaps that the Prince might not be familiar with our vulgar tongue the writer opened the interview in French and commenced the conversation in French with a courteous

"BON JOUR, MONSIEUR LE PRINCE,"

but after a few moments' conversation Prince Saxe stated that English was as familiar to him as French, and accordingly the language was changed. The following is the conversation which took place:—

REPORTER—This is your first visit, I believe, to the United States?

PRINCE—Yes it is, and I look forward with great pleasure to my journey across the Continent to San Francisco. I also am much interested in this city of "Gotham," as Washington Irving termed it in his "Salmagundi," for I consider its growth and prosperity simply marvellous, and the modern name of Empire City is well earned.

THE PRESIDENT

REPORTER—You have not yet decided what towns you will visit on your way to the Pacific slope?

PRINCE—Well, no. I am waiting for my brother by the Java from Liverpool, and then my first visit will naturally be to President Grant, for whom, in common with the Brazilian people, I entertain a very high respect.

COMMERCIAL RELATIONS

I may say that there is a great deal of sympathy in Brazil with the States, and our commercial relations are developing themselves from day to day with astonishing rapidity. Perhaps you are aware that this country takes three fourths of the coffee we export. In addition to this our trade in cotton, India rubber, sugar, hides, &c., is in a very flourishing condition, and the country at large is becoming more and more cultivated.

HORRIBLE WINE

We are also growing wine, but hitherto it has been terrible stuff and as sour as vinegar, but some of the Brazilians declare it excellent and swear by it; but for my own part I think it execrable as a general rule. However, matters may change in respect to this production if we get more European cultivators of the vine to settle among us.

THE DEATH OF THE DUKE OF AUMALE'S SON

REPORTER—You have heard, I suppose, of the death of the Duke of Guise, your cousin?

PRINCE—No, not a word. I am truly grieved, however, to hear it, as it will be a terrible blow to his poor father, for he fairly doted on his son. The lad, however, I always considered somewhat puny and delicate. I am very, very sorry to hear it.

THE TRIP ROUND THE WORLD

REPORTER—Might I ask if you have formed your programme for your trip round the world?

PRINCE—Well, the skeleton route is already agreed upon, but of course a good deal of filling in has to be done. We propose to see as much of the country as we can in previous to our departure for San Francisco; then we proceed to Japan by Pacific Mail steamer, thence to Shanghae, then Pekin, whence a visit will be paid to

Leaving the land of Confucius we shall proceed to Australia and will visit Sydney, Melbourne and other principal cities, thence to British India, where I have

SET MY HEART ON TIGER SHOOTING,

for I'm a most enthusiastic sportsman. I have hopes to get some buffalo shooting in this country before I leave. By the way, I remember seeing at Rio a cartoon in a New York comic paper of and General Phil Sheridan surrounded by a cordon of cavalry, protecting him from the infuriated buffaloes on the Plains, and perhaps I may have something of that kind of luck.

ALEXIS FIXING UP A TELEGRAPH POLE

REPORTER—I see you are an enthusiastic Nimrod.

PRINCE—Well, you have not misjudged me, and I am passionately fond of my gun.

REPORTER—Your experience, I have no doubt, extends in that matter over many lands.

PRINCE—Well, yes.

A COSMOPOLITAN HUNTER'S TALE

I have shot partridges and pheasants in England, I have tumbled over in the highest peaks of the Styrian Mountains forty two chamois. It was the most exciting and dangerous sport I ever had. I have killed bears in Hungary, seals in the Baltic when I was there in my ship in the war of 1866, when I was in the Austrian service. I have passed many an hour at deer stalking in Germany. I have shot countless capercailzies there, I have shot ostriches in the plains of South America, tapirs in the dense forests weighing often 900 or 1,000 pounds, wild boars or peccaries, and last, but not least, at a place called San Francisco, situated in the centre of Brazil.

FIFTY CROCODILES

REPORTER—That is a notable record.

THE PRINCE AS A LINGUIST

REPORTER—Since you have been in so many lands you are, doubtless, somewhat of a polyglot?

PRINCE—Yes, I have acquired several languages, I admit. My mother being French and my father German, these are two languages to commence with. In addition to this, having resided a great deal in England I speak English. For that country I have the highest affection and admiration, for many reasons, which are doubtless palpable to you. I speak also "la lingua bella," also Magyar, or Hungarian.

PRINCE—By the way, speaking of Hungary, are not some of Prince Esterhazy's family resident in this county?

REPORTER—I am sorry to say I do not know.

AS AN AUTHOR

REPORTER—You are known, I believe, somewhat as an author?

PRINCE—I do not think that title is a merited one, seeing that I have only written some light works on my own travels, which were merely printed for private circulation.

MY FATHER-IN-LAW, THE EMPEROR,

and myself also are great admirers of your American authors and poets—Emerson, Bancroft the historian and Oliver Wendell Holmes—while among the poets William Cullen Bryant's majestic rhyme and Whittier's lines of rhythm and melody are familiar to us as household words. Dom Pedro has translated a good deal of Longfellow's glorious cadences, particularly those derived from the "Sagas of the Norsemen."

THE VIENNA EXPOSITION

PRINCE—After I return from my trip round the world I have to represent the Brazilian government at the Vienna Exposition, which promises, from all I hear, to surpass the Paris exhibition of 1867. I saw in your paper to-day a letter from Minister Jay suggesting the propriety of the government of the United States making a grant of money in favor of American exhibitors at Vienna.

WHY THE PRINCE TRAVELS WITHOUT A SUITE

NO FOOD FOR THREE DAYS.

PRINCE—No. Too many people around you while travelling are a nuisance. I remember thinking this when I rode across from Rio to Pernambuco during the drought. As it was we had to go without food for three days—that was during the dry season. We had sufficient food only for our own necessities. If our party had been larger we should have perished. In addition to this it is agreeable to be without people elbowing you constantly.

ASSASSINATION IN BRAZIL

REPORTER—The country in Brazil is now in a peaceful condition, and there is not so much assassination going on as there used to be.

PRINCE—Well, it is merely in the seaport towns that so much murder is committed among foreigners. In the country murders are hardly ever committed for the sake of money. Women and politics are the great causes of trouble.

WHAT BRAZIL WANTS

Brazil is a magnificent country, and I think that the beauty of scenery at Rio Janeiro far exceeds those celebrated landscape marvels of Naples and Constantinople, with both of which I am familiar. All Brazil wants is a greater population to cultivate her immense resources.

THE PRINCE'S EUROPEAN POLITICS

REPORTER—With a French mother and German father what were your sympathies during the late Franco-German war, may I ask?

PRINCE—My sympathies were German; but I think it was wrong of Germany, after capturing the French provinces, to exact such a frightful amount of tribute money as three milliards of francs.

Thanking the Prince for his courtesy the reporter withdrew.

The Prince Philip.

Last evening the Cunard steamer Java brought to our shores Prince Philip of Coburg Gotha, Duke of Saxe and Lieutenant Colonel in the Austrian army. The Prince comes here to join his brother, Prince Augustus of Coburg, mentioned above, on his tour round the world, which is to terminate on the 1st May, 1873, at the opening of the Vienna Exposition, when both brothers will have their respective functions to fulfil, the one as Brazilian representative at the Exposition and the other will have to resume his military command. Prince Philip bears but faint resemblance to his brother, being of dark complexion and short, and further, somewhat addicted to a stoop. He is also remarkably short sighted and constantly wears spectacles. He is accompanied by a military officer, an old friend in the Austrian army. He also brought with him an Italian valet. The Prince was in this country four years ago and has already visited the principal cities in the Union. He has not seen his brother Augustus since they met at Vienna last Winter. The meeting between them last night at the Brevoort House was a joyous one, and plans will doubtless be laid to-day for putting into effect their proposal to visit the antipodes and to go round the world.

DR. HOUARD.

His Arrival in New York Yesterday from Cadiz.

Nineteen Months in a Spanish Dungeon.

He Tells the Story of His Imprisonment and What He Knows of Secretary Fish—The Cruel Treatment He Was Subjected To—His Claim Against Spain and What He Thinks Will Come of It.

After days of anxious watching Dr. John Emile Houard, who has obtained during the past year more than a national reputation, arrived here by the Alexandria, of the Anchor line, running between New York and Cadiz. As the steamer's arrival was telegraphed from Sandy Hook a number of friends and sympathizers met together at the wharf to give the exile a welcome home. These were mainly Cubans residing here, but among them were mixed some Americans, though no one of an official character. When finally the steamship neared her dock a rush was made for the gang plank, and before Dr. Houard had time to appear on deck he was almost submerged, as it were, in a sea of congratulations. It seemed a tussle as to who should have his hand first. The stranger in his own land was quite overcome by this affectionate welcome, and his voice almost failed him as he attempted to answer the thousand questions which were put to him at the moment.

HIS APPEARANCE.

Dr. Houard is a man of apparently about forty years of age, of medium height. His hair is dark and no gray is visible in it, while his beard, which he wears long, is of a somewhat lighter color. He wears no mustache, which gives him a somewhat singular appearance. His face is exceedingly brown from tanning under the hot sun of the south of Spain, and his eyes have a thoughtful, somewhat solemn look, as of a man who had suffered much. This look is carried out by his gesture, which is stately and slow. Every movement indicates the gentleman of refinement and culture. He was dressed in a suit of black.

After mutual congratulations had been exchanged for some time Doctor Houard drove from the steamship with a couple of friends to the Astor House, where he registered his name, taking room 128. During the afternoon a large number of friends, mainly Cubans, called in to see him.

A reporter of the HERALD was despatched to look after the distinguished gentleman, and after some difficulty in tracing him up to the city finally met him at the Astor House itself, where he called in later in the afternoon. An introduction was obtained through a distant relative of the Doctor, and the reporter stated the object of his visit. Dr. Houard expressed himself as

at seeing the representative of the HERALD, and said that before he communicated anything he wished to thank the press of America for the manner in which it had befriended him when apparently he had no friends. He stated that he attributed his release to the efforts of the American press, and particularly the NEW YORK HERALD, which had advocated his cause from the first in the strongest manner, and he had no doubt had finally succeeded in making Congress take the matter up.

REPORTER—What do you think, Doctor, of the action of the American government?

DR. HOUARD—I knew so little of what was going on outside my prison walls that, indeed, I hardly like to give an opinion against the government. Still it seems to me their action was very dilatory and long drawn out. I think Secretary Fish might have acted more promptly. In this way, I think, I have a right to complain. The government had all the proofs before it that I was both an American citizen and totally innocent of the charges brought against me, and I think, under the circumstances, might have abbreviated, or at least alleviated, my sufferings somewhat. However, when once of the matter things went along with considerable swiftness. General Sickles in particular acted as promptly as I could wish, and as soon as he had once received his instructions from the government lost no time in seeing me liberated. I have also in particular to thank Mr. Duffy, the American Consul in Cadiz, for his uniform kindness to me, a total stranger to him. He sympathized with me so deeply that had I been his own brother I could not possibly have been treated with more consistently kind feeling.

REPORTER—I presume you intend presenting your claim immediately to the government?

DR. HOUARD—Certainly. I shall repair to Washington in a day or two and present my claim. I am not quite certain as to what sum I shall demand. But I am entitled to a pretty round sum, not only for the persecution and sufferings I have been subjected to while an innocent man, but for

to which I have been subjected. Thus I had a very fine medical business in Cienfuegos, second only to one other in the place. This, of course, has been completely broken up. I also have there a very fine property, the value of which when I left it was fully $50,000. The volunteers have since burned down the houses upon it, stolen the cattle and, in fact, taken and destroyed everything but the bare land itself. Now I do not value the place at over $30,000.

REPORTER—Do you intend returning there?

DR. HOUARD—Oh, no; not for the whole Island of Cuba. I have a perfect right to return, but the volunteers wouldn't allow me to walk four squares without shooting me down. I was indeed afraid that had I been liberated in Cuba they would have killed me. They freely made threats of doing so.

REPORTER—How long were you imprisoned?

DR. HOUARD—Altogether nineteen months—one month in Havana, fourteen months in Cienfuegos and four in Cadiz.

REPORTER—During all this time how were you treated?

DR. HOUARD—The treatment differed very much in different places. In Havana I was simply

TREATED BRUTALLY.

They made me sweep the streets and the crossings. Then when taken back to Cienfuegos, though the prison was good enough, I had to pay very heavily for it. What were called the poor prisoners were in a frightful condition—had to lay on the ground, eat anything they could get hold of, and altogether passed a wretched existence. For me, who could pay, things were somewhat better. We were allowed beds to sleep on and to eat anything we were willing to pay for, which was brought us from outside. They made me perform no labor of any kind, though this was mainly because I bribed the jailer so as to get out of it. They seemed to make no distinction between ordinary convicts and political prisoners. This existence was heaven itself compared to what I suffered afterwards. I heard of the order of transfer to Cadiz with dismay, and then actually thought I should have to serve out the eight years I was condemned to. We were taken on board the transport ship and which were attached to both ankles and ran thence to the waist. We were lodged down in the hold. When we wanted water we had to go on deck, dragging our chains after us. This was almost an impossibility and required our utmost strength. Finally the exertions I had to make and the bad quality of the food, which I paid for, as it was impossible to eat the beans and hard crackers which were given the soldiers, gave me the dysentery, and I had to bribe a cabin boy to let me down water on the sly, which I used to hide beneath my clothes. This experience was the worst of all, and I was actually glad when we reached Cadiz. We were speedily transferred to the prison, and then a long course of suffering began. The commandant of the prison, Juan Castillo, was a brute and a thief. Here, again, the food was so bad that the prisoners actually died from eating it. I had to send out and get my food. As the commandant had all my money he used to pay for it and

CHARGE ME DOUBLE

and in the bargain used to cut my meat and bread to pieces under the plea that he was afraid that letters had been placed in them. Even the rice and milk he would turn over and knock about with the same excuse of letters, that it was quite unfit to eat when it reached me. The Commandant was particularly cruel with me. He would not allow any of the other prisoners to converse with me, though they talked among themselves. He would allow no letters or papers to reach me, and allowed me to send none unless he had previously examined them and altered them to suit his mind. But my principal suffering was the filth of the prison. It was something terrible. Vermin of every kind abounded in such profusion that we had to get up three and four times a night and pick them off our body. This and the confinement finally made me sick again, and the physicians advised that I should be

TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL.

The Commandant, however, thought he saw in this some plan of escape, and for some time after utterly refused to let me be taken away. When, at length, mainly through the representations of the American consul, Mr. Duffy, who in all this was very kind to me, I was taken away, I was too weak to walk and had to be carried in a carriage. At the hospital, through good treatment and the exertions of Mr. Duffy to get me all that could possibly do me good, I gradually recovered, and finally heard of my release with a sensation of joy only equalled by that of a man who has escaped from the very jaws of death. I am fully confident that had it not been for the fact that Mr. Duffy and various other persons in the city, Spanish as well as Americans, befriended me I should not have survived the ordeal. The treatment I received was simply cruel and dastardly.

REPORTER—How long did you remain in Cadiz after your release?

DR. HOUARD—Twenty days, until I could complete my preparations for leaving. During this time I stayed with Mr. Duffy. It was not a lack of money which made me do this. The

EXTENSIVE PRACTICE

I had when I was first arrested was the cause of my having some money outside of the lands I owned. This, however, has been pretty well eaten up in the time I have been in prison, obliged all the time to support my family and myself.

REPORTER—What family have you, Doctor?

DR. HOUARD—I have a son in Philadelphia and two daughters in Cuba. They are both native-born Cubans. It is my intention to have them leave Cuba as soon as possible. Since I have been in prison they have been

and have suffered a good deal, though not from any pecuniary want.

REPORTER—They know of your release?

DR. HOUARD—I believe so. I wrote to them before I left Cadiz.

REPORTER—How did you enjoy the passage over?

DR. HOUARD—Oh, very well, considering that we had head winds pretty near all the time, which made it a long passage. The boat is a slow old tub. We left Cadiz on the 3d of August, making a passage of seventeen days.

REPORTER—What will be your future movements?

DR. HOUARD—I expect to start for Philadelphia the day after to-morrow, and will shortly after go on to Washington to look after my claim. Where I shall reside permanently I have not as yet decided. It may be in Philadelphia, and possibly again in the South. I have thought of New Orleans, where my medical skill would probably be of more avail, as the diseases are somewhat like those of Havana. But as yet I am not certain.

The HERALD reporter rose to go, and as he did so Dr. Houard wiped his forehead with his handkerchief and said, laughingly, "This is much better than Cadiz." Shaking hands, the reporter took his leave.

THE JERSEY CITY POLICE WAR.

Governor Parker on the Situation—He Will Leave the Case to the Courts—He Dislikes Bayonet Exercise.

A HERALD reporter called on Governor Parker at the Executive Chamber in Trenton yesterday to ascertain his views in regard to the police conflict in Jersey City. The Governor is fully convinced that the convicted Commissioners have no right to continue in office, but he does not see how he can place the new appointees in office. He regards the case as a contest for office to be settled by the courts.

REPORTER—Has there been any circular issued to the Judges of the Supreme Court with a view to have a special term held for the consideration of this matter?

GOVERNOR—Not that I am aware of, and if there had been, probably I should have heard something of the matter.

REPORTER—Who is the official to convene the Court in special session?

GOVERNOR—I suppose it is the Chief Justice, but it is something that is so foreign to the regular order of business—something so out of the common way—that I am not prepared to say how they should proceed to convene the Supreme Court in special session.

REPORTER—Would there be any trouble if the Court was in session?

GOVERNOR—None. It is because the Supreme Court is not in session that the trouble arises.

REPORTER—Why don't you act, Governor, and enforce your appointments?

GOVERNOR—Where is my authority to enforce the appointments when it is a legal question that has to be settled? The Court is the only place where it can be settled, and I am not aware that any action will be taken before November.

REPORTER—But is there no way whereby you can enforce the appointments?

GOVERNOR—What would they have me do? Call out the military and place the men in office at the point of the bayonet? It might be done in that way, but that would only make matters more difficult. I really do not wish to give an opinion on the matter, and as it is a question for the Court, I propose to leave it there.

REPORTER—Then you have not heard of any steps for convening the Supreme Court to consider this matter?

GOVERNOR—No, I have not, and there has not been anything new on the subject within the last few days, nor do I think there will be anything new until the Court decides.

REPORTER—What is your real opinion on the case?

GOVERNOR—It has assumed a legal phase. The Commissioners whom my appointments displaced say that they have a right to hold over, and the Attorney General says they have no power, that they forfeited it, and where there is a difference of opinion the Supreme Court only can decide.

As Chief Justice Beasley is absent from Trenton, no session of the Supreme Court can be held for the present. The HERALD reporter spoke to several prominent lawyers and politicians, who were in Trenton, on the subject, and the universal opinion is that Governor Parker should have sustained his appointees by the power of the entire State militia if necessary. Among those interviewed on the question was the eloquent advocate Garret B. Adrain, who defended Bridget Durgan in the Coriell murder case, John Kelly, of Elizabeth, and seven members of the Legislature. They are all of opinion that the Governor should maintain his authority at all hazards.

CUBA.

The Herald Livingstone Letters and the Slave Trade.

Comments of the Diario de la Marina—"For Several Years Not a Single Slave Landed on the Cuban Coast from Africa"—The Latest News About the Insurrection.

HAVANA, August 15, 1872.

The publication of Dr. Livingstone's letter to Mr. Bennett and the editorial comments of the HERALD of the 27th of July, in referring to the Doctor's remarks upon the slave trade in Africa and stating that Cuba was now the sole slave market of the civilized world, have had the same effect upon the Diario de la Marina, which represents the ultra Spanish idea that a red rag would have on a bull, and has been the cause of another nervous fit and offence to this journal, and brought forth in its columns a refutation of the statement that the island of Cuba was still a market for that "relic of barbarism," the African slave trade. Nevertheless, many well informed know better, and your correspondent has repeatedly received the assurance that negroes from Africa have disembarked on this coast within the present year, and but a few days since was informed by a gentleman holding a high position to a foreign government here, that the well known king of the slave traders had landed a cargo of "sacks of live coal" on these shores, not far distant from Havana. Such may or may not be the case. It is very difficult, almost impossible to arrive at the truth or source of such statements, but the experience of former years when the introduction of African slaves was a matter of fact, and large expeditions were frequently landed despite of treaties made in apparent good faith, the details of such landings were carefully withheld from the public. Only those directly interested, the authorities in most of the cases, and the importers, were at all aware of the particulars, and it was their interest to keep them and, therefore, only undefined rumors circulated respecting such landings. Diplomatic inquiries repeatedly made always resulted in the government denying the fact. The slave trade was not only a source of great profit to those who engaged directly in the business, but the authorities at all cognizant of the expeditions assisted in the landings and concealment of these unfortunates for a consideration. To-day the danger of offending the nations with whom Spain has treaties for the suppression of the traffic is far greater; but the facilities for carrying out these enterprises to those powerful and influential men of this island, whose interest still leads them to act in opposition to the dictates of humanity, progress and the law, are considerable; and such enterprises are more profitable than formerly, negro slaves commanding enormous prices, on account of the scarcity of field hands, and risks are undertaken with some degree of impunity, and under the cover of manifestations of patriotism and the influence of ready cash, everything is possible in this island. But, in denial of all reports of this nature, the patriotic, but ignorant, Spaniards in general, not forgetting their prejudices, maintain that it is the work of "laborantes," just in the same manner as they attribute everything else, derogatory to the glory and power of Spain, to the machinations of conspiring Cubans, whom they style "laborantes." The main idea of the Cubans on this question is well known—liberty and freedom to all; as it will be remembered that during the first year of the insurrection, the Cuban Congress issued a decree of emancipation to all classes.

AS SECRET AS POSSIBLE,

THE DIARIO ON THE LIVINGSTONE EXPEDITION.

The following is a translation in extenso of the article of the Diario referred to:—

According to promise, the NEW YORK HERALD has published two letters from the celebrated English explorer, addressed to the deceased director of that enterprising journal, in which he gives an account of his most important discoveries in Equatorial Africa. The principal intention of the hardy traveller was to discover the source of the Nile, an idea brought down from remote ages and which has cajoled the glory seeking minds of ancient Roman Emperors.

It is well known, for the Diario spoke on the subject at the time, that several years ago two English travellers attempted an undertaking similar to Dr. Livingstone's: Speke and Grant, after having surveyed the meridional limit of Lake Nyanza, to which they added the name of Victoria in honor of the reigning sovereign of England, believed that they had discovered the source of the Nile. But later on Sir Samuel Baker discovered another like of the same name, to which he added the name of Albert, it being thus proved as we showed at the time, that the source of the famous river was not one but several. Dr. Livingstone has discovered new lakes and rivers which prolong the Nile southward for a distance of 700 miles beyond the lake discovered by Baker.

To reduce the matter to the simplest geographical expression, this discovery will prove, if substantiated, that the Nile is the largest river in the world. Perhaps the Doctor himself, who has undergone so many dangers and sufferings to arrive at this result, thus understands it, when he has given his undertaking a character likely to interest the entire civilized world.

Livingstone speaks in moving language of the horrors of slavery in Africa, and hopes to succeed, by the aid of his nation and the United States, that the trade among the Africans themselves shall be abolished. But the HERALD, in its editorial comments on this point, says an untruth, which might be excused, coming from Dr. Livingstone, ignorant on account of his long absence, of events, even of the success of the Atlantic cable, but coming from the HERALD needs a correction.

This journal states, in order to deceive we know not whom, that the island of Cuba is the only market open to the slave trade, and this assertion is absolutely false. For several years past the island of Cuba has landed on its coast. Who declares otherwise states what is untrue. Regarding the domestic institution of slavery, the government of the nation, with the applause of those most interested, and for the present and future welfare of those whose name the pseudo philanthropists invoke, has taken the wisest and justest course settling the matter without confusion, and in accordance with the interest of this province and the nation.

To return to Dr. Livingstone's undertaking, without lowering its merits or praising it too highly, we will say that if it is received with less scepticism and coldness than hitherto it may give results which should not be regarded with disdain by any one who entertains humanitarian sentiments. The African Continent, so near Europe—that depository of Christianism—which has carried out so many labors redundant of good in the name of religion, has in its bosom human beings submerged in the most abject barbarism, who practise cannibalism and are a stain upon civilization. Would not an undertaking to Christianize these people, extinguish in them the germs of barbarism which destroy them and soften their manners be a more worthy one than to discover the sources of a river?

The HERALD, the patron of this undertaking considered by many as useless, also finds motives of another kind which may interest European nations in the colonization and exploration of Equatorial Africa. Many articles of prime necessity grow in those regions—such as cotton, sugar cane, tobacco and all tropical fruits. To open these new markets for European productions in exchange for the native would be an enterprise worthy of the times we live in, even without counting the high humanitarian considerations to which we have already alluded.

THE INSURRECTION.

No new tidings of importance have been received within the past few days from the insurrectionary districts. The principal corps of the patriots, under the leadership of Generals Ignacio Agramonte, Vicente Garcia, Villamil and Magin Diaz, have concentrated and taken up their position on the mountain of Bainas, belonging to the ridge of Cubitas, situated about twenty one miles from Puerto Principe. Here, Spanish reports say, the insurgents strongly fortified their positions, but would abandon them as soon as the government troops advance in that direction. The colonel of the regiment La Reyna Avuso officially reports an engagement he had with the insurgents on the 28th ultimo, in which, according to his report, twenty seven insurgents were killed, his loss being one soldier killed and two officers and twelve soldiers wounded.

On the 1st instant a party of insurgents appeared in the neighborhood of El Cobre near Santiago de Cuba, and carried off a number of horses, provisions, &c. Brigadier Fajardo has taken possession of the Central Department as Commanding General and Governor of Puerto Principe.

No further reports of military operations have reached here from Las Tunas nor from Holguin. The late disastrous encounters already fully reported have been completely confirmed. There have been rumors current of severe engagements in the Central Department, but not any of these have been confirmed. The patriots appear to be resting on the results of laurels lately won.

It is believed here that not much can be done toward the suppression of the insurrection until towards the close of this year. Captain General Ceballos is making out a full and—as far as possible—an impartial report of the state of affairs in this island, without disfiguring facts, as his predecessors have done. Fresh troops are also required, and a demand for such is to be made on the mother country. As usual, reports and rumors of all kinds and shades are current, and it is difficult to break through the barrier of falsehoods and misrepresentations which the government throws around its operations and get at anything else but the uniform and stereotyped accounts which have been given these past four years by the journals of this city.

El Cronista, the ultra Spanish paper, published in New York, has lately found no favor with the authorities in Havana. The whole edition forwarded by last mail was confiscated by superior orders.

THE SUICIDE OF MRS. KENGER.

Coroner Schirmer yesterday morning held an inquest in the case of Mrs. Ida Kenger, the woman (late of 142 Essex street) who committed suicide by taking Paris green, a full report of which has heretofore been published in the HERALD. Mr. Kenger and three or four other witnesses were examined, and the facts elicited were the same in substance as heretofore made public.

John Medole, of No. 22, R. W. G. R.

GRAND MASTER'S REPORT.

The M. W. Grand Master then presented his annual report. All the forty-eight districts in the State were officially visited by the Grand Master, who travelled over sixteen thousand miles for the purpose of instructing the members in the secret work, but recommends the appointment of a competent Grand Instructor. The Grand Master looks with some degree of apprehension on the too rapid increase of lodges, many of which organize without considering the responsibility, and the report recommends that no charter be granted unless to a double number of applicants of whom at least one be a Past Grand. The manner of investing the lodge funds is also alluded to, and proper legislation is recommended.

After referring to some decision on points of law, the P. G. reported his action in reference to the relief of the Chicago sufferers.

The report feelingly alludes to the demise of P. G. M. Seger, P. G. M. Cochrane, P. G. M. Post, P. G. Randoll and P. G. Ashton, refers to the system of voting and recommends proper legislation.

The report was received and referred to a special committee composed of P. G. M. Gould, P. G.'s Rowe and Cowan.

NEW YORK CITY.

James Allman, of 12½ Washington street, was yesterday committed by Justice Dowling, at the Tombs, on a charge of having cut William O'Connor, of 14 Washington street, in the head with a razor.

In the Court of Special Sessions yesterday the presiding Justices disposed of a calendar containing seventy-two cases, all of which were for petty offences, involving nothing of more than routine business.

The body of an unknown man was yesterday washed ashore on the west side of Governor's Island and made fast by the military authorities, who immediately notified Coroner Schirmer. The remains, of which no description were given, were sent to the Morgue.

Coroner Schirmer was yesterday called to No. 2 Greene street to hold an inquest on the body of Thomas W. Baird, a youth of nineteen years, born in Kentucky and by trade a carriage maker, who died from fracture of the lower jaw and contusions of the head and neck, said to have been received about ten days ago by a fall.

The Comptroller has been paying, through his paymaster, Moor Falls, during the past two days, the Boulevard workmen along the line of their work the wages due them for two weeks ending August 10, to the amount of $43 000. Much satisfaction was expressed by the workmen at the promptness with which they were paid their wages, the Comptroller having audited and signed the rolls within a few hours of their reception in the Department of Finance.

THE PROCESSION LAW.

Meeting of Privates of the Eleventh Regiment.

At the call of Orderly Sergeant P. Mueller a number of privates of the Eleventh regiment held a meeting at the Walhall, in Orchard street, last evening, for the purpose of taking action in reference to the arrest of Captain Brandeis, of that regiment, for an alleged violation of the procession law one Sunday in June last. The meeting was called on the ground that the Board of Officers of the regiment, to whom the case had been submitted, had neglected to take action in the case to obtain satisfaction, as it is alleged that the arrest of Captain Brandeis was illegal. The meeting having been called to order, Orderly Sergeant Philip Mueller was called upon to preside. Several of the officers of the regiment were in attendance, among the number Lieutenant Charles Kunkel and Captain Focher, who counselled the privates assembled to await further developments, stating that the Board of Officers in due time will do their duty, and characterizing the proceeding as an insubordinate action in not awaiting the result of the action of the authorities. Another angry discussion ensued on a proposition that the privates should proceed in the matter on their own hook, without the aid of officers. Several of the privates argued that they, and not the officers, formed the regiment; while, on the part of the officers, it was argued that the privates were subject to the military laws of the United States and the orders of their officers, as the officers were subject to the laws and the orders of the generals in command. The result of a lengthy discussion was the appointment of a committee to take further action in the matter, and to report the result at the next meeting. The committee was composed of Messrs. Winter, of Company A; Becker, of Company C; Missaner, of Company F; Noll, of Company B, and Starch, of Company I.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The Argentine Confederation and Its Relations Toward Brazil.

Railroad Management and General Industrial Extension—Indian Raids on the Frontier—British Naval Guard Over English Interests—Trade at Rio and Emigrant Landings.

By mail at this port we have our files of South American papers, dated in Rio Janeiro the 24th of July and in Buenos Ayres the 29th of June. The journals supply the following interesting details of the latest news reports from the Empire and the States of the Confederation.

Argentine Confederation.

The River Plate Times of July 29 has the subjoined items, dated in Buenos Ayres:—

IN PRISON AND SUFFERING.

Matthew Beggs, an engine driver in the service of the Northern Railway, has been thrown into prison for the reason that he happened to be driving a train on the Northern line some four months ago, which in spite of all his endeavors to avert the accident, ran over and killed a drunken mulatto who was trespassing on the track. Beggs is held without trial or formal charge.

INDIAN RAIDS ON THE CONFEDERATE FRONTIER.

There has been an energetic demonstration in Congress against the conduct of the Ministry, more especially as to Colonel Gainza, the Minister of War, in respect to the frontier defence. Constant reports come in as to the depredations and atrocities committed almost daily along the whole frontier by the Indians, and Colonel Gainza was arraigned by the Chambers for his gross inefficiency.

CONFEDERATION RELATIONS TO BRAZIL.

Dr. Tejedor's note to the Brazilian Cabinet has given great offence in Rio Janeiro, and there can be not the slightest question but that the note will have to be withdrawn in as public a manner as it has been issued to the world. General Mitre has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of St. Christopher's, and it is hoped that he will be empowered to settle the difficulties between the two governments by the only course now left open to the Argentine Republic—viz., that of withdrawing the deliberate insult offered to Dom Pedro by a Minister generally acknowledged to be incompetent for the important post which he at present holds.

ARGENTINE RAILROADS EXTENSION.

One of the important events of the fortnight has been the inauguration of the section of the Great Southern Railway from the Salado as far as Carmen de las Flores. The entertainment was a complete success, and the large number of gentlemen connected with the engineering profession who attended on the occasion expressed themselves in the highest degree gratified with all they saw, and with the thoroughly solid and workmanlike manner in which the works had been completed.

BRITISH INTERESTS PROTECTION.

Her Britannic Majesty's ship Rocket, Captain A. R. Wright, has arrived in port at Buenos Ayres, from Montevideo, some people say to be in readiness to protect British interests in the event of the Brazilian complication resulting in war. "Knowing what we do (says the River Plate Times) of the protection British interests are in the habit of receiving here, and looking to the not altogether gigantic size of our protector, such a reason for her presence is, of course, out of the question."

THE THEATRES AND WEATHER.

The Buenos Ayres Times of June 29 refers to the above subject in the following words:—Our theatres, as usual, are in full swing, and generally there is an expectation among pleasure goers that the Winter season will not pass over without its share of amusement.

Speaking of the Winter season reminds us that we have passed through the "veranita de San Juan," and, after the usual pampero and rain, we are now fairly plunged into the cold weather, which, if possible, is more searching here than in the Old Country.

OPERA.

Everybody has been asking about the new opera, La Condessa di Amalfi, which is to be brought out to night (July 29) at the Colon Theatre. It will be good news—adds the journal above named—for those who like to know and follow the text of what is being performed to hear that Messrs. Adams & Co., the enterprising American advertising firm, have printed and published a libretto of the opera in question, which is extremely well got up, in clear, legible type.

THE TURF.

And again the Plate Times says:—We publish the entries for the races which are fixed to come off at Belgrano on the 9th of July.

Brazil.

THE BOUNDARY COMMISSION TO PARAGUAY.

TELEGRAPHIC EXTENSION.

By royal decree the Platino Brazileira Telegraphic Company has obtained authorization to operate in the Empire and approval of the statutes. The company is formed to carry out the Lamas telegraph concessions from the Argentine and Oriental governments, with power to contract with the Brazilian government for connecting the Argentine and Oriental lines with those of Brazil, and to purchase the Lamas concession for a telegraph cable between Rio Janeiro and Montevideo.

CATHOLICITY ON LONG ISLAND.

Corner Stone of the R. C. Church of St. Joseph, Hewlett Station.

The corner stone of a new Catholic church was laid with appropriate ceremonies at Hewlett Station, Long Island, in presence of a numerous assemblage, yesterday afternoon. The event marked an epoch in the advance of Catholicism on the island, which will long be remembered by those who had the good fortune to be present thereat. The weather, though warm, was auspicious, and many of the guests sojourning at the Pavilion, Woodsburg and Rockaway availed themselves of the opportunity presented to participate in the religious services of the occasion. The building, which is of the Gothic style, is a frame structure, with bell top, 36 by 80 feet in dimension, and is situated on a lot 60x100 feet, the ground being the donation of Mr. Daniel Longworth. The tout ensemble of the structure reflects immense credit on the young architect, Mr. Thomas F. Houghton. The entire expense may amount to $5,000. The one P. M. train took down many of the leading Catholics of Brooklyn. Shortly before four P. M. the ceremonies were commenced, Rev. Dr. Turner, V. G., officiating in the absence of the Right Rev. Bishop. The ceremonies commenced with the blessing of the water and the chanting of the Litany of the Saints in the Latin tongue. Then came the blessing of the stone and of the entire new edifice, around which the procession wended in very pleasing array, headed by two torch bearers and a crucifix. Among the clergymen who participated were Rev. T. J. Landry, President St. John's College, Brooklyn, Rev. John Kiely, of the Cathedral, Jay street, Brooklyn; Rev. Joseph Bruneman, Rockaway; Revs. Kavanagh, Vice President, Suspension Bridge, Niagara; Carroll, East New York, Hauber, Foster's Meadows. The entire proceedings were enlivened by the presence of the zealous and faithful pastor of the new church of St. Joseph, Rev. Arthur J. Dorris. The ceremonies over, the Very Reverend Father Turner addressed the multitude in most appropriate terms. He congratulated them on the happy issue of the day. Expressing his hopes that substantial aid would be accorded the worthy pastor in his endeavor to pay the debt of his new church, the reverend gentleman closed his happy discourse.

BEATEN BY HER SON.

The Ante-Mortem Statement to be Obtained.

Captain Charles W. Coffey, of the Twentieth precinct, yesterday afternoon informed Coroner Keenan that Mrs. Margaret Dykes, who, on the 14th inst., was terribly beaten with a club in the hands of her son, Joseph Dykes, at their residence, 442 West Twenty eighth street, was lying in Bellevue Hospital in a very critical condition. In his opinion it is highly important that the ante mortem statement of Mrs. Dykes should be taken at the earliest possible moment, as she cannot live. The assailant was arrested at the time and is in prison awaiting the death or recovery of his mother. Such official action as may be necessary will be taken.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Assault Upon a Sea Captain.

Before Commissioner Osborn.

Yesterday, upon an application made by the Italian Consul, Commissioner Osborn issued a warrant for the apprehension of one Vincenzo Lopez, a sailor employed on the Italian bark Providenzo, who is accused of having committed an assault upon Michael Dodero, the captain, while on the high seas. Lopez has been arrested and sent to jail to await the sailing of the vessel.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Alleged Illegal Commitment.

Before Judge Barrett.

In the case of Jeremiah Savage, committed to the schoolship Mercury by Justice Scott for petit larceny, Judge Barrett granted a writ of habeas corpus, returnable yesterday, for his discharge, on the ground of illegal commitment. When the case was called the Commissioners simply produced the prisoner and the naked commitment, but no formal return to the writ. Judge Barrett held that this was no return at all, and granted an order to show cause returnable next Monday, why the Commissioners should not be attached for contempt.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

General Tweed's Biography Contract.

Before Judge Sedgwick.

Frederick H. Greer vs. William M. Tweed, Jr.—In this matter, in which there is a sort of trinity, three cases having grown out of one contract to furnish a biographical sketch and accept some five or six copies of the work on the part of defendant, a motion was made to open the third judgment obtained in the case, amounting to $6,570 95. It will be remembered, as published in the HERALD already, that two suits had been in progress, the one to recover $300 for the number of books engaged to be taken and the second for $27,000, which included not only the volumes to be taken, but also penalties, amounting to $105 a day for every day's delay in furnishing the biography. This second judgment was vacated by Judge Robinson in an opinion whose terms were not over complimentary to the fairness of the contract on which it was based. The present judgment differed from that entered in the second suit in so far that, instead of claiming the whole penalty, damages were assessed by a referee. Defendant claims that in this, as in the $27,000 suit, no proper service of process had been made, and that the judgment had been entered surreptitiously.

An adjournment was asked on the part of plaintiff to prepare counter affidavits as to regularity of service of process, and, after some discussion on that subject, the Court adjourned the hearing until Tuesday next, the execution on the judgment being stayed in the meantime.

Decisions.

Henry J. Smith vs. James G. Tighe et al.—Motion denied, with costs.

JEFFERSON MARKET POLICE COURT.

A Large Return—The Stolen Clocks—A Burglar Found in a Saloon—Embezzlement by a Clerk—The Light-Fingered Gentry—An Old Man Robs His Employer—Passing Bogus Checks—Robbery on a Steamer.

THE STOLEN GOODS—AN OWNER FOUND.

Yesterday morning Captain McCullough, of the Eighth precinct, placed "bracelets" on the wrists of two young men named Coffey and James Lawrence, and escorted them to the Court, when they were committed without bail to answer a charge of burglary. The prisoners, it will be remembered, were arrested in Greene street, Monday night, upon information given by Madame Laura, having in their possession a trunk containing two valuable clocks and several pieces of bronze ornaments, the facts of which have already appeared in the HERALD. Mr. Solomon Lobe, of 37 East Thirty-eighth street, upon reading the HERALD yesterday morning, saw a description of the goods captured by Captain McCullough, and, surmising they were a portion of the proceeds of a burglary committed on his place of business Friday night last, visited the station and identified the property as belonging to himself. A charge of burglary, charging them with forcing open the coalhole and stealing the property, was preferred against them. They denied the charge, and still claim that some person unknown to them had employed them to carry the goods to Greene street. The prisoners are the same persons arrested by Captain Byrne, of the Fifteenth precinct, a short time since in Wooster street, having in their possession about $1,500 worth of silk dresses and ladies' wearing apparel which were supposed to have been stolen. As no owner could be found for the goods, and no proof being produced that they had stolen them, they were discharged by Justice Cox.

A BURGLAR CAPTURED IN A SALOON.

A few minutes after four o'clock yesterday morning as Officer Stanton, of the Twentieth precinct, was patrolling Eighth avenue, he discovered some person in the liquor saloon of John Jackson, at 350. Rapping for assistance, he was soon joined by another officer, when the two "surrounded" the place and ordered the young man, who had made his entrance by forcing open the fanlight over the front door, to deliver himself up. He finally delivered himself up and was found to be dressed up in Mr. Jackson's coat, which he had taken from a hook in the store and hung his old one in the place of it. On his person were found several cigars and other articles which were identified by Jackson as his property. Upon being escorted to the station house in Thirty-seventh street he gave his name as Hugh Taffe, sixteen years of age, residing at 154 West Eighteenth street, and claimed to be employed in a kindling-wood factory. A complaint of burglary being preferred against him, he was committed without bail to answer.

EMBEZZLEMENT BY A CLERK.

Officer Gallagher of the Ninth precinct, presented Matthew Shine, of No. 630 West Forty sixth street, whom he had arrested Monday evening on complaint of his employer, Abraham Vanderbilt, of 406 West Forty-sixth street, charged with embezzling $12 in money from him. The accused admitted the charge, but his employer refusing to prefer a complaint against him, he was discharged.

CHARGED WITH STEALING A DIAMOND PIN.

John Carman of 39 Prospect street, Brooklyn, on Monday night caused the arrest of Thomas Horam, of No. 6 West street, by Officer Dunlap, of the Ninth precinct, charged with stealing a diamond pin from him, valued at $200. The complainant states that he had the pin on the inside of his vest while riding on a Bleecker street car on Monday evening. He detected the prisoner placing his hand on his breast, and immediately feeling for his pin found it was gone. Horam denied the charge yesterday morning, and stated he was twenty-two years of age and an inspector by occupation. He was committed, without bail, to appear for trial.

CHARGED WITH ROBBING HIS ROOMMATE.

John Minster, residing at 106 Grand street, Monday night visited the Eighth precinct station house and represented to Captain McCullough that his roommate, William Galle, had broken open his trunk during his absence and stolen $65. Officer Keating arrested Galle and arraigned him yesterday morning. He denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

THE DANGERS OF WALKING ON THE BOWERY.

Charles Metcalf, of 40 West Houston street, on Monday night became somewhat jubilant over several drinks of election whiskey and concluded to take a promenade on the Bowery. In order to present a respectable appearance he ornamented himself with a watch chain, to the end of which was attached a bunch of keys. As he was strolling along looking in the shop windows James Lynch, one of the Bowery ornaments, noticing his condition, and always ready to earn an honest dollar, took his stand alongside of Metcalf and, placing his hand on his watch chain, soon had the bunch of keys in his hand. He was so much disgusted at his ill luck that he dropped the keys and was quietly walking away, when Detectives Tully and Dilks who had noticed his movements, stepped up and escorted him to the Central Office. Both prisoner and complainant were locked up until yesterday morning, when a complaint of larceny from the person was preferred against Lynch. He denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

AN OLD MAN ADMITS ROBBING HIS EMPLOYER.

ROBBED ON A STEAMER.

Charles Hillman, a colored waiter employed on the steamer Rising Star, running from Aspinwall to this city, was presented by Officer Kennedy of the Twenty sixth precinct, charged with robbing several passengers on the last trip to this city. Nicolas Jimeno Collante was the only complainant who appeared against him and charged him with entering his stateroom and stealing $50 in gold. Another passenger, named W. P. Mitchell, also was robbed of $8 in gold during the passage, and is of the opinion that Hillman took it, but owing to the small amount, refused to appear against him. The prisoner denied the charge, but was fully committed for trial.

PASSING BOGUS CHECKS.

On the 13th inst. William Rudolph of 243 Thompson street, charges that James L. Pretto visited his store and purchased a pair of gaiters for $6 50. He offered in payment a check for $25 on the Eighth National Bank, No. 650 Broadway, drawn payable to his own order and signed A. Wolf & Co., which he represented as good and that it would be honored upon presentation at the bank. Believing his statements to be true Rudolph accepted the check and paid Pretto the balance. He claims the check to be worthless, as he says there is no such house in this city. The prisoner denied the charge, but was committed in default of $500 bail to appear for trial at the Special Sessions.

A BRUTAL MURDER.

Terrible Results of Rum-Drinking in Westchester County.

Hewing a Man to Death with an Axe—A New Mode of Treating Dissatisfied Boarders—Attempted Double Murder—Fiendish Features of the Crime and Escape of the Perpetrator.

A large number of deeply interested citizens assembled in the Town Hall, at New Rochelle, Westchester county, on Monday evening, to witness the proceedings of an adjourned inquest, held by Coroner Meeks, touching the brutal murder of a laborer named Mathew Curran near that village at an early hour on Sunday morning. The jury selected on the occasion was, in the matter of intelligence, an exceptional one, Justice William R. Humphrey acting as foreman.

From the most authentic sources it has been ascertained that the taking off of Curran cannot but be regarded in the light of an inhuman butchery. Deceased, it appears, was a railroad laborer, about fifty years old, and owing to an injury received some time ago was so lame that he was compelled to walk with a stick. He, together with some fifteen others, boarded with a man named John Cody, who kept a place in the lower portion of the village and on the Pelhamville road. All of the parties worked on the railroad now in course of construction between the Harlem River and Westchester. The men having been paid on the 10th instant, as was their custom, drank heavily, keeping up the spree without intermission until the tragedy occurred.

THE CAROUSE,

it is said, was participated in by Cody and his wife, causing the latter to so neglect her household duties that the boarders were unable to procure their regular meals. Among those who became dissatisfied with the existing state of affairs were the deceased and a man named Michael Foley, both of whom left Cody's boarding house last Friday and took up their abode with a party named Barton, who keeps a place of entertainment in the immediate neighborhood. Arriving at the latter place deceased and Foley resumed their spree, drinking deeply until Saturday night, when, between ten and eleven o'clock, the intoxicated pair strolled out, as was supposed, to make the rounds of the

in the neighborhood. Next morning the deceased was found opposite a drinking place kept by one Gaffney, covered with blood and in a dying condition, having received several cuts on the head, one of which in the anterior portion of the skull, was a frightful gash, through which the brain was oozing. The unfortunate man was allowed to remain by the roadside until he died, about seven o'clock on Sunday morning. Foley, it appears, had also been attacked during the night and after being brutally beaten on the head with a stone or some other blunt instrument, wandered about in a semi unconscious state until morning, when, on examination, it was found that, in addition to a number of severe scalp wounds, he had also sustained

A FRACTURE OF THE SKULL.

The testimony given by Foley, before he was sent for surgical treatment to the County Poorhouse, goes to show that Cody either followed or accidentally met the deceased and himself on Friday night and while inflamed with liquor and enraged because they had left his boarding house, first attacked Foley with a rock, beating him as above described, and then deliberately went to his house (which was not far from the spot where the murder was committed) and returning with an axe dealt the deceased several

MURDEROUS BLOWS ON THE HEAD.

The work of death was plainly observed by Foley, who had crawled into a place of concealment after having his head pounded almost to a jelly by the infuriated Cody. The injured man also testified that Cody returned to the spot where his victim lay groaning in about an hour after he had buried the axe in his skull, and finding him still alive said, soliloquizingly, "Mat Curran, you son of a b—h, ain't you dead yet?" and raising brought it down with fiendish violence on the defenceless head of his expiring victim. The statement of Foley was corroborated in many material points by witnesses who were called to testify at the inquest, which resulted in a verdict being rendered that deceased came to his death through injuries received by an axe in the hands of Cody. The murderer disappeared on hearing of Curran's death, and up to last evening had not been arrested, although Detective George P. Govens, of New Rochelle, aided by New York detectives, were believed to be on his track.

In connection with the escape of the murderer, considerable dissatisfaction exists among the citizens of New Rochelle with the action of Justice Porter in the premises. It seems that Cody, having heard of the probable death of his victim, at about six o'clock on Sunday morning hastened to the house of Justice Porter and told that official that he had had a quarrel with two men, whom he feared would die, and that he wished to surrender himself. The Justice is said to have replied that he did not do business on Sunday and told Cody to report himself to the village constable and he would attend to the matter next day.

The murdered man was buried by the town authorities after a post-mortem examination had been held on the body. Foley, who is the principal witness against the murderer, is believed to be in a fair way to recover.

DEATH OF A NEWARK ALDERMAN.

Alderman Ira Budd of Newark, whose frightful fall from a carriage in that city last Sunday evening was reported in Monday's HERALD, died yesterday morning, between four and five o'clock, at his home in Lafayette street. Up to Monday evening hopes were indulged that the injured man might be saved, but when about to perform the surgical operation known as trepanning, the doctors discovered that the fracture of the skull extended over six inches and that the brain was covered with blood. It was then agreed that there was no hope for him. He died in the midst of his friends without showing a sign of consciousness from the time of the accident. He was a native of Harrison township, in his forty seventh year, had lived in Newark twenty years, and was worth probably $50,000. In politics he was a republican, but of a disposition so genial that he was twice elected in a democratic ward. Yesterday afternoon a special meeting of the Common Council was held to take official notice of Mr. Budd's death. After a brief speech by the President a series of resolutions were adopted eulogistic of the deceased and regretting his sudden and awful taking off. The Council Chamber was draped in mourning, as also the front of the City Hall. It is not likely that any special election will be held to fill the vacancy made by his death, as the city charter provides as follows:—"In case any such vacancy shall occur within three months before the first Tuesday in October in any year, it shall be within the discretion of the Common Council to appoint a special election or not as they shall deem expedient." The funeral takes place on Friday.

THE CAMPAIGN.

How the Political Straws Blow in California.

GREELEY TACTICIANS IN VERMONT.

Sentiments Prevailing on the Shores of Lake Erie.

Samuel J. Tilden's Ambition Carrying Him Toward the White House.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, August 19, 1872.

Starting West to see how the Fall campaign might be going in the States of which Chicago is the chief city, I first met Edgar Mills, brother of

D. O. MILLS, THE PRESIDENT OF THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA.

He was on his way to the Pacific coast to take position at the head of his great branch bank in Sacramento.

"How does Mr. Greeley stand on your coast, Mr. Mills?"

"He can't carry there, in my judgment. I am surprised to see what headway the thing has got in the East. We don't think everything of Grant, but Greeley can make very little impression on him. The coast is republican; the party is well gathered up with us, the newspaper press holds by the regular ticket; and the democrats will not poll their full vote. What we call the "Mick" element—the Irish—will support Greeley, but the "chiv" (rebel chivalry) element, which is strong and stubborn, takes an askant look at the platform of their recantation. Very wealthy democrats in parts of our country have come gradually to be identified with commercial enterprises which are dependent upon federal stability, and therefore you will meet old Mississippians, Tennesseeans, Georgians and Texans, long residents among us, who are building railroads, flumes, canals, anchorages, &c., and will support Grant on business grounds though they don't much like him."

"How does Ralston, the cashier of the bank and ruling influence on the coast, as some say, stand on this issue?"

"Ralston is not a very ardent Grant man, but he will not do anything for Greeley."

"It may be," said Mr. Mills, "that this Greeley tide will rise our way, but when I left home it was hardly ebb and flow. I must confess that the fervor for Greeley in the East is more general and decided than I supposed."

VERMONT TENDENCIES.

Meeting Mr. Daniel Roberts and some Vermonters from the city of Burlington they attested as follows:—

Mr. Roberts, an abolitionist formerly, a republican still and a lawyer of clear head and reasoning force, said:—"We have nominated in Vermont a fusion State ticket, which, we expect, will draw 5,000 votes from the regular ticket, making a change of 10,000 and reducing the republican majority to say 15,000. This change will be all, under the circumstances, desired at the State election. As the other States declare in their State elections for Greeley, we shall expect to keep up the fire here and reduce the republican vote to an equal thing or less by November. We had a harmonious State Convention at Burlington, where Kilpatrick made the popular speech, but James S. Thayer, of New York, made the reasoning speech. We want this State to be canvassed by men like Mr. Thayer. Vermont is almost immemorially anti-democratic; but Greeley's Tribune is the farmer's campaign document. He has got it for a year and must read it to save his money."

Mr. George H. Bigelow, a public man and editor, also of Burlington, Vt., who supports Grant, gave still a fair view of the situation as follows:—"There is some defection here, but in the city of Burlington I believe that only fifty-six voters are claimed by the Greeley republicans and of these only about a dozen have shown their hands. It is not assumed that there will not be a large falling off in the regular democratic vote, and there will also be some republicans who will vote neither for Grant nor Greeley. Adams would have been a more winning nomination for these parts by the republican bolters. The ablest democrat in this State, and in point of tone and bearing, the foremost leader in the State, some think, of either party, is Edward Phelps, a lawyer, of Burlington. He was a Fillmore and Bell man formerly. His wife says of him—he is now absent in Europe—that he will not support Mr. Greeley. The fusion State ticket has no ghost of a chance, though it has a couple of good names on it. Vermont is for Grant by the same relative majority as formerly. The party is too strong to go down with horn blowing, like Jericho. When it gets as weak as Jericho appears to have been Greeley may unfix a battlement or two that way."

THE REBEL ARCHIVE DEALER.

At the Clifton House, on the Canada side of the Niagara Falls—that spot of ground by the gorge of the deep river which has just leaped the cataract and been borne again into a sort of purgatorial life—a man was pointed out to me with a youngish and yet wrinkled look, torid hair and beard, near sighted eyes and glasses, and a professional soldierly air, stern and secretive, and on the whole not prepossessing, as Pickett, the ex-rebel officer who had just precipitated the country back into ugly memories and opened the bloody chasm by trading in Confederate documents to the high figure of $75,000.

"That money," said one indignant bystander, being told that Mr. or "Colonel" Pickett was the recipient of it, "was paid by the United States on the same principle that a husband might pay it to be assured that his wife had been formerly a leman. It was no ground for divorce, but merely acquired to promote household strife." The portrait, the trade and the result seemed to be properly suited to the spot—the Smugglers' Border—the worst place in many respects in North America by association. Nature's sublimest and most awful energies mingling along that little Niagara line with all the forms of human error and vice—war, men over the Falls, international counterfeiting, baggage smashing, Sot Davis, imposition upon travellers, banishment, Fenian invasions, Canadian revolt spies, custom-house abuses and the sale of smallpox clothes and documents.

"Interview any of these people," said I to myself; "interview Jake Thompson, or Sanders, or the ghost of Morgan, the murdered Mason, or Pickett? No! It would be the propagation of social, moral and national epidemic, after the Dr. Blackburn fashion. I would rather deal in the old clothes of Judas than with any of these dealers in the rags of dead treasons."

THE GREELEY DEPRESSION ON THE ERIE LINE.

It is not to be doubted that the Greeley men in Western New York are despondent. They claim that all the elements, numbers, arguments and influences are vastly in their favor, and that they ought to realize the 100,000 majority prophesied at Baltimore by Governor Hoffman, and yet they are depressed about the city of New York. "There," said the Hon. Joseph Warren, "we have everything but a commander. The fifty thousand majority we ought to be assured of is likely to be frittered away by the incompetency of the new directory of the democratic forces to solidify unwilling masses and control them in the face of the disintegrating labors of O'Brien and Murphy. I mean that when Tammany Hall was made respectable in names its organization was not kept up and its machinery—the same machinery which O'Brien and Murphy have added to the Custom House party, that which puts voters in discipline and brings them out to vote—was abandoned."

NEW YORK CITY WAVERING.

This opinion prevailed from Albany to Buffalo:—That the new Tammany Hall is deficient in men of political marshalship. Another democrat said that it was the simplest thing in the world to give vitality and direction to the great Greeley majority of New York, and that was to reinstate some one capable generalissimo at the head of the Tammany Commandery—none of the old trio, but one acquainted with their method of organization, as O'Brien, in an inferior degree, got to be when he put the said system into the hands of the republicans.

"By this means," said a veteran politician, "we merely give a commandery and battalion discipline to a host of simple men who do not act unless feeling themselves part of the general responsibility." A subject of general complaint and apprehension among the democrats and liberals is the mysterious course of the

HON. SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

This fox of politics is moving midway between Schell and Hoffman, Church and Beach, the Custom House and Apollo Hall, Tammany Hall and the Committee of Seventy, toward his own exalted object of pursuit—the Presidency of the United States. He comes nearest Martin Van Buren of any of the notable men of New York in the mystery of his movements, the shortness of his parallel approaches and the infinite distance of his designs. He wants Hoffman thrown overboard with Barnard, Schell with Greeley, and with one hand on the Committee of Seventy and the other on Jimmy O'Brien's shoulder, he hopes to fly by the aid of a kite, composed of equal parts of

New York journals, republican and democratic—where? Some say to Albany as the regular democratic candidate, endorsed by the Republican Regular Convention, thus leaving the Greeley liberals out in the cold and sweeping New York city by the aid of Jimmy O'Brien's forces with warrants held over the heads of Sweeny and Tweed, and insinuations thrown out on Hoffman, to paralyze all of them. Here would, indeed, be a Machiavellian pickle. It is worthy of Matty Van Buren and the cabbage-garden campaigns planned at Kinderhook.

The first point Tilden desires to make, according to sagacious estimate, is the removal of Judge Barnard, and this will have been accomplished if his persistent presence and urging at Saratoga and his active work in the New York Assembly to achieve it have availed. Barnard removed, a judge will be obtained to refuse relief to Tweed & Company when they are committed to jail; and there they will go or remain at large as fugitives, unable in any event to guide the campaign. Or, possibly, these masters of the machinery might be placed at liberty by condignly reviving and moving their cogs and wheels in the interests of a truly great reformer and old regency democrat—nothing less than the Hon. Samuel J. Tilden. Here would be a pother worthy of Sixtus V.—Tammany made to grind, like Samson, in the mills of the Philistines, to elect S. J. Tilden Governor of the State and make him the reviver of the regency at Albany, surrounded by Henry Richmond, like another Percy, and with the Presidency dead in the wind for 1876.

There are men like Judge Verplanck and others who say that will sweep New York like a breeze, and that nobody's machinery can beat him there. "Look," they say, "at Greeley running against Sam Cox, and running him down so that Tammany had to 'count' Cox in." This, manifestly, is the hope of the Greeley thinkers:—That the wholesome impulses of the people will carry Chappaqua along, and even over the head of Conkling and Murphy's line of battle and Mr. Tilden's "shenannigan." In Erie county the German vote is nearly a unit for Greeley, and it may be said that nearly everywhere Schurz's example has carried this great element over to Greeley.

Senator Fenton is at work day and night, writing letters to everybody, and keeping up his reputation as the "best organizer New York ever had."

THE POLITICAL HEADQUARTERS.

The Liberal Republicans.

Colonel Johnson was present during the day at the Glenham Hotel Headquarters; but business was very dull. Only a few visitors dropped in, the most distinguished among them being the following:—Senator Casserly, of California; Senator West, of Louisiana, and W. U. Saunders, the colored orator. Senator Casserly states that he will start for California on Saturday, to take an active part in the campaign. David Clark, of Hartford, Conn., writes:—

To show you that we have gentlemen of the highest character with us, who have been republicans from the formation of the party, I give you the following names of some of them:—Charles J. McCurdy, Lyme, ex-Judge of the Supreme Court and ex-Minister to Austria; Mr. L. F. Foster, Norwich, Judge of the Supreme Court, ex-United States Senator and ex-Vice President of the United States; Mr. David A. Wells, Norwich; General William G. Ely, Norwich; General Joseph E. Perkins, State Senator; General Dwight Morris, late Consul at Havre; General William H. Noble, Bridgeport; Mr. Thomas S. Greeman, Mystic Bridge, the largest shipbuilder in the State, and who helped to give birth to the Republican party in 1855; Mr. T. M. Allyn, Hartford, ex-Mayor, a gentleman of great wealth and influence; Mr. Thomas Belknap, a prominent and influential gentleman of this city; Mr. J. H. Brownley, late of the Evening Post; Mr. Thomas M. Clark, West Winsted, late of the Winsted Herald; Mr. Whiting Hyde, and his son James, Willimantic, among the largest manufacturers in Eastern Connecticut; William H. Chollar, West Killingly, a prominent and influential republican; Mr. Albert Austin, Suffield, ex-State Senator and Railroad Commissioner; Mr. H. L. Reed, Danbury, and Hon. Lemuel Clift, Mystic River, member of the present Legislature, and other gentlemen of prominence; Mr. Hugh Harbison, one of the principal managers of Colt's Firearms Company, and 5,500 other republicans who have heretofore voted the republican ticket, but now ardent supporters of Greeley and Brown. I am happy to say that new recruits are flocking to our standard daily.

General Brinkerhoff writes as follows from Cincinnati:—

I have been here since Thursday night, and I think that we have got rid of pretty much all the underbrush in this neck of woods; and consequently, that being the case, rely upon carrying the First, Second and Third districts. We may lose the short term in the First district. I cannot stop for details, but you may set down Hamilton City as dead sure for Greeley and Brown for 5,000 majority.

Mr. H. A. Tenney writes from Madison, Mo., that at least twenty per cent of the native republican vote will go for Greeley.

The Democratic Headquarters.

Augustus Schell and Colonel Banks were both in attendance at the Spingler House yesterday, but there was really very little of any importance to do. Letters from Maine of a most sanguine character were received, and also from Ohio. Among the visitors were Senator Fenton, General Slocum, J. S. Thayer and Colonel Grover, of Ohio.

The Republican Headquarters.

Mr. William E. Chandler was on duty at the Fifth Avenue Headquarters yesterday. Among the visitors closeted with him for some time were General Hartranft, of Pennsylvania, the republican candidate for Governor, who expresses himself as fully confident of his election, and Sergeant-at-Arms Ordway. There was no business of importance transacted during the day.

MR. GREELEY'S MOVEMENTS.

Mr. Greeley was not at the Lincoln Club or any of the political headquarters yesterday, persisting in his close seclusion and much needed rest. A number of gentlemen inquired for him at the Lincoln Club and at the Liberal Headquarters during the day, but they could not be informed even of the place of his whereabouts.

THE COMING DEMONSTRATION.

The Executive Committee of liberals and democrats, Algernon S. Sullivan, Chairman, having in charge the arrangements for the great liberal and democratic demonstration in honor of Greeley and Brown, is in session every day at Tammany Hall, discussing measures relative to that end. It is proposed to make it the biggest affair of the kind ever seen in this city, and the committee is bothered mainly over the selection of a place large enough to hold it in. The best and most prominent speakers of both parties will participate.

WAGERS UPON THE ELECTION.

A prominent sporting man of this city, having offered to bet $10,000 that Horace Greeley will be the next President of the United States, a response accepting the wager in a similar amount was forwarded last night for acceptance and ratification. The parties who have taken up the bet belong to Wall street, and have formed a combination or pool to divide the profits or loss of the venture. In case the sporting man referred to backs out they will renew their bet (against Horace Greeley's election to the Presidency) and leave it open for general acceptance, the amount wagered, if takers turn up, to be deposited in a trust company.

POLITICAL CAMPAIGN NOTES.

There is a printers' Greeley club in San Francisco. It was organized on Sunday, the 11th instant.

Ex-President Johnson is in favor of electing the President and United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.

A thorough canvass of the German voters of the city of Springfield, Ill., reveals the fact that 751 are for Greeley, 4 for Grant and 14 doubtful.

The Chicago Tribune publishes a list of thirty-seven generals who were engaged in suppressing the rebellion that have come out for Greeley.

Among the republican stump speakers for Maine are John A. Bingham, whom Ben Butler says is a murderer, and Butler whom Bingham says is a thief.

The colored people of St. Louis will not permit one of their race to wear a white hat. If a negro is caught with one on he is in danger of having both hat and head smashed.

The Philadelphia Press thinks the Louisville Democratic Straight-out Convention will be a failure, from the fact that it will not be recognized by any prominent men of the democratic party.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says that General Grant will make no speeches during this campaign. As it was not generally expected that he would, the disappointment will not be very great.

The Newark (N. J.) Journal is not afraid to trust Mr. Greeley to make as many speeches or write as many letters as he chooses. It says:—"Let him go on speaking and writing; the more he does of each the better we shall like it, for day by day will the contrast grow stronger between the man who can do these things and the man who cannot."

The Memphis (Tenn.) Avalanche, which has in time past contributed its full share to the abuse of Horace Greeley, now says:—"There are few persons who will call in question Horace Greeley's veracity. His positive statements on all subjects are universally accepted as truthful, because the records of a long and busy public life have never traced an untruth to his door."

ADVANCE IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

WALL STREET, TUESDAY, August 20—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat and flour were lower and unsettled in sympathy with the tenor of the Chicago market, but the decline brought in buyers and led to active dealings, chiefly for export. Cotton was quiet and unchanged.

MONEY ACTIVE—3 TO 6 PER CENT.

The money market became active late in the afternoon, and the closing dealings were at 6 per cent, with the closing quotation 5 a 6 per cent on call. The first business and the early renewals were at 3 per cent, but the inquiry grew active after two o'clock on a legitimate demand, and the rate advanced to 4 per cent. This fact was taken advantage of by the bear clique in the stock market, who added an artificial element to the inquiry and ran the quotation up as stated. The advices from Chicago of the immense shipments to that city of grain from the interior are the chief cause of the legitimate element of the better demand for money, but the extent of the present necessities can hardly be enough to warrant any large advance just now in the rate on call. Meantime a rather firmer feeling is perceptible in discounts, and prime paper is hardly negotiable at less than 7 per cent.

ADVANCE IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

The decline in gold and the prospective easier access to cash gold during the rest of the season led to a further hardening of the foreign exchanges, as indicated in a raising of the rates for sterling to 109½ for sixty-day and 109¾ for sight bills by the leading foreign bankers. The market is far from being firm at these figures and is only nominally quoted so, buyers obtaining readily a concession of ⅛ a ¼ per cent for any moderate amount. With the great

DECLINE IN WHEAT

we look to see a fresh and extensive supply of commercial bills drawn against exports, the appearance of which is just now delayed because of the unsettled state of the gold market. Indeed, three several reasons are now claimed to have entered into the calculations on which the "bulls" based their recent retreat from the speculation for a rise in gold. These are, in brief, the culmination of the Chicago "corner" in wheat, the verdict at Saratoga and the later more encouraging prospects of a re-election of the present administration at Washington. We give the last reason, not from any of our own, but simply as an influence which entered into the causes operating to effect the decline in gold. It should be remembered that the gold clique have not vanished from existence. They are only broken up and reduced to smaller proportions. The bigger and wealthier members have withdrawn, but a nucleus is left around which a devoted partisanship is still warmly fighting.

THE EXPORTS OF THE WEEK.

The aggregate exports of domestic merchandise from the port of New York to foreign ports for the week ending August 20, 1872, was $3,906,951.

A DECLINE AND RALLY IN GOLD.

The gold market opened weak under a heavy pressure of "short" sales, and declined to 113⅞. True to the phase of human nature, which has so often recorded the folly of buying when prices are high and selling when they are low, the host of speculators who were willing to buy gold at 115⅛ rushed eagerly to sell "short" at 114. Visions of a rapid fall to 112 or perhaps 110 floated before the excited imagination of these enthusiasts, and, in their haste to secure a fortune on the downward turn, they oversold the market, causing a reaction like the return of an India rubber ball, and lifting the price back to 114¼. The oversales of Monday are reflected in the extraordinary clearances of over $140,000,000 and in the payment of a consideration of 1-64 a 1-32 for the use of gold in making deliveries this afternoon. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	114⅛	12 M.	114
11 A. M.	114	1 P. M.	114⅛
11:11 A. M.	113⅞	3 P. M.	114⅛
11:14 A. M.	113⅞	4 P. M.	114⅛ a 114¼

In the gold loan market the rates ranged from 3 per cent for carrying to 1-32 for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$142,974,000
Gold balances	3,063,551
Currency balances	3,751,997

The Sub-Treasury paid out $30,000 on account of interest and $1,000 on account of redeemed five-twenties.

GOVERNMENTS HEAVY.

Government bonds continued heavy with the decline in gold, currency prices showing a yielding of ⅛ a ¼ per cent from last night's quotations. There was a corresponding improvement, however, in gold values, and the London price of 62's this evening is ⅛ per cent higher than last night. The following are the closing quotations:—

STOCKS HEAVY AND LOWER.

The early decline in gold had the effect of imparting a steady and moderately firm tone to the stock market, particularly as the situation of the gold pool regarding Pacific Mail turned attention to that stock and induced a good deal of buying of it, advancing the price to 74¼. But the rally in gold by the remnant of the clique, helped, as they were, by the oversold condition of the market and the flurry in money as narrated above, induced heaviness and eventually weakness, the market falling off pretty nearly a half per cent all around. In the case of Wabash there was a sudden drop from 75⅛ to 73, with not a single sale between 74⅛ and 73. The explanation of this last incident lies in a "stop" order to sell at 74. The stock having been offered at that price after sales at 74⅛ the broker accepted the next best bid, which happened to be 73, thus fulfilling his instructions literally, although the price recovered to 73⅞. The decline in Wabash was due to sales of the stock by parties who had been holding it on "puts," which expired recently. The closing quotations were generally the lowest of the day.

NEW CROP RICE.

The steamship Manhattan, which arrived in this city last evening, brought the first of the new crop Carolina rice. The parcel (six casks) was shipped by Daniel Talmage's Sons, of Charleston, and is consigned to their house in this city, 110 Water street (where a sample cask is on exhibition). It was grown on the Pon Pon River by a successful colored planter. There is a considerable rivalry between many of the planters to get the first of the new into market, and to gain time the grain on the outskirts of the field is cut often before the grain has thoroughly matured. This fact accounts for the generally broken condition of the early receipts. The present parcel, however, seems to be an exception, it being quite whole, very white and pearly in appearance, and, altogether, much handsomer than usual for the period. In regard to the crop of the present year we have no further data than already laid before our readers. The crop having, it is hoped, safely passed through danger apprehended from salts and caterpillars, bids fair to equal that of year before last. Messrs. Daniel Talmage also show as samples of the Louisiana new crop, an invoice of which comes consigned to them from New Orleans by the steamship St. Louis. The quality is good, but considerably broken.

THE TIDAL WAVE AND MADGIE

A Close Race for the Challenge Cup Won by the Former.

NEWPORT R. I August 20 1872.

The harbor this morning was crowded with yachts the finest of the pleasure fleet sailing under the Stars and Stripes. At ten A. M a meeting of the captains of the New York Yacht Club fleet was held on board the flagship Dauntless in order to consider the programme for the remainder of the cruise It was finally arranged to sail the race for the

to-morrow The course will be from an imaginary line between Brenton's Reef lightship and the buoy to the Sow and Pigs leaving the lightship on the starboard hand and return to starting point. The race is open to yachts of all yacht clubs, and consequently there will be a large entry There will be no time allowance in the race to-morrow the first boat in winning the prize Nearly all the schooners will start excepting some of the smaller ones, and in the sloop race the Meta and Coming will probably put in an appearance The schooner yacht Tidal Wave left to day for Martha's Vineyard, after which she will steer direct for Cape May

THE RACE TO DAY

was between the schooners Madgie and Tidal Wave for the challenge cup won last year by the former when she beat the Sappho by fifty seven seconds The race to day was hardly a satisfactory test between the two yachts as the wind did not hold steady throughout The Tidal Wave turned the buoy twenty nine minutes ahead of the Madgie, but the latter beat the Tidal Wave nearly twenty five minutes coming home in a fresh breeze close hauled The Tidal Wave however won the Challenge Cup by thirty eight seconds The course was from an imaginary line between a stakeboat off Fort Adams and the Dumpling Rock round the buoy off Block Island and return About eleven A. M. the two competing yachts weighed anchor and stood outside Goat Island when they lay with their jibs to windward, awaiting the starting signal The Regatta Committee were in the catboat, Our Kitty and at forty one minutes past eleven they gave the preparatory warning and ten minutes later the signal to go There was a pleasant breeze about south by east and the tide was running ebb They crossed the line as follows —

THE START

	Owner	Cubical contents	Time H	M	S
Madgie	R. I Loper	6 452	10	52	14
Tidal Wave	W Voorhis	8 880	10	53	51

The Madgie was under mainsail, foresail, two square headed topsails and three jibs, and the Tidal Wave had up mainsail, foresail, main club topsail small foretopsail and three jibs The Madgie kept along close under Bateman's Point, just skirting the rocks, and the Tidal Wave followed in her wake The Madgie set her staysail and the Tidal Wave soon followed suit. The Madgie luffed close round the point, trimmed sheets took in balloon staysail and headed about south west. The Tidal Wave kept her ballooon up, and soon began to overhaul the Stonington schooner The Tidal Wave kept her luff and began drawing upon the weather quarter of the Madgie, her balloon staysail drawing well The Madgie then set a small working staysail and trimmed the main sheet well aft The Tidal Wave was still closing up on the weather quarter, and at last she began to bear away and,

COVERING THE MADGIE, TOOK THE LEAD.

The Madgie then came out on her weather quarter and did pretty well as long as the breeze lasted, but that was gradually lightening up to light air The Tidal Wave increased her lead very fast with the wind hauled around to about north east on the beam Sheets were all eased off, but the Madgie could do nothing with the North River Queen, whose big topsail and staysail were doing good service The Tidal Wave carried up sufficient breeze to round the buoy against a tide setting like a mill race to the eastward, and then, going up on the starboard tack close hauled, she started for home with the tide helping her along The Madgie here got into difficulties, as, the breeze dying away, she could hardly stem the tide, and she did not get round until twenty nine minutes after the Tidal Wave during which time the latter had travelled about six miles and was hull down The yachts

as follows —

	H	M	S
Tidal Wave	2	08	00
Madgie	2	37	00

When the Tidal Wave hauled in the wind she took in her jib topsail. It took the Madgie about five minutes after rounding to get her sails properly set on the wind, but when trimmed down they were a picture and a credit to the Stonington artist who cut them The wind had now hauled round about due east, but appeared a little variable as the Madgie was heading up two points better than the Tidal Wave The latter stayed at 3 16 P. M., and made a stretch to the northward. The Madgie had been coming up hand over hand, and was now only three miles astern The Madgie tacked, to the nor'ard at 3 21, and still kept gaining on the Tidal Wave, which finally sent up her jib topsail Both yachts were then on the port tack, and at 3 45 they stayed and stood for home. Now the race began in earnest, and it became intensely interesting as the breeze freshened and the Madgie gradually closed on the Tidal Wave She set her balloon staysail, but shortly afterwards took it in as the wind headed her off her course The Madgie with a good breeze kept closing up to windward on the Tidal Wave's quarter Every mile they travelled lessened the distance between them, and as they went by Bateman's Point it was any one's race making allowance for the time the Tidal wave had to give the Madgie.

SHE ARRIVED AS FOLLOWS.

	Arrival H	M	S	Actual Time H	M	S	Corrected Time H	M	S
Tidal Wave	5	28	4	5	29	13	5	29	13
Madgie	5	28	25	5	36	11	5	29	51

The Tidal Wave therefore, wins the Challenge Cup by thirty-eight seconds It is seldom such a close race is sailed, and with a strong steady breeze the Tidal Wave would have had hard work to repeat her victory, as the Madgie is not sparred or rigged for light air

THEY MADGIE AND MADELEINE ARE MATCHED

to sail twenty miles to windward and return in an eight knot breeze for a $400 cup The schooner yacht Josephine Mr Lloyd Phoenix of the New York Yacht Club is anchored in the harbor

ALLEGED HOMICIDE.

Fatal Result of Business Rivalry.

For some time past there has been a bitter and unrelenting feeling of rivalry existing between two saloon keepers doing business in the immediate vicinity of 443 West Forty third street The rivals often indulged in wordy wars and threats of personal violence passed between them. Last Saturday night the trouble broke out afresh, during which John Goory who stood in the crowd which had collected, threw a lager beer glass, and it took effect on the head of Margaret Fritz a child four years of age who was in her mother's arms at the time The little girl was reduced to insensibility, and probably received a fracture of the skull. She lingered till Monday night and expired from the effects of the violence received

Captain Killalea, of the Twenty second precinct, hearing of the occurrence, took prompt action in the matter, and arrested Goory who is alleged to have thrown the glass and Justice Coulter committed him Other parties more or less implicated, have been detained as witnesses Coroner Schirmer will thoroughly investigate the matter

The names of none of the persons detained by the Captain were made known. The parents of the deceased child live at 443 West Fifty second street

The State Department Scandal-Mongering.

The denial furnished by the State Department to the effect that it is not known at that Department that there is anything in its archives relating to the scandalous conduct of Cassius M Clay while Minister to Russia is disproved by the fact that copies of the City record have already been furnished by the State Department and are in the handwriting of a prominent official on duty there The record against Kilpatrick has been suppressed Secretary Fish, in a recent letter stated that he was opposed to the publication of such documents Nevertheless they are to be furnished for political effect during the Presidential campaign

Experiments With Cannon Powder.

Interesting experiments have been in progress at Fortress Monroe for some time past under direction of Rear Admiral Case Chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance for the purpose of improving the explosive and other qualities of cannon powder The results attained so far with the aid of the latest discoveries, are fifty per cent increased force, greater velocity and diminished pressure on the walls of the gun One of the latest trials was the firing of a fifteen inch smooth bore with the same charge as was fired from a twelve inch rifle at the turret of the British iron clad Glatton The impact of the smooth bore projectile was found to be 9 035 tons to the square inch while the impact of the rifle shot on the Glatton's turret was but 6 100 tons or nearly fifty per cent increase It is certain that had the charge used against the Glatton been of the same quality as that fired at Fortress Monroe the turret would have been completely disabled These results are regarded by naval men as placing the United States ahead of all other Powers in the great contest between ordnance and defensive armor besides greatly increasing the efficiency of the torpedo system

Nicaragua and the Inter-Ocean Canal.

M Bernard the Nicaraguan Minister has informed the State Department that his government will cheerfully render every assistance to the exploring party to be sent out by the Navy Department in making the survey for the inter oceanic canal through Nicaragua.

The Third National Bank of Baltimore and the Late Robbery.

The bank examiner at Baltimore to day reported to the Comptroller of Currency that so far as he had been able to examine the affairs of the Third National Bank of Baltimore, the loss by the recent robbery would not exceed $60 000

Order to Gauge Beer Casks.

The Internal Revenue Bureau has under consideration an important circular, which, when completed will be sent to gaugers throughout the country ordering them to commence at once the gauging of all beer casks used by brewers The object is to ascertain if the casks now used have not a greater capacity than represented by the class of stamps required The stamps issued are for hogsheads, barrels half sixth and eighth barrel. Upon inspection should gaugers find that the smaller measures have a capacity greater than heretofore represented by the stamps used, the gauger will be required to mark the cask as requiring a stamp of the next highest capacity or else the brewer must have them cut down to the required measurement The use of stamps for third barrel casks is prohibited by law, and should casks of this size be used, Collectors are required to exact the tax due from half barrels The expense of gauging is to be paid by the government Gauging of beer casks have heretofore not been required, and lively opposition to the order is anticipated.

BROOKLYN AFFAIRS.

Was It a Legal Appointment?

Doubts have been expressed among the politicians about the Hall as to the legality of the appointment of R M Whiting Jr, as a Commissioner of the Board of City Works The charge is that Whiting was appointed after the time specified by the act of the Legislature and that one of the appointing power was absent from the meeting at which the appointment was made Alderman Wylie, of the Seventh ward has prepared a resolution to be submitted at the next meeting of the Common Council directing the Auditor not to audit and the Comptroller not to pay any bill or salary ordered to be paid by a vote of Whiting and calling for the opinion of Corporation Counsel De Witt as to the legality of the appointment in question

A Social Thief.

Daniel Toohill of 85 South place, Brooklyn, was passing the corner of Third avenue and Twenty fourth street on Monday evening, about eight o clock, when he was accosted familiarly by a party of young men standing there, who insisted on him joining them in a social 'drink ' While Mr Toohill was talking with these new found festive friends of his he felt a tug at his pocket and turning around saw one of the crowd running down the street He at once cried out 'Stop thief!' and Officer Junkeman of the Eighteenth precinct, came up and chased the man who was running away The officer succeeded in capturing his man and also the watch and chain of Mr Toohill which the thief had thrown away in his flight The prisoner was arraigned yesterday morning before Judge Shandley, at Essex Market Court under the euphonious name of Conklin Pearsall Conklin admitted being there but said he did not steal the watch He was held to answer in default of $1,000 bail

Inspector Folk Quelling a Barroom Row.

The veteran Police Inspector, John S Folk, was before Justice Walsh yesterday for clubbing Frank Foe of 35 Columbia street, on the night of Saturday, the 3d instant Foe and a party named Degnan were fighting in a barroom at No 1 Atlantic street, when the Inspector who happened to be in the vicinity, heard the row and proceeded to the place The barroom was crowded, but as soon as Folk entered he thrust men aside to the right and left until he reached the fighters He ordered them to clear out where upon Foe as charged, resisted and tore the Inspector's coat. Folk then struck him on the head with his club and there was no further disturbance in the place after that Yesterday Foe denied that he tore the Inspector's coat but John G Dean and the Inspector himself swore that he did Mr Folk admitted having clubbed the complainant, though not before the latter had resisted and torn his coat Justice Walsh reserved his decision

The Lie Which Brought Phil Brennan a Caning—General Catlin's Last.

General Isaac S Catlin is Assistant United States District Attorney He fought bravely in the Union army during the rebellion and returned home with but one leg, having lost the other on a Southern battle field The General's latest victim is ex Assessor Phil Brennan The two met on Court street yesterday, and a dispute arose between them regarding certain events at the recent primary election Phil gave Cat in the lie, but had hardly uttered the words when that terrible cane, the same one with which Webster and Hodges suffered castigation, descended on his head A crowd instantly collected, and a fight would probably have occurred between the men had not Jakey Worth and several others interfered and separated them The stated cause of the little unpleasantness was that Brennan promised to assist Catlin at the primary in the Nineteenth ward, failed to do so and, when charged with infidelity, characterized the General as a liar

Anticipating a Riot.

A man employed on the elevator Scotia, lying at Atlantic docks was discharged by the superintendent, Mr Scott yesterday when the other workmen threatened to strike work also, unless their co laborer was re instated Mr Scott refused to take him back and all the workmen stopped work and gathered in little crowds about the docks A new gang was engaged in New York and went to work on board the Scotia The strikers continued to hang about and received additions to their numbers when the superintendent, fearing a disturbance applied to the police Inspector Folk and 100 men repaired to the place but there was no occasion for their services The strikers contented themselves with threats against the elevating company (the International) and finally retired from the docks The trimmers' employed aboard another elevator also quit work because two of the gang were discharged and joined the throng yesterday The police will continue to guard the property against the strikers

The Struggle for the Possession of a Child.

In the City Court yesterday the matter of the application of Mrs. Mary S Rich for the possession of Kitty Maude Clowes infant daughter of Norris Clowes was heard by Judge McCue The circumstances of this case have heretofore been published in the HERALD Clowes was formerly connected with the New York and Brooklyn press but after the death of his wife (who was a relative of the petitioner in this proceeding) which took place on Blackwell's Island he gave the child into the custody of John Higgins and wife, of New York who subsequently delivered her to Mrs Rich with the understanding that the latter was to pay $300 the amount due for board &c The whole sum was not paid, and the Higginses forcibly took the child away This brought the matter into Court The relationship of the petitioner was proven yesterday and also the fact that the father Norris Clowes who is now in Pittsburg gave to Mr Cogen a relation of the wife an instrument in writing by which Mrs. Rich was to have the care and custody of the child

Judge McCue awarded the custody of the child to Mrs Rich and recommended that Mrs Higgins be paid $100 for board due Little Kitty, who is about three years of age was then surrendered to Mrs Rich and Mrs Higgins wept
